NORRIS FLAYS HIS OPPONENTS

SAYS WILL PROVE HIGH OFFICIALS GUILTY PERJURY

Nebraska Senator Wants to Purify His Party and Keep the Respect of Honest Men and Women; Glories in the Course He Has Taken; Voices Strong Denunciation of Lucas.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20—(I. N. S.)—Senator George W. Norris, veteran insurgent republican leader of the senate, electrified the senate late this afternoon with a dramatic attack on republican national committee officials who secretly distributed campaign documents this fall opposing his reelection.

Norris created a sensation by announcing he would prove that "some high officials were guilty of perjury" in their testimony before the Nye campaign committee which revealed the republican war on the Nebraskan.

Senator Norris declared he had opposed President Hoover in the 1928 campaign because he condemned the republican nominee's attitude on farm relief and the power question. Since that campaign Norris added, developments have proven that Hoover is siding with "the power trust."

"I cast no aspersions on President Hoover," shouted Norris. "I simply cannot agree with him on the two paramount issues of the day—power and farm relief. History proves I was right on both.

Would Do It Again.

"I did what I did open and above board. I didn't creep under an anonymous name. I did it out in the open and honorably. I am not ashamed of it. I will do it again under the same circumstances. History not only justifies me but proves I was right."

Norris scathingly denounced Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the republican national committee, who told the Nye committee earlier in the day of paying $4,000 in cash out of his own pocket for the publication of campaign literature against the Nebraskan. Norris charged that few men would believe Lucas had paid this money out of his own pocket.

"I believe I will show beyond a doubt that some of these high officials, a few with nation-wide reputations, and some of them with

JURY'S VERDICT IS AWAITED BY MAJOR SHEPARD

Jurors Retire to Hotel Saturday Night Without Reaching Decision.

KANSAS CITY, Kas., Dec. 20—(UP)—The jury in the trial of Maj. Charles A. Shepard, charged with murdering his wife, left for its hotel at 10 o'clock Saturday night without reaching a verdict. The jurors informed Federal Judge Hopkins at that time they had not yet reached a decision. They advised the judge they would resume consideration of the case at 9 a. m. Sunday.

Judge Hopkins sent word to the jury that he would be available for call Sunday in case a decision is reached.

He left it up to the decision of the jury as to whether a verdict, if reached Sunday, shall be read immediately or held for the opening of court Monday.

Major Shepard and his attorneys had gone to their hotels in Kansas City, Mo., some time before the jury announced there was no prospect of a verdict tonight.

Lengthy Deliberation Seen.

KANSAS CITY, Kas., Dec. 20—(UP)—The twelve jurors with whom rested the fate of Maj. Charles A. Shepard apparently were settling down tonight for lengthy deliberations.

The case of the army officer accused of murdering his wife by administering poison was given to the jury in Federal court at 2:58 p. m., and spectators remained in their seats in the belief that a quick verdict would be reached.

The jury after considering the case for two hours and a half turned its attention to dinner. Odds had

Chicagoan Faces Charge Of Murder After Death Of Children in Flames

CHICAGO, Dec. 20—(I. N. S.)—As the result of a fire of alleged incendiary origin, one man tonight was facing possible prosecution as a murderer while two small boys lay dead and their mother suffered from possibly fatal burns.

H. Goldvarg, operator of a butcher shop in the building destroyed by the blaze was the man recommended held to the grand jury on charges of murder after an investigation conducted by a coroner's jury.

The boys killed, trapped by the flames as they lay in bed, were Jerome Israelson, 5, and his brother, Homer, 4. Their mother is Mrs. Dora Israelson.

The building, which contained both stores and apartments, burst into flames after an explosion supposedly caused by gas.

Mrs. Israelson was dragged from the fire by neighbors. Those who attempted to save the boys were driven back by the intense heat.

ARM OF BOY IS CRUSHED BADLY

John Sitzman, 8, Injured While Riding in Elevator.

Pushed by a passenger into the doorway of an ascending elevator in the Rudge & Guenzel department store Saturday afternoon, John Sitzman, 8, 852 North Twelfth street, sustained an injury to his right arm, which may result in the loss of the member.

The arm was dislocated, and badly crushed. Dr. Czar C. Johnson, attending the lad at St. Elizabeth's hospital, said Saturday night, that circulation had been partially restored in the arm, inspiring hope that it can be saved. It was at first feared that the arm would have to be amputated immediately.

John, together with a brother, was among the few passengers when the cage started up, according to Stanley Guenzel. A boy, whose name was not learned, suddenly pushed John forward. He fell into the wall of the elevator shaft and his arm was caught between it and the floor of the cage. The operator stopped the elevator short, probably preventing tearing the arm from the boy's body, Mr. Guenzel believes.

John is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Cahrles A. Sitzman.

Only Two Members Gang Which Got $14,000 Now Missing.

ALLIANCE, Neb., Dec. 20—(U.P.)—Sentences of 20 years each in the state penitentiary were given Harold Domnisse and Forrest Cook this afternoon for their part in the robbery of the First National bank of Hay Springs, September 18.

The two entered pleas of guilty to bank robbery charges when arraigned in District court here. Cook was brought here to plead from Rushville, in Sheridan county. Domnisse arrived here this morning from Lincoln where he had been held in the state penitentiary for safekeeping.

Brought From Indiana.

Three weeks ago, Cook was arrested in Indianapolis, Ind., when he and another man attempted to cash express checks. He was later identified by Nebraska authorities as one of the members of the quartet of robbers who staged the daylight robbery of the Hay Springs bank.

The express checks were said to be part of the loot taken from the bank. Several thousand dollars in securities were found in his possession at the time of his arrest in Indianapolis.

Caught In Fall.

Domnisse was arrested at Carrizozo, N. M., in the fall. He was brought to Lincoln for safe keeping when he attempted to make a getaway from the county jail at Rushville.

REALTORS ASK LICENSING LAW

Propose Organization of State Real Estate Department.

Bill Would Require All Dealers to Maintain Place of Business.

Enactment of a measure to require licensing of all real estate brokers and salesmen, establishing of requirements for entering the realty business, bonding of realtors, and creation of the office of state real estate commissioner will be asked of the next legislature by the real estate men of the state.

The measure, according to Lincoln and Omaha real estate men interviewed during the past week concerning the proposed act, is similar to realty licensing acts now in force in more than twenty-five states.

It is designed to eliminate the "curbstone" real estate man, to protect the public through the bonding of realtors and to bar unscrupulous real estate men, those interested in the movement say.

Fees to Pay Salaries.

Although the measure proposes establishment of a new public office, which would not be likely to be favorably received at the present time when every effort will be made for general tax reduction, real estate men do not expect to meet opposition on this account. They point out that the draft bill they have prepared provides for operation of the law without expense to any except real estate men themselves. All expenditures for the commissioner, in the way of salary, assistants, office equipment and services, and enforcement of the act would come from annual fees paid by the real estate men.

The bill would make it unlawful for any person, partnership or corporation to act as a real estate broker or salesman without a license issued by the Nebraska real estate commissioner. Under the terms of the act this would include all persons handling property except that which they own themselves or are administering as attorney or trustee.

The bill would create a state real estate department whose chief officer would be the commissioner. He would be appointed by the governor for a six year term at a salary of $5,000 a year. Chief requirement for the office would be that he have been a real estate broker in Nebraska for five years and that he have no connection with any realty business while holding the post. He would be under a $10,000 bond.

Could Revoke Licenses.

Full power to regulate the issuance and revocation of licenses would be given the commissioner. Each year about March 1 he would be required to publish a directory of licensed brokers and salesmen.

The draft bill proposes an examination fee of $10, an original

FRANK M'NINCH IS CONFIRMED

McNinch's Bolt of Al Smith Subject of Bitter Debate.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20—(INS)—After one of the most amazing debates in recent years, the senate tonight confirmed Frank R. McNinch, North Carolina Hoovercrat, as a member of the federal farm power commission. The vote was 47 favoring confirmation against 11 opposidg.

McNinch was confirmed only after democratic senators assailed his appointment as a reward for bolting Alfred E. Smith and supporting President Hoover two years ago.

For three hours, the senate debated regularity as revealed in the 1928 presidential election, shattering the democratic ranks while republicans looked on with smiling glee. A little earlier, the republicans had passed through a political tornado when Senator George W. Norris, republican of Nebraska, assailed the republican national committee for seeking his defeat this year because of his bolt to Smith in 1928.

Fourth to Be Confirmed.

MILLION DOLLAR SPRING BUILDING

Hastings and Lincoln Construction Plans Hit High Figure.

Hastings and Lincoln hold the spotlight in building operations contemplated for the early spring and summer, according to Lloyd Beans, secretary of the Lincoln Builders bureau. At Hastings, construction aggregating $850,000 is in prospect. Of this, $750,000 is contemplated by Hastings college, and the balance by the county for a new courthouse, the architect for which is expected to be named soon. Hastings also is to have a new I. O. O. F. building to cost $20,000.

In Lincoln it is expected that the contract for a new 4-H building at the state fair grounds will be awarded January 21. Plans are

REDISTRICTING TO BE PROBLEM OF LEGISLATURE

Two Proposals Made For New Congressional Grouping.

LITTLE POLITICAL CHANGE EXPECTED

Either Shallenberger or Norton Likely To Lose Seat.

Maps showing what the territorial division would be under two possible redistricting plans are found on page 8.

How will the legislature divide up the state of Nebraska into five new congressional districts, instead of the six which it now has?

This is one of the chief problems to be worked out at the coming session. It promises to develop a good deal of political maneuvering, not only for party advantage one way or the other but also for the effect the realignment may have upon the ambitions of individuals who hope to go to congress some time.

Redistricting is necessary at this time because Nebraska, under the new federal census, will lose one of the six congressmen it has hitherto had.

One thing seems certain, namely, that whatever method of reappointment may be adopted the present fourth district and a large part or all of the fifth will be combined and one of the two congressmen now serving from those districts will be eliminated at the next election. The member to lose his seat will, therefore, be a democrat—either Congressman Norton of the fourth or Congressman Shallenberger of the fifth.

This is because no logical grouping of counties can be arranged in any other way and still preserve a fair balance of population among the different districts. The 1930 federal census is the basis on which the new districts will be formed.

Little Chance for Gerrymander.

The situation does not furnish much opportunity for politicians in

FARMERS FIGHT MILK ORDINANCE

Committee Will Confer With Commissioners On Measure.

Producers Say Proposal Would Bar Small Dairymen.

Fiery discussion at a meeting of the Nebraska Milk Producers' association, held Saturday night at the agricultural college, terminated in the appointment of a committee with I. W. Jacoby as chairman, to meet with city commissioners, Monday afternoon, to investigate the pending milk ordinance. Suggestion for the conference was made by E. M. Bair of the city council.

Special objection was made by members of the association to certain "unreasonbale" stipulations of the pending ordinance, dealing with the housing of dairy herds and selling of unpasteurized milk. Association members maintained that the passage of the ordinance would make it practically impossible for independent farmers to "peddle" milk.

Denies Discrimination.

In answering charges against the creameries and city health department officials of discriminating in the rejection of milk because of improper "flavor," Commissioner Bair stated that he knew of no such discrimination and doubted its existence.

C. B. Steward, secretary of the Nebraska farm bureau federation, in a report of eastern milk prices stated that co-operative farm dairies of New York received a market price of 7.7 cents per quart for milk which sold to consumers at 15 cents a quart.

Co-ops Get 50 Per Cent.

Similar statistics showed that most co-operative dairy interests receive approximately 50 per cent of the retail milk price. It was pointed out that before the lowering of Lincoln milk prices a few weeks ago, farmers were paid 3.76 cents per quart, while the price of consumers was 11 cents a quart. The percentage of difference between wholesale and retail price is practically the same under the revision. Eissler, president of the state fed-

Following a statement of Fred Eissler, president of the state federation of labor, pledging the support of the labor group to the formation of a co-operative dairy enterprise in the Lincoln district, C. M. Craig, chairman of the milk producers' association, named J. L. White as chairman of a committee of five to draw up the contracts and by-laws of a proposed co-operative milk marketing association.

Farm Board Now in 'Red' 30 Millions

SENATE APPROVES.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20—(INS)—Under a lashing criticism of the government's efforts to stabilize farm prices, the senate late tonight passed the bill appropriating another $150,000,000 for the federal farm board.

The appropriation, already approved by the house, is added to $250,000,000 appropriated at the last session of congress. The bill goes to the white house for the president's signature. An effort to attach the $45,000,000 drouth relief appropriation was beaten tonight without a record vote, when administration leaders insisted there was no immediate need for the money.

Lincoln's street newsboys will be entertained at a show and dinner next Saturday by an unnamed Lincoln business man. Preceding the dinner which will be held at the Annex hotel at noon, the newsies will be guests of Charles Shires at a picture at the Stuart theater beginning at 10 o'clock.

This is the second annual dinner for the street newsboys to be given by the same business man. Last year, 109 attended the dinner. Between 100 and 125 are expected this year. The boys will be given tickets to identify them for admission to the show and dinner.

Arthur Babich and his orchestra will play for the dinner. Officer Nichols will serve as guardian for the boys. OFFICERS OBTAIN CONFESSION FROM MAN AT WYMROE

Purported Story Tells of Killing Clay Center, Kas., Cattle Buyer With Baseball Bat, Coming to Lincoln, Returning Home and Removing Body, Then Faking Wreck to Disguise Crime.

(Special to The Star)

WYMORE, Neb., Dec. 20—Lawrence S. Bigler, 28, was taken back to Kansas late Saturday night in custody of Clay county, Kansas, authorities for investigation in connection with the death of Lambert J. Baldwin, 29, Clay Center, Kas., cattle buyer, following an alleged confession that he killed Baldwin.

Bigler confessed that he beat Baldwin with a baseball bat which both sought to get after they engaged in an argument at their home 14 miles northeast of Clay Center, County Attorney Oscar Peterson of Clay county, announced here tonight.

The purported confession was made to Mr. Peterson, Sheriff Ralph W. Sparrowhawk of Clay county, and Fred V. Lunger, of Palmer, Kas., a bank cashier, who had known both principals in the case.

Bigler was arrested here early Saturday afternoon by Chief of Police Chambers after Kansas officials had asked that a lookout be kept for him, as a suspect in the alleged murder of Baldwin.

Body Found Under Truck.

Baldwin's body, wrapped in a heavy blanket, was discovered Saturday morning in a ditch northwest of Clay Center under a truck which had been turned completely over. The Clay county coroner held that the death had not been an accident.

Clay county officials discovered tracks of an automobile which they believed to be Bigler's. Finding him missing, they notified Wymore authorities. They came here after Bigler's arrest.

The alleged confession was obtained about 7:30 o'clock Saturday night, County Attorney Peterson announced. He said that Bigler had previously told three other stories.

The story allegedly related to the county attorney is briefly as fol-

LINCOLN TRAFFIC MIXUP CAUSED BY SIGNALS FAILING

Saturday night motorists in the downtown area were forced to revert to the old fashioned system of fighting for the "right-of-way," when the automatic traffic signal system was rendered useless by a burned out motor in the main control box at Thirteenth and O streets.

The motor ceased functioning shortly after 5:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The center, or warning light, was suddenly flashed at all lighted intersections, and the signal bells began to ring as when fire apparatus is passing through. Traffice was confused generally, until the police electrician shut off the current to the system.

William German, the police electrician, worked several hours installing a new motor and making other repairs, before the lights functioned again.

SOLONS ENACT AID PROGRAM AND ADJOURN

Christmas Vacation Begins Early Sunday After Stormy Session.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21—(Sunday)—(I. N. S.)—Congress began its Christmas vacation early this morning after enacting President Hoover's economic relief program and appropriating $150,000,000 for the federal farm board.

The senate labored far into the night in an exciting session to conclude legislative action on these bills. It took time out for a while to confirm the president's new federal power commission, but devoted most of a thirteen-hour session to administration legislation, revival of the 1928 feuds and debate over efforts to punish bolters in the Hoover-Smith campaign. Adjournment was at 12:06 Sunday morning.

When gavels fell, sending house and senate home until January 5, the $45,000,000 drouth relief bill, the

As Rogers Sees I

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 20—Senate has been in session almost a month, and has just passed the very bills that President Hoover suggested in the first hour that it met. They could have passed 'em the second hour, but no, that wouldn't give 'em a chance to denounce. A foreigner coming here and reading the Congressional Record would say that the president of the U. S. was elected solely for the purpose of giving a senator somebody to call a horse thief, and the dumb part about it is they have played right into the president's hands, for there is nothing the people belief in any more than someone the senate is denouncing. Six months like that and Hoover would be elected by acclamation.

Business Women's Clubs Of State Celebrate Christmas

Holiday Observances In Larger Places In Keeping With Spirit Of Season, Many Groups Remembering With Gifts the Unfortunates In Their Midst.

The Christmas spirit has been very much in evidence in the Nebraska Federation of Busines and Professional Women's clubs, especially in the direction of remembering the unfortunates at this time of the year.

The newly organized club at Chadron has completed plans for sponsoring a Christmas service in the courthouse yard Sunday, December 21, at 4 o'clock, when the members will decorate and light one of the pine trees in the yard. The co-operation of the Western Public Service company and the American legion is making this possible. The club will also sponsor carol singing during the holidays and will join with the chamber of commerce in filling bags of candy for the community Christmas tree.

The regular dinner meeting of the club was held Tuesday evening. A program after the dinner consisted of a talk by Dr. Tucker, of Chadron State Normal college, who spoke on "Club Ethics, and What Makes a Good Club Member"; and a humorous reading, a sketch from Tarkington's "Penrod," by Miss Hazel Beaver. The club chorus, under the direction of Miss Elmira Scovel, made its first appearance, and sang two selections. Mrs. Valasta Cushman is accompanist.

Omaha Club.

The Omaha Business and Professional Women's club will hold its Christmas party, December 23, and on Wednesday evening, December 24, will furnish Christmas as the Douglas county hospital. Elizabeth Van Sant is chairman.

The club rooms of the Business and Professional Women's club of Wahoo were prettily decorated in keeping with the Christmas season for the dinner meeting which was held Wednesday evening. A centerpiece representing a small snow-covered village and miniature houses with lights shining through the windows, was very attractive. Following the dinner, Miss Evelyn McNeil, publicity chairman, told of her European trip this summer. At the business session it was voted to sponsor the sale of holly wreaths. The next meeting will be on January 14.

Fairbury Club.

Members of the Fairbury Axis club enjoyed their annual Christmas party at the Mary-Etta hotel, Wednesday evening. Pupils of the fifth grade of West ward school, entertained with a Christmas carol number. "Sour Milk Turned Sweet," a skit, illustrating the use of Christmas seal funds, was given by George Lytton and LaVern McKay. It was reported that the Christmas seal sale sponsored by the Axis club this year, has amounted to more than $200. Miss Frances Distil, welfare chairman, told of the plans for the program at the county farm, Sunday afternoon.

The club year book prepared by Lillian Bearss, program chairman, was presented to the members.

The tables were decorated in keeping with the Christmas season, and hand painted name cards and tiny sleds bearing candles were at each place. Toy gifts at the foot of a beautiful Christmas tree, were enjoyed at a frolic following the program. The toys will be turned over to the associated charities for distribution to children at Christmas.

The rooms were attractively decorated with the holiday suggestions and each girl brought a gift for "her pal." These were placed by a lovely fireplace. After a business meeting, games were played and a visit from an "Italian street vender" with his accordian and a "real live monkey" caused much merriment. A feature of the party was the plan of each girl brining a canned vegetable, fruit or groceries, as well as clothing, for the Christmas baskets the club gives each year to needy families.

Falls City Club.

A Christmas dinner and party, as a climax to "Pal" month for the Business and Professional Women's club of Falls City, was held Monday evening at Hotel Weaver. For the past month members of the organization, with a view of creating friendship in the club, have exchanged gifts, the recipient in each instance not knowing the giver. The members became acquainted with their "Pals" by the seating arrangements in the hotel dining room. Miss Ruth Lewis, president of the club, was in charge. Tall red tapers and decorated miniature Christmas trees were used as the table centerpiece. The Christmas motif was also carried out in the place cards. Between courses carols were sung, led by Miss Ruth Cochrane. Miss Dolly Langdon was accompanist. Other numbers on the program: Piano solo, "The Venetian Love Song," Miss Chloe Pate; readings, "The House With Nobody In It," and "My Pal," Miss Alms Mosiman. The next meeting will be on January 12.

BALANCE IN BANK PROBE TREASURY

Out of the $150,000 appropriation made by the legislature of 1929 for the state bank investigation, a balance of $38,455 remains in the treasury at this time. The investigation proper closed last July, when Director A. C. Shallenberger disbanded his accounting and office staff and made his final report to Governor Weaver.

However, legal work is still being done in civil and criminal cases growing out of the investigation, and substantial sums have been paid out each month for the services of those engaged in it.

Attorney F. S. Howell of Omaha, as chief counsel for the investigation, has been on the payroll since last January. He draws $500 a month salary, and additional sums for personal and legal expenses. His last bill, for which the state auditor's office has just issued its warrant, came to $1,427. During 1930, up to this time, Mr. Howell has received a total of $10,143 from the state.

Another bill of $2,500 for fees as special assistant counsel came in last week from J. J. Thomas of Seward, who has been employed in the prosecutions connected with the failure of half a dozen banks in Saunders county last summer. It has not been approved by the governor.

STOCKS SCORE A SHARP RECOVERY

Commodity Prices Reported at Lowest Level Since 1915.

BY THEODORE KOSLOW.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20—(I. N. S.)—A sharp and sustained recovery in security values completely overshadowed the further decline in business activity, and has definitely restored to financial and trade leaders some part of the waning confidence of recent weeks pertaining to important revival in industry with the turn of the year

In fact, the present low ebb of activity is so pronounced that leading authorities make no hesitation in predicting that the worst of the downward movement has been seen. The Annalist Index of business activity has dropped to the lowest figure since the depression of 1908, and according to this authority the current behavior of commodity prices, money rates, bond rates, bond prices and other factors indicates that, if precedent is followed, the beginning of recovery is a matter of but one or two months.

The stock market experienced an abrupt reversal of trend, which not only put a halt to the prolonged decline but resulted in a sharp and, in many instances, spectacular rebound from the low levels of the week, stocks had fallen back persistently, with virtually no interruption for a period of some weeks, with the volume of turnover gathering up momentum on the decline. This in itself suggested a selling climax from which an automatic rebound would naturally develop, but it was not until Wednesday after a further violent decline in the forenoon, on top of a sharp setback in the three preceding sessions, that the long awaited recovery was in order.

Trend Remains Upward.

This continued at a hectic pace throughout Wednesday and Thursday, and although some irregularity developed on Friday, the underlying trend remained upward. The most heartening feature of the upturn was the buoyant tone of the railroad group, which not only recorded substantial progress into higher territory, but moved in the van of the recovery drive when other sections of the list showed signs of faltering.

Retail trade has been bolstered by holiday buying, with a return of cold weather also an aid in distribution. While many centers report the total volume of buying equal to that of a year ago, the value of the purchases are conceded to be well below that of last year, due largely to a lower price range of goods.

Although tangible evidences of betterment have not yet been forthcoming from the basic steel trade, there are distinct signs of near-term improvement coming to light. The current rate of output has become of secondary interest, now that more reports are stressing the gain in forward inquiry and buying. Increased activity in pig iron, always a hopeful straw, has appeared at several centers. In addition, the barometric scrap market has steadied, with scattered advances in numerous items.

Only Three Advances.

Commodity prices have continued their decline, and measured by The Annalist Index they are now at a new low for the year, and the lowest since December, 1915. The department of labor's classified computation discloses that out of forty-one groups of products, thirty showed declines, six were unchanged, and only three were able to record even small advances. Farm products and non-agricultural products both declined at about the 2½ per cent average of all commodities, while raw materials were 4 per cent lower, and finished goods 2¼ per cent lower.

One favorable feature of the foreign trade statement covering the first nine months of the year is that although value of both exports and imports decreased from 20 to 25 per cent from the corresponding period of 1929, the country's exports held up much better than imports with the result that the nine months' surplus of exports was $73,000,000 greater than a year before, and the largest in nine years.

Bank clearings have recovered very materially, and are well above those of recent weeks, although considerably below the like periods of 1929. The total for the third week of December, as reported to Dun's, is 14.2 per cent below last year's, although some 30 per cent more than last week.

July Wheat Plunges.

CHICAGO, Dec. 20—(INS)—Heavy liquidating pressure influenced by the bearish government crop report forced July wheat to [illegible]c a bushel during early trading on the Chicago board of trade today. The price was lowest for the season and lowest since 1901.

Short covering in the way of securing profits was evident late and the deferred future managed to rally to 67[illegible]c. All deliveries of corn with the exception of old December slumped to new lows on the crop due to heavy selling on more favorable weather conditions. Fair support was evident on the break encouraged by reports of heavy shipping sales. Old crop deliveries of wheat were steady.

The winter wheat acreage seeded this fall was estimated at 42,042,000 acres by the department of agriculture, a reduction of only about 1 per cent.

Closing prices were unchanged to [illegible]c lower for wheat, [illegible] to 1[illegible]c down for corn and steady to [illegible]c off for oats. Rye was [illegible] to 1[illegible]c lower.

Compared with a week ago wheat was [illegible]c up to 2[illegible]c off, corn 2[illegible]c to 3c lower and oats [illegible] to 1c off.

July wheat was under pressure most of the past week owing chiefly to weakness in outside markets and less encouraging news from abroad. Liverpool and Buenos Aires scored new lows for the season while Winnipeg slumped to the lowest levels ever recorded since trading was inaugurated there. July wheat in the Chicago market was lowest in almost thirty years. Old crop months were pegged and covered an extremely narrow range during the period under review.

Foreign Markets In Rut.

Foreign markets continued in a rut due to lack of confidence. The general demand was reported slack. Export demand continues of a hand-to-mouth order as foreign millers are waiting for movement of the southern hemisphere crops. Weakness in Liverpool proved the major depressing factor on the Winnipeg exchange, with trade semi-demoralized. Private cable advices, indicating Canadian and Argentine wheat was being pressed for sale and that the milling demand was very slow, also weakened the market.

The Argentine government estimates the yield of that country at [illegible],000 bushels against 137,-[illegible]00,000 bushels harvested last year. The final report on wheat in the United States was 850,000,000 bushels, slightly higher than expected.

Corn acted much the same as July wheat. The adverse business conditions and the weak undertone in stocks early in the week caused buyers to be cautious, and bears met little difficulty in forcing prices lower. Weather conditions over the belt were generally favorable for movement to market. Shipping sales were light most of the week. The government report placing the 1930 yield at 2,031,000 bushels was below expectations and influenced some buying, but the general trade was inclined to be bearish and this factor was soon ignored.

Hog Marketings Decline.

CHICAGO, Dec. 20—(INS)—Marketings of [illegible] declined and local shipping outlet showed some improvement the past week in the face of slightly depressed conditions in dressed pork prices in the east. As a result, values recovered somewhat from the low time last Thoursday, when prices were the lowest in more than six years.

A top price of $8.35 was paid on Monday for choice hogs, but on Thursday of this week the peak price was $8.25. The best underweight light hogs touched $8.10 today and top for heavy was $7.90. The bulk of all the good butchers moved at $7.75 to $7.90, which makes the market steady to about 10c higher than a week ago, but $2 lower than a year ago. Arrivals for the week were 166,000 against 198,000 last week and 215,000 a year ago.

A small supply and a better outlet for beef on account of weather conditions, influenced gains of 25 to 50c in good steers. The gain was mostly on the class of steers that were judged suitable for the Christmas holiday trade. Buyers paid up to 14.50 for fancy yearlings and bought weighty steers at $13, for the first time in several months.

Steer Market Recovers.

The market for the big steers recovered most of last week's loss and closed at $10 to $12. Receipts of she stock were moderate and demand only fair. Prices advanced 25c early, but later reacted and finished on a par with last week. Cows sold at $4 to $7.50 and the common to choice heifers at $6.00 to $9.50. A load of extra good yearling heifers topped at $11.50. Receipts of cattle for the week were 39,000 against 50,000 last week and 38,000 a year ago

Mild fluctuations featured the lamb trade the past week. Fat classes gained 25 to 50c while heavyweights declined 25c.

Early in the week the best lambs reached $8.50, but at the close top $8.25. Packers bought most of the light and medium weight lambs at $8.00 to $8.25. Heavy lambs were plentiful and moved at $7.25 to $7.75. Arrivals for the week were 84,000 compared with 92,000 last week and 64,000 a year ago.

Chicago Cotton Firm.

CHICAGO, Dec. 20—(INS)—Cotton closed 6 to 16 points higher today with good buying on the improvement in securities and week-end short covering. Dec., 9.79b; Jan., 9.86; March, 10.12; May, 10.39; July, 10.60 and Oct. 10.78. The market is 22 to 28 points higher than a week ago.

Prices scored new low prices for the season early in the week in sympathy with other commodities and the weak undertone in stocks. A substantial upturn followed later with a reversal in sentiment in grains and stocks. Outside markets were generally lower.

A report from New York indicated that consumption is running under last year but tending upward, and cloth sales by mills are seasonably light. English mill activity was reported unchanged and continental mills barely maintaining positon.

Charman Legge of the farm board is quoted as saying that the cotton market has suffered the worst effects of the depression with prices having about reached the bottom.

Exports for the week ended December 12 were 134,357 bales compared with 164,949 bales a year ago

Slightly colder weather was noted over the belt late in the week with the forecast for mostly cloudy conditions.

Report Objections To New Member of Cosmetology Board

A report heard at the capitol a day or two ago was that a small group of cosmetologists at Omaha is circulating a petition asking the dismissal of Miss Dolly M. Dickerson newly appointed member of the state board of cosmetology examiners. This group, it is stated, favored the appointment of someone else to the place. Their principal complaint is that Miss Dickerson does not belong to the Omaha hairdressers' association, although she is a licensed beautician and has been in successful practice there.

The association membership at Omaha is said to include only 30 or 40 persons, out of two or three hundred beauty parlor owners and employes in that city. Friends of Miss Dickerson say the association comprises only a little coterie that tries to run the whole profession. A great majority of the cosmetologists and hairdressers of Omaha, they assert, are well satisfied to have her on the board.

Miss Dickerson was named for a term of three years to succeed [illegible] Emma Lane on the state board. She began her official duties ten days ago.

Miss Sthiavo was hurried to a hosp'tal where doctors said she may die. She was wounded in the left temple and the brain.

Warns House Dangerous European Alliances Being Formed.

Advocates Control of Federal Reserve Board Policies.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20—(I. N. S)—American financiers and economists have dictated America's foreign policy, involved us in European politics and failed to solve the world's post-war problems. Rep. L. T. McFadden, republican of Pennsylvania, chairman of the house banking committee, declared in a speech in the house today.

He called upon congress to enact legislation dismissing the financiers and economists, fix a policy for the federal reserve board, and prevent further entanglement in European affairs.

Denouncing the Versailles treaty, which ended the World war. McFadden declared that another European war, which will involve the United States, is likely unless the treaty is revised

McFadden renewed attacks on the alleged participation of the federal reserve board of New York in European affairs The speech also contained an attack on Eugene Meyer, jr, of New York, governor of the federal reserve board, which aroused President Hoover and caused him to ask republican leaders what congress thought of it.

At the conclusion of McFadden's speech today there was applause.

"The tendency is to draw us into the Anglo-France alliance to maintain the status quo of the Versailles treaty," said McFadden. "All indications point to the conclusion that unless the Versailles treaty is revised, there will be war in Europe and the United States will be drawn to the side of the allies.

"The intervention of congress is necessary to undo the work of financiers and economists who have involved the United States into the European affairs through the world bank, in supporting the Stresemann policy, and through the World court.

Warns Of Alliances.

"I want to warn against entangling alliances which have bogged us into the mire of German reparations."

He recalled reports that the United States had blocked a loan to Italy to force her to a disarmament agreement with France, and referred to Premier Mussolini's recent speech blaming Italy's woes on the American stock market crash

Italy, he said, is making alliances with countries defeated in the World war

He urged congress to pass a bill prohibiting sale of German reparation bonds in this country and legislation to guide the federal reserve board in matters of international policy.

FARM BOARD NOW IN 'RED' 30 MILLIONS

Alexander Legge, chairman, to the senate appropriations committee, Senator Jones, republican, Washington, told the senate late tonight during debate on the $150,000,000 farm fund bill.

Jones said Legge had declared the loss might be more if the price of wheat declined, but that some of the loss could be recovered if wheat prices rallies.

"Legge told us that if he closed out now," said Jones, "his loss would be $30,000,000."

Urges Approval.

Jones insisted that the senate approve the house bill, giving the board $150,000,000 more, before taking its Christmas vacation. He quoted Legge as saying the board might not otherwise be able to continue its operations until congress returns January 5.

"Legge told us the board might be able to carry on, but that they had had a bad week, due to the decline in cotton prices and the variation in wheat prices," said Jones. "He said they put out $9,000,000 in cold cash Cotton took $6,000,000 and wheat $3,000,000. He said it would create chaos if the board dropped out of the market."

Two Millions on Hand.

Jones said the board chairman had reported but $2000 000 in cash on hand. Under questioning. Jones said Legge had not told how much money had been spent in speculation, but that all operations totalled $376,000,000 to date.

Just before debate began on the bill, Senator McKellar, democrat, of Tennessee, offered an amendment appropriating $45,000,000 to carry out the provisions of the president's drougth relief bill. It was stated earlier that the secretary of agriculture did not desire the money until early in the new year.

Borah Criticizes.

Senator Borah republican, of Idaho, criticised the farm board for ceasing operations last spring when wheat was $1.10 and letting the market take its natural course.

"I'd like to know why the board ceased operations last spring when the price was reasonable, the day after Julius Barnes reached Washington," he said.

Borah protested that when the board began operations, "wheat was one dollar a bushel and it is now down to 68 cents."

Elks Expecting 3,000 Children To Attend Annual Christmas Party

Continuing a practice which was instituted twelve years ago, local lodge No. 80, B. P. O. E., will hold its annual Christmas party for kiddies beginning at 9 o'clock Thursday morning in the coliseum. According to Dr. A. E. Wood who is chairman of the entertainment and distribution committees, the Elks expect to play hosts to approximately 3,000 children, who otherwise would not have any Christmas celebration

A giant Christmas tree, decorated and lighted, will form the centerpiece of the coliseum floor and will be the destination for Santa Claus, who will arrive in his sleigh. A program of acts and music has been arranged which will include a thirty-piece concert band, an acrobatic act from the Y. M. C. A., a comedy bicycle act by Jack Stary, "Skip" Dean, the circus clown, the "Aerial Bauers," who will perform among the roof girders of the coliseum using no landing net, a twenty-piece drum corps from Havelock and several acts which are being arranged by Charles Shire, which regularly appear at the Stuart theater.

Putney to Lead Singing.

Community singing will follow the opening of the program by the band and will be led by Charles Putney. Candy and presents will be distributed among the children. Toys and candy left over will be taken to the hospitals and children's homes. Baskets will also be distributed following the morning program.

"We believe that we will have a high class entertainment and program which will keep the kiddies excited every minute," Dr. Wood commented. "There will be candy and toys for all the children in town who would not have a Christmas otherwise."

Carl Wiren is the general chairman of the annual Christmas tree party; Ted Wolfenbarger will be Santa's "right hand man"; Fran' DuTeil, Frank Gillen, F. Glaunert will form the purchasing staff, and Hal Young and Frank Koops will handle the finances.

List of Committees.

COMPANY REQUESTS PERMIT TO STORE GASOLINE IN TANK

The Iowa-Nebraska Light and Power Co. Saturday asked the council whether an old steel tank at Third and L streets may be converted into a gasoline container. The tank was formerly used in connection with the manufacture of artificial gas With the inauguration of natural gas, the power company plans to donate the tank for gasoline storage to the Lincoln Traction Co. The latter corporation expects by use of the tank, to be able to buy carload quantities of fuel for its busses.

City Clerk Berg is of the opinion that no permission of the council is needed, since the ordinance on gasoline storage does not apply to the area west of Fourth street.

PARIS, Dec. 20—(U. P.)—Raymond Poincare, former premier, who has been seriously ill, continued to night to gain strength.

"Doug" is Salesman But Coin Goes Into Hands of Older Lad

"Doug" is Lincoln's youngest salesman. He's only 4 years old, but he sells the goods. He works under the tutelage of an older youngster, and the latter cops the coin which "Doug" takes in.

An evening or two ago the doorbell rang at the home of a family living a few blocks southeast of the capitol. When the door was opened there stood the youthful salesman holding aloft a copy of one of the weekly periodicals.

"Do you want to buy this paper?" he inquired.

Inquiries elicited the information that his name was "Doug"; that he had no other name; that he lived in a nearby house, which he pointed out.

So the sale was made and a nickle handed over. As "Doug" took his departure, a 10-year-old lad with two or three younger followers, previously invisible, appeared on the front walk. "Doug" handed over the nickel to him, and the group then proceeded to the next place.

broker's license fee of $10 and an annual renewal fee of $10, for brokers. An examination fee of $3 with an annual license fee of $2 is provided for salesmen.

All fees would be paid to the state treasury but credited to the state real estate commissioner's fund from which all expenses of the department would be paid. Tse draft measure proposes to utilize all funds in excess of $5,000 remaining in the fund at the close of each year.

These surplus funds would be used to advertise Nebraska. The money would be spent by a committee of five or more men appointed by the governor for licensed real estate men. Each should be from a different congressional district of the state to serve without pay. The bill would provide expressly that the expense of the department be kept within the income and that it never be supported from state funds.

Recommendations Required.

Requirements for applications are laid down in the draft bill. These include a written examination if the applicant has not been in the real estate business prior to the establishment of the act or a salesman for two years and requirement of a written recommendation of at least two real estate owners in the county in which the applicant resides.

Issuance of broker's licenses would require posting with the state of a $2,000 bond in each case to protect honest application of all funds received. The commissioner would be given authority to revoke licenses for cause. The act would ban payment of a commission on real estate matters to anyone not licensed under the act.

The bill also would make it compulsory for real estate brokers to maintain a place of business. The bill would also include provisions for non-resident licenses, requiring similar bonding requirements to those for residents

Request Authority To Amend Express Rates In Nebraska

Authority to amend express rates in Nebraska to conform with the amendments which the interstate commerce commission has approved and ordered effective January 1 on interstate traffic was asked of the railway commission Saturday.

The amendments are largely clarifications of previous rates and regulations but include some changes. Chief among the changes is an extension of free time on C. O. D. shipments which are accepted by consignee from five days to ten days

The Burlington filed an application with the commission for authority to make a refund on shipments of livestock moving from Oakdale to Omaha.

The Haigler Telephone Co. was given authority to establish rates in addition to its regular exchange rates, as follows: business, party line, $2.50; residence, party line, $1.25; extension sets, business, 75 cents; extension sets, residence, 50 cents. The Northwestern Bell Telephone Co asked authority to discontinue rates on grounded individual line service within the Ravenna exchange this service no longer being supplied.

ly afterwards, the commission was completed by confirmation of Marcel Garsaud of Louisiana by a vote of 42 to 14. Two members of the commission, Ralph B. Williamson of Washidgton, and Claude P. Draper of Wyoming, were confirmed yesterday, while Chairman George Otis Smith, former director of the geological survey, was approved by a vote of 38 to 22, just before the debate over McNinch.

Political leaders were surprised that the fight against Smith drew greater support than the attack on McNinch. This was due though to the fact that the insurgents supported McNinch and voted against Smith. They claimed McNinch was the "most liberal" apopintee to the new commission.

Vote of Democrats.

On the ballot confirming McNinch, fourteen democrats joined with both regular and insurgent republicans in supporting McNinch. Ten democrats and the insurgent Frazier voted against confirmation.

The democrats supporting McNinch, despite his 1928 bolt, were Barkley, Bulkley, George, Harris, Heflin, Kendrick, McGill, Morrison, Randsdell, Sheppard, Simmons, Thomas (Oklahoma), Trammel and Wheeler. The democrats opposing confirmation were Ashurst, Broussard, Caraway, Dill, Hayden, King, McKellar, Pittman, Wagner and Walsh (Montana).

It was announced too that Sedator Joe T. Robinson, democratic floor leader, who was Smith's running mate in 1928, would have voted against confirmation had he been present.

Suit for $15,000 damages had been brought by Jake Margolis, administrator of the Reuben Margolis estate, alleging that the drowning was the result of negligence on the part of the park owners. A jury allowed $3,600 from the defendants are appealing.

SOLONS ENACT AID PROPRAM AND ADJOURN

$116,000,000 public works bill and the huge appropriation for the farm board had been written into law. All the bills needed was the signature of President Hoover, who must sign them within ten days to make them effective.

The senate passed the farm board appropriation just five minutes before midnight and jammed through an adjournment resolution Since it required concurrent action by the house, the senate took a recess of fifteen minutes into Sunday morning. In the meantime house leaders who had waited patiently in the rear of the senate chamber, rushed to the opposite end of the capitol, reconvened that body into session just at midnight, agreed to the senate resolution and then departed for trains and home.

A clerk raced back through the deserted corridor to the senate chamber, announced the house's concurrence and the senate then went through the formal motions of adjourning. It was just 12 06 a. m.

A Tumultuous Session.

The house spent the day quietly, recessing for long periods to await the favor of the senate, but the latter body had a tumultuous session. One of the high lights was an impassioned speech by Senator George W. Norris, insurgent leader, protesting against the war waged on him by the republican national committee in his recent campaign for re-election.

The democrats had a free-for-all battle of their own over confirmation of Frank R. McNinch, North Carolina Hoovercrat, for the power commission. McNinch was confirmed, but only after one group of democrats praised him and another denounced him for supporting Hoover two years ago.

Relief Bills Signed.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20—(UP)—President Hoover late today signed the emergency bills for unemployment and drouth relief.

The unemployment relief bills made $116,000,000 available immediately for construction work on federal waterway and highway projects.

The drouth relief bill authorized $45,000,000 for loans to farmers.

An appropriation bill must be passed by congress before the money can be paid out.

The bills were passed by congres earlier today after the senate receded from the last of the amendments to which the administration objected. Action came despite senate protests terming the measures "inadequate and tragic disappointments."

Its emergency work completed, the house was ready to adjourn for the holidays, but the senate became involved in debate over power commission appointments and was still wrangling at 5 p. m.

There was no formal ceremony at the white house when the president signed the two bills. Two of his secretaries, Lawrence Richey and Walter Newton, were in the office with him as well as newspapermen and photographers.

Auto Parking Controlled By 93 Ordinances

Although in Mayor Love's words, "the present situation in the auto parking problem is a determination of the council to strictly enforce present ordinances," at least one member of the group has armed himself with material which may result in several amendments

Commissioner L M Troup has dug up all of the ninety-three ordinances and resolutions that have been ever passed on the subject. Many have been repealed since, but many obsolete statutes are still believed to be on the books

Mr Troup has also undertaken to remove one of the evils of the parking situation by ordering his staff to remove the 10-minute parking zones Although this type of restriction was legally repealed about three years ago, the markings still remain on the curbs at the 78 original 10-minute zones

The commissioner estimates that 2,660 feet of curb line in the downtown district is thus illegally designated An improvised sand-blasting machine is expected to make quick work of the situation during the coming week, however

Greene Laid at Rest

ST. ALBANS, Vt, Dec 20—(I N. S)—Brief but impressive ceremonies marked the burial here today of United States Senator Frank L Greene.

Members of congress, state officials, relatives and friends stood in the snow-covered Greenwood cemetry while a detachment of soldiers from Fort Ethan Allen fired a salute followed by the sounding of "taps"

The view in the center shows part of the business section of Crete as it appears when brightly lighted every night. CAPONE LOSES LEADER OF HIS MURDER SQUAD

Chicago Crime Fighting Forces Making Unprecedented Progress.

Frank Nitti Must Serve 18 Month Term for Income Tax Fraud.

CHICAGO, Dec. 20—(INS)—Abetted by the "heavy artillery" provided by the federal government, Chicago's crime fighting forces tonight appeared to be making unprecedented progress.

The government's latest triumph came this afternoon when Frank Nitti, known as chief of Al Capone's murder squad, pleaded guilty to charges of income tax frauds and drew a sentence of eighteen months in Leavenworth penitentiary and was fined $10,000.

Nitti, called the city's "meanest" gangster, appeared voluntarily before Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward after his attorney was reported to have reached an agreement with the prosecutors. He was granted a stay of execution until January 10 and released under $50,000 bond.

Brother Faces Prison Term.

Federal juries have found two other chief lieutenants of Capone guilty of income tax evasions. They are Jack Guzik, reputed "business manager" of the syndicate, and Ralph Capone, brother of Al. Both face heavy fines and long prison terms.

"Scarface Al" himself was further entangled with the law this week when, through the persuasion of Judge John H. Lyle, state's attorney's aids began reviewing their records in an attempt to bring two old murder charges against him.

Both killings occurred when Capone was gaining a foothold in Chicago and developing the liquor traffic through which he is reported to have amassed $20,000,000. One of them, the assassination of "Big Jim" Colosimo in 1920, signalized the start of Capone's rise to notoriety and fortune, according to Judge Lyle.

Nitti Pleads Guilty.

Nitti pleaded guilty to five charges concerned with his alleged failure to pay income taxes during 1925, 1926 and 1927. Over this period, the government charges, Nitti owes $158,823.21 for tax and penalties covering an aggregate income of $742,887.21.

Nitti's indictment, voted last March by a federal grand jury, followed one of the most complex investigations ever undertaken by the intelligence unit of the internal revenue department. Months were required in checking bank accounts.

Investigators stated their belief that Nitti collected funds which ran into millions over the three-year period, but complete records of his transactions could not be found. His revenue was said to have come in the form of checks from regional distributors of alcohol.

Although alcohol was found to be the principal source of income, there was also evidence of large profits from gambling resorts and brothels.

After Nitti was indicted he evaded Detectives until late in November, when he was seized in a suburban apartment building.

Previous to his capture Nitti was understood to have escaped to Italy on a bogus passport. Rumors were widespread in the underworld that Nitti had quarreled with Al Capone.

The quarrel arose, according to report, when Nitti refused to accede to Capone's demand that he surrender "to take the heat off the mob." He supposedly was threatened with death.

CHICAGOAN GETS SET FOR HOLDUP BUT TRAP FAILS

CHICAGO, Dec. 20—(U. P.)—James Rose's fervent prayer that he would be held up just once more was answered today.

Rose, who runs a south side butcher shop, shivered and his teeth chattered as he told police what had happened before they rescued im from his ice box.

"I've been stuck up so many times I figure I'll do something to protect myself from being frozen to death in the ice box about once a week. I get a swell idea. First, I buy two guns and put one by the cash register and the other in the ice box.

"Then I get two police dogs and chain 'em in good spots where they'll come in handy if something happens. Then I hope for something to happen so I can get even. I did —this morning.

"In walks three holdup men. I'm not near the cash register so they grabbed that gun and $15 out of the drawer. Still it looked like things are going to break my way any how, for they threw me into the icebox as per usual. Right then I pick up the gun I have hidden in there take a bead and a strain on the trigger. What happens? Nothing. It's frozen stiff.

"Well I says to myself 'Here goes the works' and I pull the strings that set the police dogs loose. And what do they do? Do they take a death grip on those three robbers? No they make straight for the meat counter and tackle a side of beef.

NO STATE FUNDS FOR SCHOOL AID

Taylor Explains Failure Comply With Terms of Mallery Law.

Why the state of Nebraska has paid out nothing to school districts during the current biennium, under the terms of the Mallery law providing cash aid to schools which give specified courses in agriculture, home economics, and manual training, is explained in a circular letter which State Superintendent Taylor has mailed out to county superintendents, county treasurers, and superintendents of schools which would be entitled to share in the distribution.

The reason, says Taylor, is that no money was appropriated by the legislature in 1929 to take care of such payments. The fund of $100,000 which it did appropriate for state aid to weak districts is insufficient by nearly $10,000, he says, to meet all claims for ordinary aid under another law. Taylor reports that in the 1929 school year the $50,000 available for that purpose fell short by $4,788, and this year it will run approximately $5,000 behind the needs.

Claims Scaled Down.

Each claim presented for state aid was scaled down by the superintendent so as to give all districts their pro rata shares out of the money at hand. But nothing at all was left from which payments could be made under the Mallery law.

Taylor is recommending to the next legislature an increase of $15,000 in the total state aid allotment, so that he can pay all valid claims for regular state aid and also reimburse schools which maintain courses required by the Mallery act.

The funds appropriated for this biennium have been paid as herewith to school districts in the counties named:

Maitland, Army Flier, to Trial For Intoxication

SAN ANTONO, Tex., Dec. 20—(UP)—Handsome Lieut. Lester J. Maitland, on whose chest President Coolidge pinned the distinguished flying cross in 1927, tonight awaited in silence his trial here Monday by Eighth corps army area authorities on charges of violating the Ninety-sixth article of war. The ninety-sixth article of war covers "conduct of a nature to bring discredit upon the military service."

Maitland, an instructor in advanced flying at Kelley field here, must answer charges regarding his conduct following his injury last August 17 in a bus collision.

The judge advocate's office of the Eighth corps area will attempt to prove at the courtmartial Monday that Maitland was under the influence of liquor at the time of the accident and that he did not conduct himself properly at the Fort Sam Houston base hospital where he was taken for treatment.

Nurse to Testify.

A nurse is slated to testify.

Officers found guilty of violation of the ninety-sixth article may be subjected to penalty ranging from confinement to quarters for a brief period, to demotion and dismissal from the service.

Maitland was injured about the chest and badly cut in the accident. He was in the hospital some time recovering.

The officer flew to fame in 1927 when he and Lieut. Albert F. Hegenberger piloted the Bird of Paradise from Oakland to Honolulu, Hawaii, in 25 hours and 50 minutes. For this feat he was given the distingu- in South Dakota and also was ac- ished flying cross by President Coolidge at the latter's summer residence corded the gold medal of the National Aeronautical association.

AGENCY AIDS IN CHRISTMAS CHEER

Many Lincoln People Ask Social Welfare Society Dispense Their Contributions

Lincoln people are coming more and more to appreciate that Christmas is a home festival to be celebrated between parents and children as evidenced by the number of calls coming to the Council of Social Agencies and its social service exchange, and the Social Welfare society. Many individuals and organizations are asking that they be allowed to plan Christmas for some needy family in co-operation with the parents and the agency in charge of the case, according to Miss Ada Barker, secretary of the Social Welfare society.

Instead of giving baskets this year, one sorority has placed the money it would ordinarily use for that purpose, in the hands of a university student in social work, who will plan with the Social Welfare society to meet the Christmas needs of three families.

A church has asked the welfare organization to spend $25 in providing Christmas cheer for about five of the Social Welfare society's neediest families. A Sunday school class has asked to furnish milk for a month for some undernourished baby.

A P. E. O. chapter has asked the Social Welfare society to arrange for them to shop with a mother in purchasing necessary clothing for herself and children, in addition to the toys desired by the latter.

"Experience has taught us that charity brought directly into needy homes by outsiders is undesirable and has a pauperizing effect on the children, as well as dispelling much of the fine spirit which hovers around the observing of Christmas," Miss Barker said. "It is much better to do the Christmas planning dren's knowledge, and to allow a with the parents without the chil- welfare caseworker who visits the home regularly, has the parents' confidence, and knows the real needs of the case, to assist in directing the planning. We are deeply gratified that so many Lincoln people are coming to follow this practice."

Reformatory Inmates To Choose Member Honorary Order of Numbered Shirt

Organization Composed of Individuals Who Give Assistance to Prisoners.

Some friend of the inmates of the state reformatory at Lincoln will become No. 021 in the "Honorary Order of the Numbered Shirt" Sunday afternoon. The election of this member will take place immediately after chapel service, which begins at 2:30 o'clock.

All of the members of the "order" are men and women to whom the inmates may go with assurance that they will receive friendly advice and assistance both before and after their release. Methods of identification, featuring numbers beginning with "0," enable the young men to find these friends.

The order is sponsored exclusively by the men. It has neither officers nor meetings. It includes, among others, Bess Gearhart Morrison, Herbert Yenne, Rev. Paul Calhoun, Charles Shire, Rev. H. Erck.

Members of the organization often appear at chapel services at Hawthorne with their numbers displayed, so that the young inmates may learn who they are.

In discussing the benefits of the order, Supt. Gus Miller said, "It's often on the outside that this confidential contact and friendliness is most needed, and the members of the order never fail."

Mr. Miller has received letters from all sections of the country from members of the order, telling about visits of former inmates.

Rev. Paul Calhoun will be the speaker at Sunday's chapel service.

LINCOLN TRUST CO. CHRISTMAS PARTY

Employes Entertained at Annual Event; Snuffin Named Club President for Coming Year.

A number of new features marked the annual Christmas party of the Lincoln Trust Co., employes held Saturday evening at the Lincoln hotel. As the program opened, four pages appropriately dressed, and each with a shiny bugle, appeared at the door and announced the coming of Mrs. Santa Claus, impersonated by Bertha Hugg. The pages were little Evelyn Taylor, Richard Finney, Joyce Edwards and Henry Schleuning, jr. They brought forward a huge stocking which was more than five feet high and fastened to rollers in order that the pages could pull it from place to place around the table while Santa Claus distributed the favors, tiny china Santa Clauses.

The table was arranged in "U" shape and very attractively decorated. During the serving of the dinner many telegrams were received in the nature of "take-offs" on various employes relating to some event happening during the year. The climax came when a large telegram over a foot square was received by C. C. Carlsen, president. Its contents wished him a successful 1931 and pledged the support of all those in attendance. It was individually signed by all employes present.

The singing of specially prepared songs about the company, departments and individuals was led by C. O. Schlytern, assisted at the piano by Miss Marie Kunkler.

Election of officers of the employes club was announced as follows: George Snuffin, president; Georgia Dworak, vice president; Martha Krueger, secretary-treasurer. These officers will be responsible for the annual picnic and Christmas party next year.

Those in charge of arrangements for the party this year were: C. O. Schlytern, Howard Hadley, Georgia Dworak, Martha Krueger, Clarence Becker, Cora Schnurr, W. R. Mellor, Gladys Anderson, Zola Hawk, Edith Parrish, Lucy McReynolds, Elinor Elder, Charles Hinds, Fern Miller, George Snuffin and Adrian Keane.

Dixie Loop Plans Slash to 6 Clubs

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 20—(I. N. S.)—Declining to comment on rumors of a movement to slash the Southern baseball association from eight to six clubs, President John D. Martin said here tonight no club owner had asked him to call a meeting to discuss the proposed reduction.

"I have heard talk concerning a reduction," Martin said, "but until an official request for a meeting on the subject is submitted to me, there is no comment I can make."

Tom Watkins, manager of the Memphis club, who apparently is the leader of the slash movement, has announced he would ask President Martin to call a league meeting immediately after the holidays. Watkins intimated that several other club owners had joined him in the move reputations of lesser scope, were guilty of perjury in their own sworn testimony to the committee," said Norris. "This testimony was false and malicious."

Glenn Defends Lucas.

Senator Glenn (republican) of Illinois, came to the defense of Lucas. He said that while he "did not exactly approve what Lucas had done, it was no worse than that done by other people, especially democrats, in supporting the senator from Nebraska, when he was doing all he could to fight the republican administration and to oppose the republican nominee for president, while posing as a republican.

"The senator can have that opinion," replied Norris. "I do not care for it.'

Turning to Hoover's political views, Norris said:

"Mr. Hoover has a right to hold the views he has. I maintain, however, that power is growing more and more to be the greatest issue before the people in our modern civilization, and Mr. Hoover belongs to the other side—to the power trust as other honorable men do."

Literature Scurrilous.

Describing the literature Lucas sent out as scurrilous, false in its innuendoes, with no name signed to it, Norris said the Nye committee had scoured the country to find out who distributed it.

"This man," he said, referring to Lucas, "knew the truth, and he refused to give it, knowing the committee was trying to get it. Is that the act of an honest man? No honest man would act that way. He only admitted it when another conscience stricken business man (Stengel) told. That's the sin, the crime of it."

"And now we come to the senate. The senator from Illinois (Glenn) said what they did is no worse than what others have done. So it will soon come about that if a man steals he can go free if he can show that some one else also stole."

Norris charged that perjury had been committed before the committee, and said that some of the witnesses will soon be "communicating with their friends through prison bars."

Should Remove Lucas.

Senator Cutting (republican) of New Mexico declared Lucas should be removed from his post on the republican national committee. Cutting said he had conferred with Senator Fess, the republican national chairman on the subject of Lucas's removal, but quoted Fess as saying: "I have no power to remove Mr. Lucas."

Asked whether he would inaugurate a move to fire Lucas, Cutting said: "No, but I presume he will have to go."

The senate sat spellbound as Norris flayed the opposition to his republicanism. He explained his viewpoint about "party loyalty" and declared he would always vote his conscientious convictions.

"I don't see how any man in the senate can say it's justifiable to attack me as I have been attacked just because in his judgment I am not a good party man," said Norris.

Tired of Good Party Man.

"The country is sick and tired of good party men. The people know that when crime gets into high places, the good party man will cover up sin, crime, debauchery in his own party, and only expose it in the other party.

"This practice is doing more damage and harm to good government than any one other thing in the world.

"Conceal your own criminals is the slogan.

"I am the kind of republican who believes in exposing wrong and evil when I find it in my own party as well as when I find it in the other party."

"I want to purify my party. I want to wash my own dirty linen. I want the confidence and respect of honest men and women. That is what makes me a bad republican. That brought this condemnation on me. Lots of times I spoke out when I could have remained silent.

"One of the greatest sins in the body politic is to remain silent when it is your conscientious duty to speak."

Norris Not Ashamed.

Then banging his desk for emphasis and shouting at his republican colleagues, Norris added:

"If that makes me a bad republican I glory in it. I am not ashamed of it. I will live and die that way. Public life is not so sweet to me that it must be retained at the price of my conscientious convictions."

The senate chamber was crowded with silent listeners.

"When you get down to the dirty business in my campaign, you find that in 99 out of 100 instances the real reason for the opposition—the real wolf in sheep's clothing—was the power trust. It didn't care whether I was a republican or a democrat. They fought Costigan in Colorado because he was not a good democrat. They don't care about our politics.

"They only say that a man who won't bow to them, won't bend the knee and follow the lash of a whip of the political boss, is not a good republican. They may be right. If they are, then I am wrong."

Who Won Nomination.

Turning again to republican senators, Norris demanded to know who had won the republican senatorial nomination in Nebraska.

"Under the law I went into the primary campaign and I won," he said.

"I refuse to be driven out of the republican party by any renegade or any band of renegades who creep under assumed names and make false charges under assumed names. Drive on your apple cart. I care not."

Glenn replied to Norris. He said no matter how bad the circulars were "there is no occasion for Senator Norris to make a great and unusual martyr out of himself." He said hundreds of scurrilous circulars had been sent out against him, but that was part of political campaigns.

Nye Is Aroused.

Asserting that Norris was not a good republican, because he had not supported his party platform, Glenn aroused Nye, republican, of North Dakota.

"Who is a good republican?" Nye asked.

"I will say the senator from North Dakota is not a good republican," Glenn said.

"Do you think Hoover is a good republican?" Nye asked.

"Yes and I think he is getting to be a better republican all the time," Glenn replied. "He wasn't such a stalwart republican when he came in, but when he saw what is being done in the name of politics and he sees politics being played at the expense of human misery, he got to be a better republican."

Thinks Hoover Improved.

Nye asked about Hoover's support of President Wilson in 1919, when the latter asked for a democratic congress.

"Doesn't that make him a democrat?" Nye asked.

"I'll admit I didn't think so much of his republicanism a few years ago," Glenn replied.

The debate started when Senator Cutting, republican, New Mexico, asked Fess what he intended to do about Lucas' revelations before the senate committee. Fess replied "nothing" and denied a rumor Lucas had already submitted his resignation.

Then Senator Howell, Norris' colleague, declared "if the committee has any respect for its reputation it would ask for Lucas' immediate resignation."

Lucas Takes Blame.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20—(U. P.)—Executive Director Lucas of the republican national committee assumed personal responsibility today for his campaign activities against Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska. In effect, he sought to read Norris out of the republican party.

Testifying before the Nye investigation of campaign funds, Lucas said Norris opposed President Coolidge in 1924 and supported Alfred E. Smith against Herbert Hoover in 1928. He laid down a party regularity rule that brought an immediate challenge as to Mr. Hoover's bonafide republicanism.

"If Senator Norris isn't a democrat," said Lucas, "there isn't a democrat in the United States. Every republican regards him as a democrat. If you want to classify them, you must take them the way they vote."

"What about Mr. Hoover joining with President Wilson in 1918 to ask re-election of a democratic congress?" Nye asked.

"That's too far back," Lucas said. "I don't know."

"Then," continued Nye, "how about Mr. Hoover's democratic candidacy for the presidency in 1920 in Michigan?"

"Some one may have used his name," Lucas replied.

Senator Wagner, democrat, New York, inquired whether Lucas would apply his rule to Frank R. McNinch of North Carolina, who deserted the democratic party in 1928 to organize his state for Mr. Hoover. McNinch has just been appointed by Mr. Hoover to a democratic vacancy on the federal power commission. His party infidelity was raised by several democratic senators. Lucas said he knew nothing about McNinch.

Although Nye pressed hard to show some connection between Lucas and ku klux klan officers or others suspected by the committee of injecting religion in the Colorado, Nebraska and Montana campaigns, Lucas denied any link existed.

"Did Hiram Evans of the klan ever see you?" Nye asked.

"I never saw him and I don't even know him," Lucas replied.

Wagner asked if Lucas knew he had placed the printing order with the plant of the "Fellowship Forum," which is published here as an organ of the ku klux klan."

"I don't know it now," Lucas replied.

"Why did you pay in cash?" then pressed Wagner. "Was it because you wanted the payment to be unrevealed?"

"No."

Lucas absolved other members of the committee from knowledge of his activities. He said he borrowed the money and displayed a notice from the bank regarding the note. The entire printing bill, he said, was about $4,000 for literature sent to North Carolina, Kentucky, West Virginia, Ohio, Delaware, and "all other states where prohibition was being discussed."

"Did you help democrats in any other state than Nebraska?" Senator Dill, democrat, Washington, asked.

"I wasn't trying to help a democrat in Nebraska," Lucas shot back. "I was trying to beat a democrat. Senator Norris."

"Then" Dill continued, "you prefer the kind of a democrat Gilbert M. Hitchcock is to the kind Senator Norris is?"

"I certainly do," said Lucas.

Lucas denied all intention of concealing the printing transaction from the committee or any persons "entitled to know about it." He explained, he merely sought to keep it from Nebraska democrats. He insisted the request for literature had come from "John M. Fetters," but told Nye that Fetters "letters could not now be found in his files."

"Why didn't you report the expenditure?" Nye asked.

"The way I see it," Lucas replied, "no report is required until January 1."

Girl, 7, Attempts to Prevent Bank Robbery By Biting Bandit's Leg

NEW YORK, Dec. 20—(INS)—In her own little way, a 7-year-old girl attempted to frustrate a bank robbery here today.

Three bandits entered the Amsterdam avenue branch of the Seward National Bank & Trust Co., flourishing revolvers and threatening the woman manager of the branch. The 7-year-old started crying.

"Shut up," growled one of the robbers, attempting to push her down the stairs leading to the basement vaults.

She closed her mouth—but it was over the leg of the gunman. She sank her teeth into the bandit's calf and tenaciously held on until the robber wrenched himself loose just as the leader signalled that he had all the loot. The three men escaped with $31,000.

and outside the legislature to hatch up schemes for changing the political complexion of any of the present districts by adding new counties contiguous to them. The independent voting habits of Nebraska citizens have made so many counties doubtful that it cannot be foretold with any degree of certainty from one election to another which way they will go. These doubtful counties are interspersed among others of comparatively reliable political tendencies, so that it would be possible for either party to carry a district formed by grouping together those in a contiguous area.

However, the present third district is preponderantly democratic and can be depended on in any ordinary year to elect a congressman of that affiliation. It has been represented by only one republican, as compared with three democrats, in the last twenty years.

On the other hand, the sixth district never had a democratic congressman. In the old days of the farmers' alliance it elected three populists to congress in succession, but since 1900 it has been uniformly republican. That district could not possibly be made over to give a democratic congressional aspirant the advantage, under present conditions.

Two Districts With Big Cities.

Composition of the first district is largely fixed by the fact that it contains Lincoln and Lancaster county and the district must be built from territory around them. Similarly, the makeup of the second district is predetermined by the fact that it must include Omaha and Douglas county. These large units of population serve as spikes to hold the two districts pinned down within given areas. They can be made larger by adding more adjacent counties, but they cannot be shifted about in the process of reapportionment.

The third district, also, is largely immune from the possibility of radical change except its enlargement, being wedged into the northeast corner of the state between the immobile second district on the east and the oversized sixth district on the west, with the Platte river as its present southern boundayr.

This leaves only the fourth and fifth districts susceptible of extensive alteration in the redivision of the state for congressional purposes. One of these is salted for effacement from the map and absorption of its territory into other districts. The only question is which of them shall disappear.

Of course, the new districts will be renumbered from 1 to 5, and there will be no sixth district: but what is now the sixth will become as to its main area, the fifth. The present fifth may then be the fourth; or, it may be wiped out and divided up between those now known as the fourth and sixth. The possibility also exists that the old old fourth will be split and its parts given to the present first and fifth.

Alternative Plans Suggested.

Two surveys of population according to the new census have been made, showing different ways in which Nebraska might be cut up into five congressional divisions One of these, which may be called the Platte river boundary plan preserves the traditional North Platte and South Platte political demarcation of the state which has been observed for half a century or more. The other, designated as the "square block plan," reaches across the Platte to form districts embracing territory on both sides.

Under the former scheme, the existing fourth district would be obiterated. The latter retains the fourth as a modified and expanded district, and get rid of the fifth.

By adhering to the North Platte and South Platte division of the state, the legislature would emphasize the advantages of existing communication by main lines of railroad, main highways, and telephone systems, while at the same time keeping intact the long-established political alignment.

The alternative arrangement makes the districts more compact in a geographical way and would throw the entire western half of the state, from the South Dakota boundary on the north to the Kansas line on the south, into one big congressional unit. The reconstituted fourth district would reach across the Platte to annex three counties from the present sixth district and one from the third. The third, in turn, would extend its boundary on the west so as to take in half a dozen counties now included in the sixth.

No Great Political Changes.

In neither case would the political leanings of any district undergo marked change. The first, it is true, would gain three or four counties which, collectively, have a democratic trend; but it would also take in Gage, which is the third county in Nebraska in population and usually strongly republican. The fourth district would absorb other democratic counties in place of those it lost, and would get Buffalo, normally a g. o. p. citadel, to make up for the transfer of Gage.

The third would remain preponderantly democratic and the fifth (now the sixth) decisively republican under which ever of the two plans might go through. The second would lean toward the republican side, with Burt added to its present counties; but not more so in an appreciable degree than ti does now.

The greatest difference, so far as the first district is concerned, will be that with a group of new counties added Lancaster will no longer overshadow the outside territory. This county now has 53 per cent of the voting population in the whole district. Under one of the proposed apportionment plans its percentage would be cut to 38, and under the other to 36.

One advantage of the Platte river division plan over the "square block" plan is that the former slightly relieves the hugeness of the old sixth district by taking away four of its thirty-six counties and adding no others: whereas, the second scheme takes out nine counties but puts in nine others.

Comparative Population.

The whole state of Nebraska has 1,377,963 inhabitants by the 1930 census. Divided into five districts, the average number for each district is 275,593.

It will be seen that the proposed territorial divisions closely approximate this average and make a fairly even allotment of population, as nearly as could be attained by following county boundary lines. The figures by districts are as follows:

The first district, under the Platte river plan would contain 12 counties; under the other plan, 11.

Second district — Under either plan, 4 counties.

Fourth—Platte plan, 24 counties; square block plan, 20.

Fifth—Platte plan, 32 counties; square block plan, 36.

Geographically central points in the districts, according to the Platte river apportionment basis, would be Lincoln, Blair, Norfolk, Holdrege, and Thedford, respectively. If the square block plan were followed, the approximate centers would be Palmyra, Blair, Neligh, Grand Island, and Stapleton, respectively.

Old Districts Not Well Balanced.

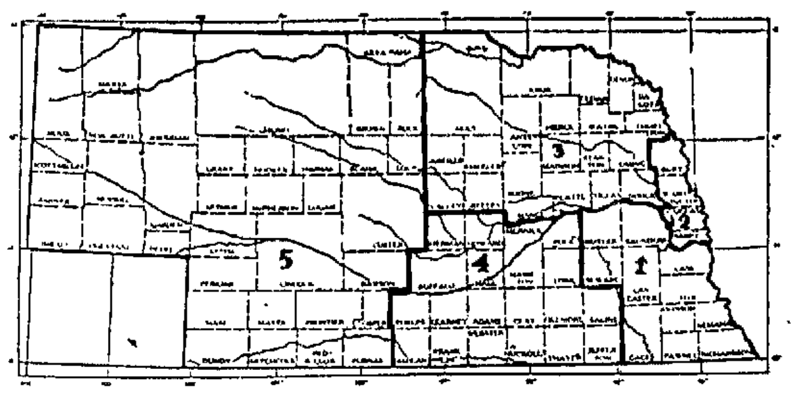
Considerable inequality now exists in the population of the congressional districts. The number of inhabitants credited to each of the six present divisions is as herewith:

First, 188,671; second, 255,479; third, 257,140; fourth, 179,667; fifth, 191,408; sixth, 305,598.

All districts except the fifth gained in population this year over 1920. It lost 2,514.

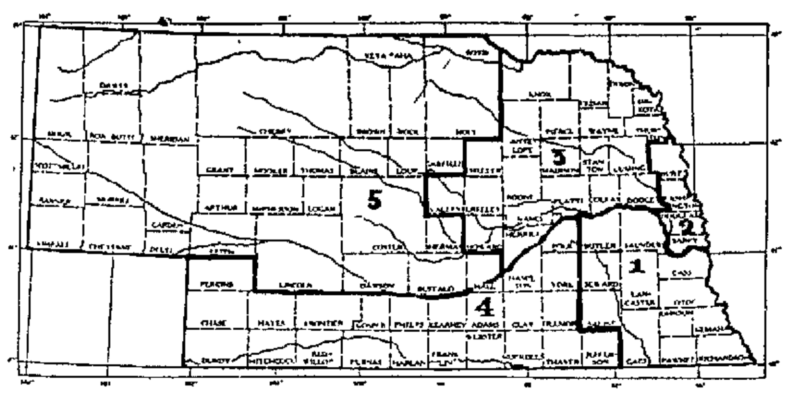
The present congressional apportionment of the state was made following the census of 1890, when Nebraska's representation was increased from three to six.

Platte River Districting Plan



This scheme of dividing up the state of Nebraska into new congressional division would preserve the traditional political alignment of "North Platte" and "South Platte." What is now the fourth district would be wiped out, transferring some of its counties to the first district and the remainder to the present fifth district, which would then become the fourth.

Block Reapportioning Proposal



If the method of districting here shown should be adopted, the present fifth district would be cut in two, about half of it going into the new fifth (now the sixth) district and the other half being incorporated with the fourth. The Platte river would lose its old distinction as the political boundary line between northern and southern Nebraska.

a 14 year term in the penitentiary for participation in the robbery.

Robbed At Noon.

The Hay Springs bank was robbed at noon, September 18, when the bandit gang entered the place and held up Tom Morrison, the assistant cashier of the bank. About $14,000 was taken—half in cash and half in securities.

Morrison was locked in the vault by the robbers but escaped when the lock failed to catch.

Step in Roundpp.

Sentencing of Domnisse, alleged leader of the Hay Springs gang and Cook marks another step in the roundup of the bandits who robbed six Nebraska banks in less than thirty days last fall. Trailing of the bandits has gone steadily forward since the series of depredations.

With the sentencing of the two men at Alliance Saturday, the number of Nebraska bank robbers sentenced to penal institutions in Nebraska from the six robberies was brought to eight with two other suspects still under arrest in this state and a suspect in the Lincoln National Bank & Trust Co. robbery in custody of Iowa officers.

Three of the five members of the Hay Springs gang have been captured and sentenced. The three members of the Nemaha gang have been captured and sentenced. The two men who held up the Genoa bank are in the penitentiary.

to be out about January 1. This building is to cost $150,000 which, with those at Hastings, will increase the aggregate for the two cities to $1,020,000.

Hospital At North Platte.

Preliminary plans already are out for a hospital at North Platte. It is to be erected by the Great Plains Hospital association at a cost of $140,000. An irrigation building for which bids will be filed December 27, is to be built at Bridgeport. The estimated cost of a Central Power company office at Grand Island is $85,000. A new school at Cozad, bonds for which have been authorized, will cost $100,000. Plans are now being drawn and bids are to be taken early in February.

Seward is to vote again soon on a bond proposal for a new school. At Tekamah the money is already available for a school. Maginnis & Schaumberg are the architects. They have started a survey to determine the needs and cost.

Hastings College Building.

Holdrege is to have a new hotel. It is to be five stories high. Built of fire proof materials it will have seventy-five rooms. Construction is expected to start about March 1.

The building program at Hastings college provides for a new main building to cost $300,000; a heating plant, $50,000; chapel, $150,000; and library, $150,000. In addition to this Taylor hall is to be completed at a cost of another $100,000.

The annual meeting of the Lincoln Builders bureau has been set for January 9. Five new directors are to be elected.

OFFICERS OBTAIN CONFESSION FROM MAN AT WYMORE

lows: Bigler and Baldwin were in their farm home Thursday night when Bigler asked Baldwin how many hogs he had gotten away with and what he was going to do about it. Baldwin said he had gotten away with all and if there had been any more he would have gotten away with them too.

Tells of Alleged Fight.

Both started for a baseball bat in the corner. Bigler said he got the best hold although both reached it.

Bigler's story of what followed, according to County Attorney Peterson, is "I struck him on the head with the bat and he fell to the floor. He then started up again and I hit him again. I don't know how many times I hit him. After he did not show fight any longer, I opened the door which leads down into the basement and I shoved him into the basement."

Bigler then is alleged to have carried bed clothing down into the basement to put under the body. He said he didn't know whether Baldwin was dead then or not. Bigler claimed he went to Lincoln, Friday morning but returned Friday night to the man's home.

Before daylight Saturday morning, he is said to have told the Kansas officers he dragged Baldwin's body out of the basement, up through the stairway which leads outside, and placed the body in Baldwin's truck.

The story alleged to have been given the county attorney is that Bigler then drove the truck south of his farm and then turned west 30 or 40 rods and tried to run the truck over the ridge along the road. The wheels struck against the bank, according to the story.

Bigler then said, according to the county attorney, that he went home and brought his car to the spot. He tried to pull the truck down over the embankment but that the rope broke.

Come to Wymore Saturday.

His alleged confession is that he freed the front wheels of the truck and by cutting away part of the embankment pushed it entirely over the embankment. He got into his car and returned home. He claims he took the bloody bed clothing and carried it to a ravine where he dropped the clothing and then covered it with dirt. He then started for Wymore, according to his story, leaving his place about daylight Saturday.

County Attorney Peterson announced that he was not satisfied with the man's story and that he would conduct a further investigation. He claimed that fresh blood was found near the Baldwin home Saturday morning.

The two men had been in business together raising hogs. A sale was to have been held here last Wednesday but it had apparently been postponed.

MAJOR SHEPARD AWAITS VERDICT

been offered during the day that the jury would render its verdict within two hours.

Judge Arthur J. Hopkins left for his home, directing a court attendant to call him if the jury reached a decision.

Shepard Goes Out to Eat.

Major Shepard remained seated at the defense table until the jury ordered dinner. Then he went to a nearby restaurant for a hasty meal.

He appeared to have an air of confidence. He talked with members of the defense staff and smoked a cigar as he waited in the courtroom.

Members of the jury returned to the federal building at 7 p. m., from dinner and resumed consideration of the case.

The courtroom crowd had thinned out during absence of the jury from the building, but upon its return there was a rush for seats and within a few minutes the room again was packed with spectators.

Three Possible Verdicts.

KANSAS CITY, Kas., Dec. 20—(UP)—The case of Maj. Charles A. Shepard, army surgeon charged with murdering his wife, Mrs. Zenana McCoskey Shepard, was given to a federal court jury here late today.

Judge Arthur J. Hopkins completed his instructions and committed the major's fate to the twelve Kansas farmers and tradesmen at 2:58 p. m.

The major listened closely as the judge told the jurors three possible verdicts.

They may "find the defendant guilty as charged in the indictment," This verdict carries the death penalty.

The second alternative is that the defendant is "guilty as charged in the indictment, but without capital punishment.

Third is acquittal.

Judge Reviews Case.

Taking advantage of the Federal court rule which allows a judge to comment on the evidence, Judge Hopkins briefly reviewed the entire story of Major Shepard's life and love for two women, Zenana, his wife, and Miss Grace Brandon, San Antonio stenographer.

A large crowd of spectators listened throughout the instructions. Many of them had not gone home for lunch for fear of losing their places in the courtroom.

Major Shepard himself appeared undisturbed while the judge recounted the evidence. A speedy verdict was predicted and not a single spectator left the courtrom when the jurors filed out to start their deliberations.

Judge Goes Home.

At 4:20 p. m. the jury asked and received a copy of the judge's instructions and ten minutes later saying he would be available for immediate call in case of a verdict. Judge Hopkins left for his home,

Sardius M. Brewster, United State District Attorney, whose large frame and great bush of white, rumpled hair lent impressiveness to his words made the last plea before the jury.

His voice boomed through the courtroom at times as he condemned Major Shepard as a man who "maliciously and with forethought" poisoned his wife so that he might marry another woman.

Then he would almost whisper while reciting details of Mrs. Shepard's life, which he described as that of a faithful wife and unassuming homemaker.

Says Robbed of Life.

Brewster portrayed her as being robbed of her home, then of her life, by the major's love for youthful, blonde-haired Miss Brandon, who is 24 years old.

The prosecutor went over steps of government evidence designed to prove that Major Shepard administered bichloride of mercury to his wife in small doses. He contended that the army surgeon attempted to cover up his alleged plot by calling many other army physicians during Mrs. Shepard's illness and planting confusing suggestions as to its cause.

Harry S. Class, Denver, of the defense preceded Brewster. Final arguments began yesterday with pleas by L. E. Wyman, assistant United States district attorney, for the government, and C. L. Kagey, former American minister to Finland, for the defense.

Two Weeks of Testimony.

The taking of testimony began two weeks ago after several days were consumed in selection of a jury.

Scores of witnesses testified at the trial, among them Miss Brandon and the major. The girl wept frequently as she was portrayed by the defense as "a common, army post, flapper gold digger," who allegedly capitalized on the major's loneliness and love for her. She has not been in the courtroom since her testimony last week.

Fashionably gowned army officers' wives and the leading medical men in the service were called to the stand.

The trial has been attended by throngs, consisting largely of women, some of them old and others school girls with books in their arms.

YOUTH PAINFULLY BURNED SATURDAY IN GAS EXPLOSION

When gasoline with which he was cleaning his trousers exploded, Robert Lee, jr., 15, colored, suffered painful burns to his face and hands shortly after midnight Saturday. The gasoline fumes were ignited by a gas stove in a room at the home of his parents Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee, 2210 O street.

The youth was taken to the St. Elizabeth's hospital in a City ambulance. Dr. George E. Lewis, city physician, attended him.

Miss Sebastian disclosed that she had been married before and divorced at Birmingham, Ala., six years ago. May Deport Ponzi

BOSTON, Dec. 20—(I. N. S.)—Charles Ponzi, one-time so-called "financial wizard," serving a term in state's prison, was notified today by Mrs. Anna C. M. Tillinghast, federal immigration commissioner, that his crimes involved moral turpitude. Ponzi was convicted on charges of using the mails in a scheme to defraud and larceny.

When he is released—and he is not eligible for parole until October 1931—he will be arrested on a deportation warrant charging he was guilty of moral turpitude, according to federal authorities.

Young Boston Pilot Is Killed

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 20—(UP)—Maryan Freiter, young Boston pilot, who was flying here to spend the Christmas holidays with relatives, was killed when his plane crashed in a clump of woods near here late today.

The plane burst into flames as soon as it struck and Freiter, trapped in the cockpit, was burned to death. His body was identified by relatives employed on the estate.

Youth Walks Out Of County Jail At Falls City; Sentence Norfolk Man For Shooting Niece

TEXAN ESCAPES DOWN ELEVATOR

Houston Youth Serving For Stealing Brass Makes Getaway.

Term Almost Expired, But Thought to Be Wanted Elsewhere.

FALLS CITY, Neb., Dec. 20—(U. P.)—Jack Delaney, 18, Houston, Tex. escaped from the county jail here today by taking the elevator from the top floor of the county court house and walking out of the building.

Only a few days remained of his 30 day sentence for stealing brass from the Missouri Pacific railroad. Authorities here believe he hastened his flight when he learned officers were communicating with Oklahoma authorities. Delaney is believed connected with a crime in Tulsa, officers here said

Delaney disconnected the speaking tube leading from the jail to the lower floors of the court house to prevent others prisoners tipping the sheriff off that he was about to escape. The three other prisoners made no effort to escape.

Ben Medley, Omaha youth, made good his escape a month ago from the jail in the same manner used by Delaney today.

The jail was believed "escape proof." Officers have already made plans for strengthening the safety devices about the building.

Drouth Fails Affect Rivers Of Nebraska

U. S. Geological Survey Shows Nearby States Suffered Losses.

Although seriously decreasing the water of streams in nearby states, the summer's drouth had little affect on Nebraska's rivers, according to a survey released this week by Robert Follansbee of Denver, district engineer of the United States geological survey

Mr. Follansbee's report is as follows:

"In considering the relative flow of Nebraska streams, exclusive of the Missouri river, all but one show discharges for 1930 within 11 per cent of those of 1929, some being greater and others less

"It is, therefore, evident that the drouth had little effect on Nebraska streams.

South Dakota Hard Hit.

"By contrast, the streams in the adjacent state of South Dakota were nearly all below normal, the 1930 discharge being as low as 23 per cent in the Cheyenne river, while for most of the streams it was about 50 per cent.

"These stream flow records are maintained by the U. S. Geological Survey in co-operation with the army engineers.

"The following table shows the total discharge of the principal streams for the water years ending September 30, 1929 and 1930 and the comparison between the two. The year 1929 was one of almost normal precipitation and it may be assumed that the discharge of the streams for that year was also normal."

Also, the use of our complete establishment is offered without additional charge. Each patron can thus see for himself what Hodgman's complete service will cost. This fact assures him of absolute ease and the utmost freedom in purchasing goods in keeping with his own wishes and financial circumstances.

LINCOLN BOOSTS LONGER AIR LINE

Local Delegates Attend Conference at Salina Urging Extension.

Lincoln was represented Saturday at a conference in Salina, Kas., which had for its purpose extending to Dallas, Tex., and Minneapolis, Minn., the north and south airplane line which passes through here. The present terminals are at Omaha and Oklahoma City.

At the conference from here were S. A. Sanderson, president of the chamber of commerce, and Joe W. Seacrest. They left early Saturday morning for Salina, expecting to return Sunday afternoon at 2:30. The trip was made in one of the trimotored planes of the Western Air Service corporatiton which operates the line through here, a plane going in each direction daily.

Cities represented at the conference included Lincoln, Salina, Omaha, Minneapolis, Wichita, Hutchinson, Topeka, Oklahoma City and Dallas. Representatives of the air line company also were present.

Extension of the line to Minneapolis and Dallas, will be a distinct advantage to Lincoln and Omaha, as well as Minneapolis, and the southern cities, it is contended. Under present conditions mail, passenger and express north of Omaha must either go to Chicago and then out, through the northwest, or direct to Minneapolis by train from Omaha. In either case there is a considerable loss of time compared with the speed that could be made if there was an air line from here to Minneapolis. An air connection to the Minnesota city also would speed communication to points west of there.

A similar situation exists with regard to cities west and south of Oklahoma City. Connection with Dallas would bring many of these places much closer to Lincoln. This not only would expedite mail and passenger traffic, as well as express, but it also would open the way to increasing Lincoln's trade territory for severeal lines of goods. This also would be true with a northern connection, it is pointed out.

Extending the line would also benefit the Twin Cities and Dallas by bringing them into close contact with the transcontinental air line which passes through here, two planes going each way daily. Under present conditions to reach by air territory west of Lincoln on the air line, requires several hours longer than would be the case is there was a direct connection with Lincoln.

MAY FORCE VOTE ON SUNDAY GOLF

Operator of Miniature Course Indicates Election Planned.

Offered to Wait Spring Polling If Permitted Playing in Meantime.

George A. Armbruster, local miniature golf operator, and one of the sponsors of the referendum petition to permit Sunday opening of the "peewee" courses which may force the city council to call a special election, declared late Saturday that, "As far as I know the special election will go through."

Lloyd McMaster, president of the Lincoln Miniature Golf association, was non-committal Saturday. Several weeks ago, he indicated to Mayor Don L. Love that the petition sponsors might agree to withdraw the document long enough so as to enable the council to submit the proposal at some regular primary or election.

McMaster having failed to report any such agreement, Mayor Love Saturday requested a formal opinion of the city attorney on what are the council's obligations under the city charter.

At the time of McMaster's interview with Love, it was intimated that the miniature golf men feared that the approximately $5,000 expense to the city of a special election might hurt the chances of passing the amendment.

In answer to this argument, Armbruster commented Saturday:

"The council doesn't have to go to the expense of a special election. The charter gives it the right to pass the amendment itself."

Offered to Compromise.

Armbruster also revealed that the miniature golf men had offered to postpone the vote on their petition, but that their terms had been turned down by Mayor Love. Armbruster said that the association had asked, in return for the delay, permission to operate their golf courses on Sundays until the time of the election.

He pointed out that new amusement businesses had been permitted when first inaugurated this summer to run on Sunday. Later, the council requested an opinion on the legality of the Sabbath operation from City Attorney F. A. Peterson. Mr. Peterson, in a formal statement, advised the commissioners that the golf courses came under the charter restrictions against Sunday amusements, and that they could not legally operate on Sunday.

As the situation stands, the miniature golf association has on file with the city council a petition large enough to force the city council either to pass the amendment itself or to call a special election sometime before the middle of February, under the city charter. The charter provides that one of these two courses must be taken within seventy days after the filing of the petitions. The first election is the city primary the first week in April.

RETAILERS PLAN FOR CONVENTION

Program Theme Will Be The New Independent Merchant.

Dr. Fordyce Will Be One Of Main Speakers at Omaha Meeting.

Plans for the silver anniversary convention of the Federation of Nebraska Retailers at Omaha on February 11 and 12 are completed according to announcement by Curry W. Watson, secretary of the organization. Headquarters are to be at the Fontenelle hotel.

The Federation of Nebraska Retailers is unique in that it is the only association in the country, in which several of the principal retail lines are represented in one organization, and yet each group has its own distinct association.

To the end that the independent merchant may study himself and his own methods, the federation has prepared a score card by which the merchant may examine himself and his own business, to determine from this ideal standpoint wherein he is failing and wherein he is succeeding. The topics of this score card will form the basis for the round table discussions at the convention, conducted under competent leaders at which all in attendance may take part.

Dr. Fordyce Speaker.

The speakers for the convention are all outstanding successes in their particular fields, reports Mr. Watson. The keynote address will be given by Dr. Charles Fordyce of the University of Nebraska. His subject will be "Characteristic Qualities of the New Independent Merchant." Dr. Fordyce was one of the committee of three chosen by the Thomas A. Edison foundation to conduct examinations of young men from all parts of the country, to find persons qualified to receive training to take up the work of Mr. Edison. Dr. Fordyce is therefore recognized as a national authority and a personnel expert.

Another outstanding convention speaker will be Dr. Elmore Petersen, dean of the extension division of the University of Colorado. Dr. Petersen has been closely associated with the Retail Merchandise association of Colorado as well as other mercantile organizations in that state. He has traveled extensively, not only in this country, but around the world. He has been highly recommended to Nebraska as a convention speaker by Roger Jones, secretary of the Retail Merchants association of Colorado.

The Western Passenger association has granted reduced railroad fares to the convention on the identification certificate plan, round trip tickets at either "fare and one-half" limit of February 17, or "fare and three-fourths" limit thirty days from date of sale.

The identification certificate must be secured from the secretary, and presented to the ticket agent at the time the round trip ticket is purchased. If any merchant desires a certificate, he should write to the federation, and request that one be mailed him.

This coming week they will sing again at the post office from 10:30 until 11 o'clock, at Miller and Paine store between 12:30 and 1, at Rudge and Guenzel store from 1 until 1:30 and in the rotunda of the state capitol from 2 until 3 p. m.

The Lincoln high double sextet composed of Valeda Davis, Jane Van Sickle, Jean Walt, Susan Elizabeth Stoll, Dorothy Smith, Elizabeth Moomaw, Doris Cochran, Rosemary Anderson, Maren Dobson, Mary Yoder, Dorothy Clements, and Helen Eppler will sing at the postoffice from 5 to 6 on Monday afternoon and from 4 to 5 o'clock at Gold's store. That evening a group of Girl Reserves at Twenty-sixth and O school will tour the hospitals, dressed in the carol costumes, and will sing a group of numbers at each place, including the Lincoln general, St. Elizabeth's, Bryan Memorial, and Tabitha Home for older people.

A sextet from Bethany high school, directed by Miss Nina Wakelin has appeared on many occasions already and has a heavy schedule for the week. Tuesday afternoon they will sing at the library, the Union bus depot, and the postoffice. Tentative plans also include the lobbies of the Cornhusker and Lincoln hotels.

On Tuesday evening the double sextet from Lincoln high school will sing at the Burlington depot and on several downtown corners.

Other service work of Girl Reserves has included supplying over 400 gifts for children who are attending Indian schools. The names of boys and girls were received from the national Girl Reserve headquarters and include those attending school at the Presbyterian Mission in Leupp, Arizona; the Blackfoot Indian school at Browning, Mont.; the Santee Normal Training school at Niobrara, Neb., and the Indian school at Ruvshille, Nebraska. Presents have been given by Girl Reserves at Jackson high school, Teachers College high school, and Hayward, Bethany, Everett and Hartley junior Girl Reserves.

The Havelock Girl Reserves have repaired and dressed dolls for the city fire department, and five families have received large boxes of food and gifts from clubs at Irving junior high, teachers college high, Everett junior high, Elliott, and Jackson junior high.

Public Makes Own Phonograph Records New Local Studio

Lincoln people are given the opportunity to make phonograph records of their own voices, music or speeches at the Speak-O-Phone studio recently opened at 416-18 Liberty Theater building, under the management of Charles V. Kettering.

The records are electrically made, and are reputed to reproduce as perfectly as commercial products. They are suggested by Mr. Kettering for either personal enjoyment, as gifts, or to be used for advertising purposes. Brief tests are given free of charge.

The Speak-O-Phone records have been successfully made for a number of years in the large mercantile and music houses in the east. G. Schirmer, Inc., one of the largest music firms in the world, has recently installed the equipment.

KANSAN FREED IN DEATH CASE

Topeka Man Acquitted On Charge of Killing Business Associate.

TOPEKA, Kas., Dec. 20—(UP)—L. K. Kimmel, former head of the Kaw Packing Co. of Topeka, stood cleared tonight of charges of instigating the murder of his partner, Roy Kramer.

A jury in Shawnee county District court late today returned a verdict finding him not guilty of the indictment on which he was tried.

Kimmel was accused of having induced Virgil Pointer, an employe at the plant, to waylay Kramer on a dark stairway at the packing plant and kill him with a blow on the head.

Pointer, who confessed murdering Kramer, was the government's star witness. He told of striking the fatal blow and taking the body to a lonely road, where it was left beside Kramer's automobile to make it appear he was killed while repairing a tire.

Pointer Serving Life Term.

Pointer testified that Kimmel induced him to commit the murder. Pointer now is serving a life sentence for the crime.

Fred Glover, another employe at the plant, testified Kimmel had asked him to assist Pointer in the plot but that he refused.

Love affairs of Kramer and Kimmel were drawn into the testimony and it was brought out that both of them, although married, had had "dates" with girls who worked at the plant. Kimmel testified in his own defense, denying any connection with the murder plot.

Must Keep Station Agent at Marion

Application of the Burlington railroad to substitute a custodian for its agent at Marion, Neb., was denied in an order issued by the state railway commission Saturday.

The railroad had asked the change, claiming the agency constituted an unnecessary expense. The commission held, however, that the volume of business at the station, justified keeping an agent there. It authorized the railroad to discontinue telegraph agency service if it desires.

Marion is an unincorporated town of 150, about 20 miles southeast of McCook. It is situated on the St. Francis line between Cedar Bluffs, Kas., and Danbury, Neb. Total earnings at the station last year amounted to $28,824.92.

Grace Brandon Says She Still Loves Shepard

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 20—(U. P.)—The love of Grace Brandon for Maj. Charles A. Shepard has survived the ordeal of his trial here, the young San Antonio stenographer admitted tonight as she prepared to leave for home.

In a copyrighted interview with the Kansas City Journal-Post, Miss Brandon, who was called as a government witness at the officer's trial on a charge of murdering his wife, said:

"The sensible thing for Major Shepard to do if he is acquitted—and I think everybody hopes he will be—would be to marry some good woman, some wealthy woman near his own age.

"But—I don't want him to be sensible.

"My feelings toward him have not changed. I loved him before this trial started and our engagement never has been broken by me.

"He is the only man I ever loved. But for his own good, perhaps, it would be better for him to find some woman nearer his own age.

"I can't give him money. That is, not much. I will inherit some, of course, from my parents, but I would not be wealthy. The major has been awfully good to me. I want only to be good to him."

DROUTH AID BY STATE FINISHED

More Than 3,500 Carloads Of Hay Shipped From Nebraska.

Little Additional Feed Will Be Sent To Stricken Areas.

All the assistance that the Nebraska department of agriculture is able to give to drouth relief efforts in other states has been furnished, H. J. McLaughlin, secretary of agriculture, announced Saturday at the statehouse.

While much remains to be done in giving relief to areas stricken by prolonged heat and lack of moisture last summer, there is nothing further that can be done by the state government here according to Secretary McLaughlin.

Further measures for drouth relief are dependent upon financial organizations in the drouth areas and on federal relief, the Nebraska secretary believes.

While the Nebraska department has wound up its work in connection with the drouth relief program, its contribution remains no small one in the opinion of Secretary McLaughlin.

Figures on shipments of Nebraska hay to drouth areas which have been asked by the agriculture secretary are not yet complete. Those received from the Union Pacific and Burlington railroads, however, indicate that more than 3,500 carloads of Nebraska hay were shipped into the drouth region.

Moved At Cheap Rate.

This hay was all moved under the emergency freight rates on hay and feed to the drouth region. As a result, Mr. McLaughlin says, more than 3,500 carloads of Nebraska hay went to market in points where none has gone previously because freight rates were too high to make such shipments feasible.

The emergency rates expired December 1.

Much of the hay shipments resulted from information collected by the department of agriculture and disseminated from that office to drouth relief agencies, Secretary McLaughlin believes.

Several mimeographed bulletins were prepared by the department showing owners of hay and feed supplies, kind, amount and their location. The bulletins were distributed to more than 1,100 drouth stricken counties, representing more than a third of all the counties of the country.

The bulletins also went to state drouth committees, railroads, bankers and other agencies assisting in drouth measures. The Nebraska work was especially praised at Washington early in the fall at meetings of state drouth relief committees because of the completeness of the lists of hay and feed supplies furnished the drouth areas. The bulletins instructed those planning purchases to communicate directly with Nebraska farmers so that the agriculture department served only as an information and not as a marketing agency.

Feed Still Available.

While much feed is still available in the state, Secretary McLaughlin expects little more to go to the drouth regions because of two factors. In the first place, the removal of the emergency freight rates has increased the cost of supplying Nebraska feed to the drouth areas. Farmers who were unable to raise funds for purchasing adequate feed supplies previously will have difficulty raising funds in the near future, Secretary McLaughlin fears.

In the second place, he believes that the increased cattle feeding in the state this year will absorb most if not all of the remaining feed supplies. Nebraska farmers, he points out, were late to start feeding because of the weak prices and resulting losses last year.

Indications now are, however, that the total feeding will be greater than last year.

DROUTH CUTS HONEY.

RENO—The commercial production of honey in 1930 in Nevada will be about 70 per cent of last year due to the drouth, according to present estimates. About 69,848 pounds of extracted honey and 10,230 cases of comb honey will be produced this year.

C. OLMSTEAD NEW DAIRY CLUB HEAD

Named to Succeed Carl Becker: Other Officers Are Re-elected.

C. Olmstead, Roca, was elected president of the Lancaster County Dairy Herd Improvement association at its annual meeting held at the courthouse Saturday afternoon. He takes the place of the late Carl Becker who was president since the organization was formed six years ago.

All other officers were re-elected. F. J. Egger, Lincoln, is vice president; C. E. Cummings, Cheney, secretary-treasurer, and Leon Egger and F. L. Stacy, both of Lincoln, members of the board of directors.

E. C. Scheidenhelm, connected with the extension division at the college of agriculture, discussed reasons for continuing dairy herd improvement work. The work of the organizations has shown, he stated, that dairying still pays well when compared with other agricultural interests. The work, Scheidenhelm said, goes farther than merely keeping records. It promotes better methods of pasturing and the selection of improved sires, aiding to fit the dairy program in with the rest of the farm interests.

Pfeiffer Again Tester.

George Pfeiffer, Sprague, was selected again as tester. He has held this office since the formation of the Lancaster county organization.

A resolution adopted by the organization paying homage to the work and memory of Carl Becker, its former president, follows, in part:

"Whereas the said Carl Becker has given such devoted service to this organization as its president since the association was organized, it is in order that we express our appreciation of his service to the association, to his ability and worth as a citizen, to his standing as a husband and father. Therefore,

"Be it resolved, that this association express its debt for his counsel and constructive leadership, and

"Resolved, that his death at this time is a great loss to the association as well as to his community.

"Resolved, that this association extend deep sympathy to the immediate family and relatives and all of the neighbors and citizens who were associated with Mr. Becker in the many enterprises to which he gave his interest and effort."

GERDES DENIES SEEKING POST

Not Candidate for Board Of Control Job To Be Filled Soon.

Henry C. Gerdes of Falls City is not a candidate for appointment to his old place on the board of control, it was learned Saturday. Mr. Gerdes had been mentioned among those who might be considered for the position on the board which Governor-elect Bryan will fill in January and when he was here last week to confer with Bryan some people surmised that he was seeking the appointment. This was not the case however as Gerdes came to Lincoln merely to put in a word for several of his friends who are asking for state jobs.

Governor-elect Bryan had nothing on appointments to give out Saturday. He discussed further with newspapermen the subject of "propaganda," which he said has been directed at himself for the purpose of influencing his selections to certain positions; but what he said was a reiteration of his previous statements.

Fears "Embarrassment."

The idea has been suggested in political circles that one of Bryan's reasons for holding back his appointments to "key positions" in the code organization is that if he should announce them now, the republican incumbents who are to be displaced might do something to embarrass his administration when it goes in.

Those who hold that view think when the time comes the new governor will spring a full-sized slate of appointees for all the principal jobs at the capitol and give the present officeholders their walking papers on short notice.

In the case of William H. Smith, already named as state tax commissioner, no such occasion for delay existed, since the previous occupant of that office, Harry W. Scott, had resigned and left it in charge of a subordinate. Mr. Scott stated at the time he resigned that he would be glad to assist his successor in any way possible.

Indiana Bank Robber Is Shot

Bandit and Vigilante Wounded: 3 Captured In Pitched Battle.

WARSAW, Ind., Dec. 20—(I.N.S.)—One bandit was seriously wounded, a vigilante was slightly wounded and three other bandits were captured in a gun battle today after the bandits robbed the Bank of Seward at Burket of $400 and attempted to rob the Etna bank at Etna Green, small towns near here.

A posse surrounded the bandits in a wood near here after their car smashed into a tree. In the battle that followed the bandit leader, who gave his name as Al Johnson, 25, of Chicago, was perhaps mortally wounded and Robert Knepper, a member of the posse, received a flesh wound.

Kidnap Mail Clerk.

Earlier in the day shortly after they had attempted to rob the Etna bank, the bandits kidnaped Clarence Pressnal, 75, a mail clerk, who was passing the bank just as they fled. They tied Pressnal to a bridge, but he was released later by a passerby.

Wednesday three bandits were killed and two captured following the holdup of the Clinton, Ind., bank.

SAUNDERS FOURTH IN TOTAL WEALTH

In going over assessment and taxation statistics of Nebraska, State Accountant C. A. Sommer finds that Saunders county stands fourth in total wealth. It is outranked only by Douglas, Lancaster, and Gage in the order named.

Saunders county's total tangible property assessed for this year is $62,710,872, Mr. Sommer finds. Of intangibles, it has $2,796,575 of class A items, money, bank deposits, etc., and $2,057,395 in class B notes, stocks, bonds, etc.

As the population is slightly over 20,000, this is an average of $3,000 of tangible wealth for each person living in Saunders county. The total, however, includes property of railroads, telegraph and telephone companies, and other concerns not resident there, so that the actual per capita tangible wealth locally owned is much less, though very substantial in amount.

8,335	Town lots	4,446,[illegible]
71,974	Cattle	2,092,[illegible]

5,887	Automobiles and trucks	[illegible]
1,547	Pianos	[illegible]
	Farm Machinery	677,445

Acreage and production of the county's leading crops for the 1930 season were: Wheat, 45,942 acres, 976,840 bushels; corn, 184,845 acres, 4,251,504 bushels; oats, 52,167 acres, 1,851,344 bushels; sweet clover, 29,[illegible] acres; hay, 22,729 acres, 25,[illegible] tons; and alfalfa, 10,362 acres, 29,057 tons.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

DEALERS REPORT SPEEDING UP OF CHEVROLET SALES

Three weeks after the new 1931 Chevrolet models were put on display in Lincoln, orders for 95 models had been booked.

Like response everywhere have greatly encouraged the dealers and verified predictions that introducing new models two months earlier this year would contribute to general business revival.

Another factor contributing to a speeding up of sales is the new lower price level. The reduction in price was made possible due to a number of manufacturing advantages.

Public interest in the new models also has been increased by the many improvements and outstanding features. A stronger frame, longer wheel base, roomier Fisher body, and heavier front axle are among these improvements. The 1931 Chevrolet is presented by the company as the greatest value dollar for dollar ever made to the motoring public.

Motors and Their Care

Drive Carefully Over Icy Roads.

Motorists should be especially cautious when traveling over slippery pavements and through fog. Changing weather often turns wet spots to glaring ice, making it difficult to control swift-moving cars and leading to many serious accidents. Motorists will do well to well to drive with the utmost care unless roads are dry and the vision is clear.

Worth Remembering.

Always make allowance for a difference in braking when traveling from surfaced highways to dirt roads. The coefficient of friction between tire and road on a dirt surface is less than on a hard surface and that means that a greater distance will be required for stopping. Failure to allow for it may be dangerous.

A Part That Should Not Be Pushed.

In washing the car, especial care should be taken not to move the arm of the electric windshield wiper by hand. This arm is set in a fixed position and if moved manually will be thrown entirely out of line in such a way that it will do no good when next it rains. The switch always is handy and provides a way of moving that arm that will not necessitate taking the unit apart in order to get it functioning again. If vacuum-operated, open the valve before moving the wiper.

Safe Driver Must Operate Four Cars.

According to the standard established by the governor's committee on street and highway safety in Massachusetts, a safe driver must operate four automobiles at one time. A motorist is not actually driving his car safely unless he is able to anticipate the movements of an automobile immediately in front of him, behind him, and on either side. To do this, while still operating his own car, he must at the same time put himself in the position of the men behind the wheels of the approaching automobiles and mentally at least, figure out every possibility of what they may do.

Importance of Light Oil in Wintertime.

Experience has shown that the average motorist does not take the necessary precautions when using heavier oil during the cold weather, and for that reason nearly all the manufacturers recommend a lighter oil in winter. There are many grades of light oils and it would not do to use any one grade. The makers know just what grade of light oil their motors need and the careful owner will rely upon his dealer's service to give him the proper grade rather than have his crankcase filled with an oil too thin for his particular motor. There is sense to this. While it is true that a car might be serviced at any old place, there are some things that should never be entrusted to anyone but the authorized service of one's particular make of car and the change to winter oil seems to be one of them.

Vital Parts of the Car.

There are 12 vital parts that keep cars new:

1—Springs and spring bolts.
2—Wheel bearings and spindles.
3—Clutch yoke and bearings.
4—Universal joints and shafts.
5—Rear axle gears and shafts.
6—Timing gears and chains.
7—Transmission gears and bearings.
8—Valve and camshaft parts.
9—Wrist pins, piston rings.
10—Oil and water pumps.
11—Brake gear and brake lining.
12—Battery and electrical units.

Engines operate most efficiently when the water jacket temperature is between 150 and 180 degrees Fahrenheit.

WE ARE SAVING HUNDREDS OF DOLLARS FOR MOTORISTS BY GIVING THEM ADDITIONAL SERVICE FROM THEIR OLD BATTERIES

Auto Notes

Improperly fitted piston rings will create excessive oil smoke in the exhaust.

Unnecessary strain placed upon the engine before it has run 500 miles may shorten the life of the new car.

The simplest way to obtain distilled water for the battery is to buy artificial ice and melt it.

Anti-freeze solutions contain chemicals that will eat the paint or enamel if splashed on the surface of a car.

"Frosted" glass, a condition that occurs to windows while driving in cold weather, can be prevented by opening one of the windows slightly to permit a better circulation of air.

It is important that an inspection is made of brakes when they develop squeaks. The noise is usually due to exposed rivets scoring the brake drum which in turn is caused by the brake lining wearing down too thin. If not checked in time undercutting the old drums or installing new ones may be necessary.

Too much oil in the crankcase will cause excessive carbon deposits in the combustion chamber.

The use of the hand throttle will give relief to the driver covering long distances especially if he changes the position in his seat and stretches his legs.

It is important that a new set of gears be installed when a master or pinion gear is broken. A worn gear meshing with a new gear will always be noisy.

Always remove a light globe with a piece of cloth. This will protect the reflector from fingerprints and reduce the chance of cut fingers should the globe break.

It is important that the crankcase be thoroughly flushed out with a light oil or kerosene before the heavier lubricant is replaced by the lighter grade necessary in cold weather. Old and hardened lubricant is thus removed and with it the likelihood of damage to gear teeth.

CRIMSON PLANS TO BLOCK PUNTS

Alabama Schemes Stir Trouble When W.S.C. Tries to Kick.

BY JIMMY BURNS.

ABOARD CRIMSON TIDE FOOTBALL SPECIAL, San Antonio, Tex., Dec. 20—(INS)—Alabama's football team will be primed to block Washington State punts in the Rose Bowl game New Year's day, Coach Wallace Wade revealed today. Wade arranged for the special train to be halted here for two hours and the 35 Alabama players donned their uniforms for an hour's light workout.

However, punt blocking wasn't a part of the session. That will come later in the practices that will be held in the shadow of the Rose Bowl. The workout today was staged exclusively for limbering-up the muscles of the players and to guard against them becoming stale or victims of train sickness.

Day At Grand Canyon.

At Phoenix, Ariz., the next stop, the train will detour from the Southern Pacific line, carrying the team and accompanying party to the Grand Canyon for a one-day

Missouri Scribe Hits Hard at Athletic Methods at Kansas U.

BY JAKE HAMEL.
(In Columbia, Mo., Tribune.)

What is the Big Six conference going to do about Kansas?

What is the University of Missouri going to do about Kansas?

It has now been two weeks since the Big Six faculty men announced that the questioned eligibility of some 20 K. U. athletes whose services were bought and paid for would be submitted to the conference eligibility committee.

Some of those men are members of the University of Kansas basketball squad.

Are the Missouri faculty and athletic authorities and the conference faculty and athletic authorities going to be as weak kneed as that after the splendid fight they launched here two months ago and then come to a half-hearted conclusion?

Are Kansas promises to live right in the future worth the ink it takes to write them if Kansas plays these [illegible] in the present basketball season? Are the high sounding principles of the Big Six conference anything more than ludicrous talk if the Missouri team is permitted to play against such a team—or if any other Big Six team is permitted to play against such a team at any other time?

So far as the man on the sidelines can see, Kansas has thumbed its nose at the conference—and the conference likes it. It [illegible] time for someone to [illegible]. There has been enough of this high flown [illegible].

Get this one thing straight—Missouri does not have to play Kansas next week or any other week—in basketball or in anything else. If Kansas has done the things that Missouri and Nebraska officials say she has done and Missouri and Nebraska teams play Kansas teams, then Missouri and Nebraska are getting right down to the Kansas level. And if Kansas is guiltless, let's be men enough to say so.

If Missouri and Nebraska were right, then Missouri contests with Kansas in the future are impossible until Kansas cleans up—not words but deeds.

If the conference lacks intestinal stamina to see that that is carried out because Iowa State and Kansas State are hard up financially, then Missouri and Nebraska must act alone. And if Nebraska won't help, Missouri must do the job.

There are two ways of running athletics. One is the way they are conducted at Missouri. The other is the way the conference charged they are conducted at Kansas. If Missouri is to compete with a team that does the things Missouri charges that Kansas does, then there is just one thing for Missouri alumni to do—they must kick in with the thousands of dollars that it takes to do these things.

That would be a bad situation. But the University of Missouri has its choice. There are just two ways to play the game and the Tiger alumni have been restive for a long time. Now that the Kansas situation has been aired it won't down simply because a group of men say it is settled and refuse to say how

BASKET TUTORS AT UNI. SCHOOL

Nearly Seventy Mentors Gather for Sessions At Coliseum.

Sixty-eight Nebraska high school and college coaches attended the basketball school held at the state university coliseum, ending Saturday. The sessions were in charge of Charles Black, basketball coach at the University of Nebraska. The Husker mentor discussed the various phases of the cage sport, including passing, dribbling, shooting, team play and the various types of offensive and defensive tactics. He also answered questions concerning any of the material covered.

Leslie Edmonds and E. C. Quigley, officials of the Nebraska-Pittsburgh game, both spoke concerning changes that have been made in the rules and interpretations that may be made because of these changes. The officials also answered questions asked by the high school mentors.

Coach Browne, Nebraska freshman coach, also had charge of one of the sessions and spoke of the various types of offense and defense and their value. Coach Browne illustrated his points by use of the blackboard. The following coaches attended the sessions:

JAYHAWK STAR NOT IN LINEUP

Center Johnson Benched When Oklahoma Coach Files Protest.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 20—(U. P.)—William "Bill" Johnson, widely touted University of Kansas sophomore center, was not in the lineup as the cage team of the Kansas school tangled with the University of Missouri five tonight at Convention hall.

The decision not to use Johnson was made shortly before game-time by Dr. F. C. Allen, athletic director of the university. He had brought Johnson here for the game and had expected to start him at the pivot post.

The decision came after Dean S. W. Reaves, University of Oklahoma faculty representative, had communicated with Dean George C. Shaad, Jayhawker representative, asking that an investigation be made of the alleged playing of Johnson with a Y. M. C. A. team in Oklahoma City, his home, during the last Christmas vacation. Kenneth Johnson, a brother, also is to be investigated.

Sooner Coach Protests.

Doctor Allen said that a long distance telephone communication with officials of the Oklahoma City Y. M. C. A. had failed to show any record there of Johnson's having played. The center would not be used, however, he said, because Coach Hugh McDermott of Oklahoma, who preferred the charges, was in Austin, Tex., and could not be reached.

"We will not use Johnson unless

ROCKNE ALL SET WITH NEW TALENT

Frank Carideo and Marty Brill are through at Notre Dame and Notre Dame followers unfamiliar with the complete football roster at South Bend are worrying. But not Knute Rockne.

Among the ranks of players little heard of he has been saving a couple of future greats. Nick Lukats, a Greek, is expected to fill Brill's shoes and Laurie Vejar, a phenom from Hollywood, Calif., is slated as the successor of Carideo.

Bump Hadley Ace Of Senator Staff

Walter Johnson, manager of the Washington Senators, has picked Bump Hadley, his big pitcher, as the ace of the staff for 1931 and says Hadley's assignment will be to keep in shape to beat the A's and the Yankees.

"And if Hadley can do that, we'll just about win the pennant," says Johnson.

Last year, Hadley beat the Yankees in four games, but did not do so well against the A's, winning two and losing two.

His total wins for the season was 15, but Johnson is expecting him to win 20 in 1931.

OUTLOOK PERKS UP AT LINCOLN

Basket Prospects Blaze When Pair of Players Ruled Eligible.

Considerably cheered by two favorable reports from the eligibility officials of Lincoln high school, Coach Stuart Baller has announced an ambitious program for his basketball charges during the holidays. A four-hour practice session will be held Monday afternoon, with a three-hour period every other day except Christmas on the practice slate.

The two reports which put Baller in a happy frame of mind had to do with the eligibility status of two of his players. Herod Miller, ace goal-shooter, who was reported ineligible by the officials earlier in the week, has been able to clear the scholastic barrier which kept him out of competition during the football season and threatened to wreck his early season basket career.

The other report had to do with Fred Kahler, sub guard, who was reported "down" Friday, but made up some back work and was given an okay by the faculty late Friday afternoon.

Miller Delivers At Center.

Harold Miller, guard, has been transferred to forward with pleasing results. Harold, in recent scrimmages, always had been in the way of the opposing offensive and also had quite a hand in the scoring power himself. John Carlson, his running mate, is standing out head and shoulders above the other forward candidates, although Ayres,

Fifty-Year West Coast Golfer Leads Field In Open Compet.

By E. W. KRAUCH.

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 20—(INS)—Age showed youth the way today in the second round of the $4,000 Pasadena open golf tournament when Ernie Martin, 50-year-old Los Angeles veteran professional, led the field at the half-way mark with a 36-hole total of 143.

While many of the visiting stars were floundering around the course, Martin, who had a 72 yesterday, slipped in with a well-played par 71 this afternoon to lead the field by one stroke.

Resting in second place were Tony Manero, New Jersey; Herman Barron, New York; Ray Hangrum, an ex-caddy from Los Angeles, and Al Espinosa, Chicago. They all had two lap totals of 144.

A brilliant 69 total, the lowest score of the second round, placed Mortie Dutra of Long Beach in a tie with Joe Kirkwood, Australian trick shot artist, at 145.

Johnny Dawson and Tommy Armour were listed in the 146 bracket, while Clint Beer, Walter Hagen, Horton Smith and Harry Cooper were included in the 147 division.

Mystery Confab In Lake City Points to Fight Promotion.

CHICAGO, Dec. 20—(INS)—Significance is being attached to a conference here today between Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, with his secretary, Leonard Sacks of New York.

Sacks, it was understood, has conferred with "Pa" Stribling, manager of "Young" Stribling, title contender. Asked if he had any intention of returning to the ring as a fighter, Dempsey declined to comment.

Dempsey was expected to confer with George F. Getz, Chicago sportsman, in regard to the promotion of a heavyweight show here next year.

Brass Tacks

By Cy Sherman

RATED generally as one of America's most able, successful coaches and known to his friends as a genial gentleman, Howard Jones, head mentor of football at University of Southern California, still has something to learn in the art of grappling with athletic problems.

It was none other than Sir Howard who, when head coach and athletic director at Iowa U., failed to grasp the traditional value of continued Cornhusker-Hawkeye relations, the same Howard who gave assent to an inexcusable schedule shift which brought Nebraska and Iowa together on the first Saturday of the season.

The change from a late November date to the one early in October gave the death stab to a game that had its birth in the beginning of football in the middlewest. After two years of the early October nonsense, the two schools drifted apart and 11 years elapsed before they revived a relation that should not have been severed.

IT is the same Howard Jones who crossed Iowa State college of Ames off the Hawkeyes' list, cancelling another football affiliation that deserved to be rated at Iowa City as the most valuable of its entire gridiron roster.

Inasmuch as the Nebraska severance and the cancellation of the Ames arrangement came simultaneously at Iowa City, the dual disagreement could not have been a mere coincidence.

Instead, it provided proof that the Hawkeye school chose to be uppish, if not actually haughty, toward its western neighbors: it seemingly served notice that Iowa U. was in the more select circles of the Big Ten conference and simply couldn't afford to be stepping along with the "smaller fry" of the Missouri valley region.

TRANSFERRING his activities to the camp of the Trojans several years ago, Sir Howard took his strange conceptions—perhaps it might be termed a superiority complex—with him to the far west. Howard has had exceptional success at U. S. C., enjoying a run of victories which apparently has inspired him with the idea that the Trojans should not tolerate competition in the Los Angeles field.

Nevertheless, the Trojans have a local competitor in U. C. L. A., sometimes styled Southern Branch—a competitor that hasn't as yet attained fame in football comparable with U. S. C., but eventually must be reckoned with because of its new campus and the prestige that eventually will come from its equality with the Berkeley branch as a sharer of state tax funds.

DURING recent years the persistence of U. S. C. in demanding that its real rival should accept an early October date on the Trojan schedule has irked the athletic authorities at the southern branch of the state university.

The showdown came at the recent session of the Pacific coast conference where U. C. L. A. urged the booking of a November game. When U. S. C. stood pat for the old October arrangement the breach opened. It was widened and the adjournment of the conference powwow was followed by an announcement that the two institutions had parted company and would not joust in football next fall.

The new campus of Southern Branch—I saw it only last July—presents an impressive array of buildings, but the picture will not be complete until several structures have been added to the ensemble.

East Likes Style of Western Husky

Max Baer Drops Decision to Beantown Battler, But Experts Rate Coast Boy as Fight Racket Comer.

BY JAMES L. KILGALLEN

NEW YORK, Dec. 20—(I. N. S.)—"I'm glad they liked me. I'm going to try again—real soon."

The applause of 12,000 Madison Square Garden fight fans still ringing in his ears, Max Baer, handsome, black-haired young California heavyweight, made these assertions to the writer in his dressing room early today shortly after he had lost a close 10-round decision to Ernie Schaaf of Boston in a thrilling slugging match that had the spectators in a frenzy from start to finish.

Courage and Punch.

It was Baer's first Broadway appearance after a great showing on the west coast. And while he turned out to be no "second Dempsey," as some of his admirers had ballyhooed him, he did demonstrate he "has something." That "something" was flaming courage, an authoritative punch and a willingness to trade rights and lefts toe-to-toe.

Just a big strapping boy of 21, with only 17 months ring experience, he had been thrown in with a fellow who has been in the beak-busting business for six years—a smart, clever veteran who has beaten the likes of Johnny Risko and Tommy Loughran.

Sets Terrific Pace.

And maybe Baer, green as he is, didn't make Schaaf step! The Californian cut loose at a terrific pace. Before the first round was over he had Schaaf's left side as red as a beet from hard, right hand socks to the ribs. And he went on punishing the easterner until late in the sixth round when he suddenly weakened.

Baer didn't get going again until the tenth, when he staged a spectacular and courageous rally, but by this time Schaaf had the situation under control. If Baer had fought as well in the middle of the bout as he did at the start and finish, he would have won.

That Sheepish Grin.

After the fight I found Baer sitting on the rubbing table in his dressing room. He was eating oranges. His left eye was completely closed and there was a lump over it as big as an egg. His manager, Ham Lorimer, was with him. Friends offered their condolences, and also their congratulations. Max grinned sheepishly and tried hard to be philosophical.

"I guess I've been too used to seeing them fall after I hit them the way I hit Schaaf early in the fight," said Baer. "But he's a great boy, and he just wouldn't go down. The first thing I knew I got all tired out. I don't know what was the matter with me.

Must Learn Go Route.

"Well, maybe I better learn how to go over a fairly long route. Do you know, this is only my third fight to last 10 rounds? I lost a 10-rounder to Les Kennedy in Los Angeles and won a 10-rounder from Ernie Owen in the same city. My other fights have been short and sweet. I guess I shot the works too soon against Schaaf. Well, I'll learn, I guess."

They put a bandage around Baer's forehead and he strolled out of the garden looking like a wounded soldier. He then motored to his hotel. He said he will remain in New York until he "cleans up on a few of these heavyweights."

Sharkey Blows Off.

In Schaaf's dressing room, jubilation reigned. Schaaf himself sat quietly on a table, his only comment being that "Baer is a tough fellow."

Jack Sharkey, the Boston "loud speaker," who had acted as one of Schaaf's seconds, strutted all over the place very well pleased at himself in his new role.

"Did you see the way I sent him out there in the tenth?" inquired Jack, casting his baleful glance all around the room. Johnny Buckley, portly manager of both Sharkey and Schaaf, nodded assent.

"Oh, yes, Baer has a lot of possibilities," the astute Buckley admitted.

Gets Johnston's O. K.

Other veteran fight managers coincided with Buckley's view. Jimmy Johnston, one of the oldest managers in the game, the man who brought Phil Scott along to the point where he got a shot at Sharkey in Miami last February, was one of them.

"A year too soon," was Johnston's comment. "But Baer has lots of time—he's only a kid. He may yet amount to something."

The fight was one of the best heavyweight bouts witnessed in the

EDGE TO EAST IN CHARITY BATTLE

Dopesters Favor Hanley, Kerr Combination On Frisco Gridiron.

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Dec. 20—(UP)—The annual Shrine East versus West charity football game at Kezar stadium next Saturday will look like a contest between two all-American outfits more than ever before, it appeared today.

Coaches Dick Hanley and Andy Kerr arrived with their East squad yesterday, and the 10 men mentioned in all-American selections and 12 captains of eastern colleges were greeted and wished the best of luck by Governor-elect James Rolph, Jr., San Francisco's present mayor.

Eleven western all-Americans will oppose them next Saturday and nine college captains, so there should be little to choose between the two teams on that score.

Eastern players who will see action at Kezar stadium and who placed as all-Americans or received honorable mention are:

COUGARS LIKELY TRY AIR ATTACK

W.S.C. Plotting Rely On Overhead Offensive Against Tide.

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 20—(INS)—Impatient to be on their way, Coach "Babe" Hollingbery and his champion squad of Washington State college football players rambled up and down the train sheds here today in a brief stop-over on their way to Pasadena, where they meet the Crimson Tide from Alabama New Year's day.

Hollingbery checked his stalwarts aboard the train at Pullman last night after a final scrimmage session on Rogers field. He pronounced them fit and ready for the final polishing process scheduled to take place on the U. C. L. A. turf at Los Angeles.

Likely Take to Air.

Lainhart and Ellingsen have worked hard at Pullman during the past two weeks to perfect their passing game. It was believed the Cougars will take to the air should their power plays fail to click.

"We are fit and will give them all we have," was the "Babe's" [illegible] promise.

When the Cougars arrive at San Francisco they will stage a practice game with the all-star western team which will meet an all-star eastern aggregation in the annual Shrine game there next Saturday. Washington State will wind up its practice work with a week [illegible] at Los Angeles.

Michigan Veteran Has Victory Margin Over Wizard of South Bend

BY MACLEAN KENNEDY.

Twenty-five years ago Fielding H. Yost was riding on the crest of a wave of nation-wide fame and popularity, just as Knute K. Rockne is at the present moment. F. H. Yost still is famous in football circles, for he is yet in the game but on a higher plane — he is the grand generalissimo of all athletic forces at the University of Michigan, instead of Coach Yost who, two or three decades ago, could step out on the gridiron and rough it with the roughest of all football warriors.

Must Go Easy Now.

K. K. Rockne also has passed the period where he can slip his form into a football suit, jump into the thick of the fray and show the oncoming gridiron champs how to do the tail-spin the half-spin and other spinning that makes the opposing players dizzy.

Those days are over for Messrs Yost and Rockne—the golden days of their athletic careers also their active work on a football field, but, at that, they are bigger men in the strenuous pastime at present than they were when at the height of their careers as football stars. Rockne still is young and Yost is not in his ancient days by any means. Rockne can begin all over again and carry on as a young business man, but the chances are that he, like Fielding Yost, will continue to dwell in that atmosphere of football, players, football accoutrements, college bands, fair co-eds, cheer leaders and yell masters big stadiums—and why not?

Best Days In Football.

Both spent the best days of their young manhood in this line of sport and the football world is delighted they did, for their lives and ways have added color to the pastime. Success came to them in large and fragrant packages, for they built their respective careers on sound foundations.

When the now famous Rockne was shedding his swaddling duds, Fielding Yost was getting his first lessons in how to play the rough but fascinating game of the gridiron and he learned it well, and when K. Rockne was just budding out as an athlete, F. Yost had gained a nation-wide reputation as a coach. From his first year as a mentor, which was in 1897, success came to him in every imaginable leap and bound. At the close of the season of 1905, his name was known from coast to coast and from Tierra Del Fuego to Sitka, Alaska.

On Camp's Third Team.

Knute Rockne began his career in football at Notre Dame about the year 1911. He soon made a place on the team and in 1913, was selected by Walter Camp for end on his third team of All-American stars. When he had finished his days as a regular player, Coach Harper had him for his assistant and when the famous Harper finished at Notre Dame as head coach, Rockne stepped in to teach and guide the team. It was a grand and glorious day for Notre Dame and for K. K. Rockne when he was placed in charge of the football teams and records and history tells us how well this young man who hails from Voss, Norway, did his work.

Comparing Their Record.

Here are the records of Yost and Rockne. We will take Yost's record from the time he started with Michigan or, from 1901, prior to which he had four years of coaching college teams and lost but one game out of 30. Rockne had success from the jump, but 1918 was a broken season and schedules weren't carried out, so we will begin Rockne's record with 1919. He has coached 12 years since then, so we will take Yost's first 12 years at Michigan or, from 1901 to 1912, inclusive, and let the figures speak for themselves:

STARS IN MOOD FOR MORE PAY

Diamond Game Dazzlers Hopped Up to Demand Salary Boosts.

BY LES CONKLIN.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20—(I. N. S.)—Baseball's little group of wilful men—the holdouts—are making their annual appearance this winter under more favorable auspices than is usually the case.

Dazzy Vance, Hack Wilson, Wally Berger, Lou Gehrig Lefty Grove, George Earnshaw, Al Simmons, Babe Herman, Bill Terry and other stars, who are seeking heavy sugar in 1931, have several factors in their favor as they mass forces for an attempted raid on the checkbooks of the magnates.

Despite hard times and the unemployment problem, 1930 was a good baseball year. Instead of taking weekend trips and indulging in expensive amusements, the working public flocked to the ball parks in increasing numbers. And even many of the jobless had enough small change to get into the bleachers.

Moguls Talked Too Much.

At the big league meetings here recently, several magnates let off considerable steam about major league prosperity, thereby whetting the appetites of the hired help for bigger and better pay checks.

Th war between the majors and the minors gives the big leaguers another talking point in their demands for larger salaries. Realizing the difficulty of obtaining minor leaguers to replace them, major league players can afford to be more adamant in salary squabbles.

Wes Berger, the big home run hitter of the Braves, is the most recent addition to the ranks of the holdouts. Bill McKechnie, Boston manager, said last week that Berger was the only man on the team he would not trade. This emboldened Wes to hold out for a $12,500 salary, a mere bagatelle to what some of the other stars are asking.

Mr. Vance Has Ideas.

Vance won only [illegible] games for Brooklyn in 1930, as against 15 defeats, but had the lowest earned run average of any pitcher in either league. He wants a three-year contract at $25,000 per annum. The club offered him $20,000, his salary last season, and probably will give him $25,000, but for one year only.

Babe Herman, Brooklyn outfielder, who was the most celebrated holdout of the last Hot Stove league season, only to break down and sign at the eleventh hour, improved his fielding immensely last season and now thinks he is worth $20,000 a year. The Babe has been selling shirts in California and has been doing remarkably well, practically every man in the state having lost his shirt on the U. S. C.-Notre Dame football game.

Earnshaw Boosts Ante.

Earnshaw, who earned about $20,000 with the Athletics last season, unnerved Connie Mack completely by demanding $30,000 next year. It is believed that Earnshaw and Lefty Grove will get about $25,000 each. The case of Al Simmons appears more difficult.

Hack Wilson, the new home run monarch of the majors, who got $22,500 last season, has his record of 56 home runs to bolster his demand for $40,000 in 1931. But if the Cubs offer Hack $35,000, which seems likely, the belligerent outfielder probably will obey that impulse and reach for a fountain pen.

The two New York first basemen will want real money, especially Bill Terry of the .401 batting average. Lou Gehrig, who has just finished a three-year contract with the Yankees at $27,000 a year, also was a big number last season and wants a duplicate document.

ELMER SCHWARTZ

Capt. "Foots" Clement, Alabama tackle, and Capt. "Elmer the Great" Schwartz, Washington State college fullback, will lead their football forces together in the annual Rose Bowl battle New Year's day at Pasadena, California.

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 20—For the third time Alabama's Crimson Tide will invade the far west to struggle for football supremacy against a Pacific coast team in the annual Tournament of Roses game New Year's day.

As things now stand the west has a total of 194 points, while the east's total is 123. The west has won seven games, the east five and three of the contests were tied. Alabama figuring in on of the tie-up games. In touchdowns, the west leads, 27 to 18.

Since the inauguration of the New Year's games, southern football teams have never lost to the coast defenders, although Alabama and Stanford tied, 7 to 7, in 1927 after having defeated Washington by a one point margin, 20-19, in 1926.

Georgia Tech won its game in 1929 by a one-point lead of 8 to 7 against California. The largest score in the history of the Rose Bowl games was 1930 when Southern California bowled over Pittsburgh, 47-14. In 1918 and 1919, service teams played and split even.

Hammer and Baldwin are capable replacements.

Red Davies, slated for a starting berth at center when the pre-season dope was being spread, has been sitting on the sidelines during the last few practices, watching Herod Miller cavort around in the pivoteer's shoes. Barnes, who plays either forward or center, has hitting the hoop from all angles.

Wampler and Yelkin.

At guards, Wampler and Yelkin are far above the other performers. The two veteran defense men have been instrumental in the advancement of the team thus far and are certain of the starting positions at guard. Fred Kahler, Fred Wacker and Jack Cassity are the other guards, all of whom are about equal in ability. Kahler is a better floor man, Wacker a better defensive pastimer and Cassity more expert in connecting with the hoop on long shots when the offense is unable to penetrate the opposing defense.

Billy Marks, Kiski school football captain, is one of the best golfers in Western Pennsylvania ranks

California, Southern California and U. C. L. A will meet for the Pacific Coast hockey championship at Yosemite valley, January 1 to 4.

TASK IN STORE FOR RESERVES

Lincoln Seconds Tackle Tough Schedule In Basketball.

The Lincoln reserves, trial horses for the Red and Black first-stringers, were given a tough basketball assignment this winter when Athletic Director Lauritson scheduled an even dozen conflicts for the reserves against strong teams in and around Lincoln. The reserves are coached by Bob Horney, who also tutored reserve football.

The reserves were hard hit the first of the past week when the two regular forwards, Harry Hammer and Glen Ayres, were drafted by Coach Baller for use on his fist outfit. Andy Bell and Dawson Hawkins have replaced the two former reserves in the front line, but the presence of either Hammer or Ayres would bolster the scoring punch.

It is the intention of Coach Horney to have two teams, a fast "pony" quintet and a tall five which he can alternate against the opposition.

Promising Prospects

There are several likely looking prospects on the squad, although all the material is inexperienced. At guard position, Horney has Andy Anderson and Jerry Hunt, a pair of classy defense men, for his rear rank in the pony group, and Mike Johnson and Ray Schwartz in the taller group. Center is well taken care of by Mark Baldwin, while Andy Bell, Dawson Hawkins, Bob Ray and Alvin Hawthorne are promising forward candidates.

Included on the Red and Black understudy slate are games with many of the leading teams in and around Lincoln. On the list are two games with Bethany, two with College View, two with Teachers College high two with Jackson high and one each with Wesleyan high, Havelock, Jackson reserves and Beatrice reserves. College View, Jackson and Havelock are the class of the opposition, with Wesleyan high also in the money. With three weeks in which to smooth the jagged edges, it is expected Horney will have his team polished to a point where it will be able to treat any of the Greater Lincoln league rivals to a tight battle. The schedule:

Reserve 1931 Card.

Jan. 9—Bethany at Bethany.
Jan. 10—College View at College View.
Jan 13—Jackson Reserves at Jackson.
Jan. 24—Teachers' College high at Lincoln.
Jan 27—Jackson at Jackson.
Jan 30—Bethany at Lincoln
Feb. 5—College View at Lincoln
Feb. 7—Beatrice Reserves at Lincoln.
Feb 14—Havelock at Havelock.
Feb. 17—Teachers' College high at Teachers.
Feb 27—Jackson at Lincoln.
Feb. 28—Wesleyan high at Wesleyan.

garden in years. The sixth round was a bell ringer.

Slugged Toe to Toe.

They stood toe to toe, in Pier A fashion and slugged each other from pillar to post. Max had the better of the first two minutes of this sensational round, but just as the big second hand on the clock on the Garden wall was moving through the final minute of the round, Schaaf caught the Californian flush on the chin with a terrific left hook and almost dropped him. Max knees sagged and he had to hang on for dear life.

Although the decision that Schaaf won the battle was unanimous—it was rendered by Referee Johnny McAvoy and the two judges, Jack Denning and Charles F. Mathison—the fans, with whom Max had made a "hit," booed it roundly.

Many Called It Draw.

Many of the experts thought Max at least deserved a draw; a few thought he won. My score sheet showed that Baer won the first, third, fourth, sixth and tenth rounds and Schaaf the fifth, seventh and eighth, with the second and ninth even. Two of the rounds I thought Baer won were very close and could be called either way. Both men drew blood, but neither was on the flor at any stage of the encounter.

Baer said he was "satisfied" with the decision. He declared he would welcome another shot at Schaaf. At any rate, Max will be seen, soon again for while he lost the fight he won recognition in Madison Square Garden, the nation's leading indoor fight palace.

Best Means "Best" At Callaway.

CALLAWAY, Neb., Dec. 20—At the first meeting of the football letter men of Callaway high school since the close of the season, Dale Best was chosen captain for the 1931 season. In choosing Dale, a record was set for perhaps the whole state of Nebraska, since he is the sixth boy in the family of Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Best to be chosen captain of the Callaway high school football team. Counting his sister, Bernice, who has been captain of each of the girls' basketball and track teams, Dale is the seventh captain to be chosen from this family.

The history of the Best family begins with Seth, the oldest of the boys, who served as football captain during the season of 1922. During his captaincy, Callaway had the honor of winning its first football game.

Scored First Touchdown.

Seth was fullback on the team and the man who scored the first touchdown. He was also captain of the track team during the season of 1923 and was a member of two state group champion track teams, 1922 and 1923. Seth was a versatile track performer, winning consistently in the weights and sprints. During his captaincy, Callaway placed second in the state in the Nebraska pentathlon, Seth being seventh high individual in the state. Seth was also captain of the basketball team during the season of 1922-'23.

Cecil Best followed his brother, Seth, to the captaincy the following year, the season of 1923. He played the position of right tackle and he also took part in track and helped Callaway win its third successive championship in group one at the state meet in Lincoln and helped to win again the banner for second place in the Nebraska pentathlon.

Most Successful Season.

Reamer Best, who also played the tackle position, served as football captain during the 1926 season. Callaway high school closed its most successful season that year, losing only one game on its schedule.

Dwight Best followed his brother, Reamer, to the captaincy the following year, 1927. Dwight played center on the team and won honorable mention in the state for his ability. Dwight was also a member of the basketball team.

Bernice Best was captain of two teams, the girls' basketball team of 1926 and the girls' track team of 1927. Bernice was star forward of the basketball team, scoring the most points of any player during the season.

Champion Girl In Dash.

She was the Custer county champion in the girls' 50-yard dash and a member of the relay team which still holds the county record for the 200-yard relay.

Floyd Best, another tackle, was captain of the football team during the season of 1929. Floyd won honorable mention in the state for his playing ability.

Dale, who is the youngest of seven, is also tackle, and is carrying on in a fine way the honor of the Best name in Callaway high school athletics. Next year will be his third and last year on the football team and he expects to make it his best.

Truly, the word "Best" not only names, but describes the whole family. The best youngsters in Callaway high school athletics are members of the Best tribe.

BEANTOWN FANS STILL HOPEFUL

Boston Once Won Flags, But That Was Long, Long Ago.

BY FRED TURBYVILLE.

Among the stockings hung up for good old Santa Claus were the Red Sox of Boston. They've been empty since 1918, but hope springs eternal in the New England metropolis.

There was a time when a baseball championship was nothing out of the ordinary in that city. In fact, Boston has in moth balls more baseball pennants than any other city can boast—21 in all.

All of these 21 flags weren't won in the National and American leagues but most of them were.

Sixty Years Ago.

Starting 60 seasons ago, Boston began winning pennants, four in a row in the old National association in 1872, '73, '74 and '75. Then came pennants in the National in 1877, 1878 and 1883, and after that a whole flock of them from 1890 to 1898—one in the old American association one in the Players' league and five more in the National.

But with the coming of a new century, the winning fell off. The Braves won but one pennant after that—the spectacular triumph of George Stallings' "Miracle Men," in 1914.

Boston in the American league, however, had winning ways just like the old Braves. Flags were won in 1903 and 1904, in 1912, in 1915 and 1916 and last in 1918.

Glorious History.

A rather glorious history in baseball up to that time, but what has followed since hasn't been so good. The Red Sox have been wallowing about in the cellar for some years. And the Braves only recently began to climb.

The Red Sox have finished last oftener than any team in the league because of the poor showing of recent years. The Red Sox have been in the cellar nine times. The A's were submerged seven years, but finally got out when Connie Mack bought all of Jack Dunn's Baltimore stars.

Fans Ever Loyal.

Wise baseball men figure that a pennant winner in Boston would be the greatest money-maker in baseball. Judge Fuchs of the Braves says last year's fighting team drew the biggest attendance in the history of the club, proving that Boston is mighty anxious for a winner.

Boston has never turned its two clubs down, no matter where they were in the pennant race. They're fans from away back and they still boast of their many pennants. Boston's 21 pennants beats New York's 19.

Gotham Frequent Winner.

New York has 12 National league pennants, six American league flags and one from the old American association.

Chicago is next with 18 all told—12 in the National, five in the American and one in the Federal.

Philadelphia has 11—eight won by the A's, one each in the National, National association and American association.

St. Louis has seven, counting four in the old American association and three won by the modern Cards.

Pirates Share In Spoils.

Pittsburgh has six National league pennants.

Brooklyn won five in the National and one in the American association.

Detroit won one in the National and three in the American.

Cleveland has one lone flag, won in 1920 by Tris Speaker's club.

Detroit is the only club in the American league that hasn't finished in last place Detroit has finished most often in sixth place—seven times.

A's First Eight Times.

The A's favorite position is first—eight times, but they finished last seven times

New York has been in first place most times—six Washington finished seventh seven times, Cleveland third seven times, Chicago fifth six times, St Louis fifth six times and Boston last nine times.

St. Louis is the only American league club that hasn't won a flag. All National league clubs have won.

Bill McKechnie starts his second year with the Braves and hopes are high

Shano Collins succeeds Heinie Wagner with the Red Sox, with about the toughest assignment in the major leagues.

Being a state institution, a sister school of the Berkeley branch, it is inevitable that U. C. L. A. will be one of the great educational centers of the western coast, perhaps far surpassing the enrollment at U. S. C.

GROWTH in equipment and enrollment at U. C. L. A. undoubtedly will result in rapid development and expansion of its athletics, which makes it all the more amazing that U. S. C. would choose to break relations, rather than to build a healthy local rivalry which in time would give to Los Angeles football one of the great games of the fall campaign.

Speaking for myself, I proclaim that the U. S. C. athletic managemen has muffed an opportunity to contribute something substantial to the cause of college football on the far western rim. Whether Sir Howard had much or little to do with the break is not important, although I rate it a reasonable certainty that he factored more or less in the decision, because the rupture provides a parallel to the break by Iowa with Nebraska and Iowa State 10 years ago.

I think, in short, that the U. S. C. management ultimately will regret its differences with U. C. L. A. and richly deserve those regrets. To be able to coach and develop winning football teams may create a happy situation, but to possess a broad athletic vision is quite as essential.

HERE AND THERE: Football statisticians have it that the 1930 season's longest run was executed by Halfback George Wilson of Idaho U. Standing in the end zone, five yards back of the goal line, Wilson took the pass from center, apparently for a punt. Instead, he swung around a Whitman college end and dashed 105 yards to a touchdown....The longest run of my own observation, in 38 years of watching college games, goes to the credit of the late Johnnie Bender, Cornhusker dazzler of the early '00s. Playing against Iowa U. at Iowa City, Johnnie snagged an Iowa kickoff back of the Nebraska goal line and ran it back to a touchdown. The field was 110 yards long in that time, so the Bender scoring sprint was not less than 112 yards....Coaches Pop Warner and Paul Schissler of the Coast conference evidently made a quick recovery from their peeve at Referee Herb Dana, who plastered heavy penalties on both Stanford and Oregon State in their recent game at Palo Alto. The Pacific Coast conference assignments for 1931 have been promulgated and I take note that Herb, former Cornhusker end, is to toil as referee in practically every important contest in the far western circle.

Cougar Gridders Have Live Mascot

PORTLAND, Ore. Dec. 20—(U. P.)—The Washington State college Cougars were enroute tonight to California to wind up their training for the New Year's day football game with Alabama in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena.

In this particular instance, the biological term is not exactly amiss for on the train with the rest of the Cougars is a real one. His name is "Butch Meeker," and he weighs close to 200 pounds. In fact, "Butch" is a lot bigger than his namesake. A few years ago, Washington State had a dynamic little quarterback named "Butch" Meeker, who only weighed about 140 pounds

Real Cougar On Trip.

About that time some collegiate "Huskies" at University of Washington stole the stuffed cougar that has mascoted W. S. C teams, and somewhere the Pullmanites acquired a cute little cougar kitten, about a foot long and weighing about ten pounds. It was so small, but also so full of fight, that immediately it was named "Butch Meeker."

So now Coach Babe Hollingbery is taking the real cougar along, not that he expects to need him in the game

The biped Cougars are all in good condition, Mel Hein, the all-American center and Turk Edwards the giant tackle, have recovered from injuries and the entire team is ready for the fray.

Edgren Turns Thumbs Down On New Balloon Golf Ball

Bobby Jones Smart By Quitting Before Rule Takes Effect Jan. 1

BY ROBERT EDGREN.

After giving that new balloon golf ball a good tryout for a couple of months, we feel like congratulating Bobby Jones. We always thought Robert was smart, but he's more than that. He's a genius. It was downright clever of Bobby to give up competitive amateur golf just now. He won't have to play with that new ball.

Bobby Dodged Grief.

Yeah, Bobby dodged a lot of grief. If he goes out to play golf in the future, playing just for fun, he can use a regular golf ball, and he probably has a supply put away. Several million golfers who play for pleasure are going to have a few kind remarks to make about the U. S. G. A. after Jan. 1. The good balls are no longer being manufactured, and before long every one will have to use the balloons or give up golf.

I have a notion some of us will give up golf. Perhaps that's the real urge behind the balloon ball. Courses getting too crowded. The gentlemen who made the balloon ball standard in this country must have had some mysterious motive. It certainly wasn't to make golf a better game for those who play it.

Manufacturers Happy.

So far as I can see, the new balloon ball will annoy everybody but the manufacturers. Their profits ought to hop sky high. The balloon ball floats off to right or left with the varying whim of every wandering breeze. In a year from now, the woods, brush and water-holes lining golf courses will be full of balls that have drifted hither and yon and out of sight. All to the great profit of golf ball makers.

The doctors ought to get something out of it, too. Imagine a gentleman indulging in high blood pressure smacking one of these new balloon balls right into a gale of wind, seeing it rise gently, slow up and come back to drop as far in front of the tee as he could kick a dry sponge.

Amused by Ballyhoo.

I've been amused a lot by the ballyhoo for the new balloon ball. Every third day we are told how So-an-so, the great golfer, has tried out the new ball and gone into uncontrollable ecstasies over it.

"On the long 660 yard hole," says So-an-so, "where I usually get on with a drive and a mashie, I was amazed to find, on approaching the green, that my mashie with the new ball had holed out. In my opinion there is not more than five or six inches, or at the most, yards between the old ball and the new in driving distance. I found the new ball very easy to pick up with an iron. In fact, I played several out of gopher holes and found it more difficult than playing on the fairway. Hurrah, hurrah! It may be that the balloon ball will slice just a wee bit more than the old ball, but what of it? All anyone has to do to overcome that is shoot straight! Three cheers for the new ball."

Professional Hides Out.

I met our professional wandering through the woods and peering out from behind tree trunks. He looked very, very sad. I told him I'd been looking for him at the caddy house. He skipped behind another tree, looked around nervously, as asked: "Were there many looking for me?"

Then the story came out.

"I've been reading so many interviews telling how good the new ball is that I began to believe it myself," he said, "and this morning I got a lot of the players to buy the new balls. Our stock of regular golf balls is running low—they aren't making any more, you know. I told the boys the new ball would really drive just about as far and would approach and putt much better. The foursomes began going out about 9 o'clock. They began coming back about 9:15. And what they said!"

Old Balls In Demand.

Our professional says there will be "a bootlegging industry," in old-time golf balls after New Year's.

"There's going to be such a demand for old balls to play with," he said, "that we won't be able to get any caddies. All the caddies will be out hunting through the brush and gullies and dragging the water hazards for old style golf balls. I expect there'll be hi-jacking, too, because players whose pleasure in the game is trying to sock out long drives will be paying any price for balls they can hit somewhere. We won't sell many new balls for a while because all the boys will be bootlegging regular balls to our customers."

That Gloomy View.

This, in my opinion, is a rather gloomy view to take of the balloon ball situation. It can't be as bad as that. All the old balls will be cut up or permanently lost in time, and then there'll be nothing to do but play with the balloon balls, or quit. A golf bug never quits. Then the balloon ball market will pick up and go into high gear because in the breezy springtime the balloon balls will be floating off into the woods and water holes and high grass and the players will be kept busy buying more.

The balloon ball boomers say that the balloon ball was made for the duffers—the regular ordinary mob of golfers—and that as a dub golfer doesn't drive very far, anyhow, the balloon ball won't affect his game. It's the high power drives and swatters, say the balloon ball boomers, who will suffer, and who cares whether they suffer or not?

Looks Like Camouflage.

In fact, the argument goes on, the new balloon ball will put the ordinary duffers and the high power golfers on practically an even footing, because the light slap of the dub golfer will send the ballon ball nearly as far as the savage swing of the high-powered lad. This looks a bit like camouflage.

Not a word is said about slicing and hooking and sailing off on the wind, all balloon ball specialties—also specialties of the dub golfer, likely to be much exaggerated in the future. The high power golfers crack 'em straight, anyway. I'd like to bet Bobby Jones could take a ball shaped like an egg, and as light as an egg shell, and knock it down the middle of the fairway—and putt with it, too.

Can't Play Like Bobby.

I see by the propaganda that Bobby likes the new ball. He has discovered that it makes approaching easy. Playing what is ordinarily a mashie-niblick shot, in using the balloon ball, all he has to do is take a three iron and smack the ball hard. It sails swiftly toward the green, floats upward, stalls in the air and drops straight down beside the pin, and it doesn't roll an inch after it lands.

When we can play like Bobby Jones, we can do the same thing.

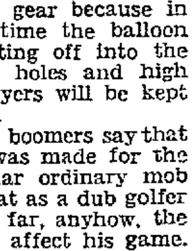
BOBBY JONES SAYS



BY BOBBY JONES.

A GREAT many people have asked me how it feels to be through with competitive golf, to find myself joined to the ranks of the has-beens who look on from the sidelines, where no one bothers much about them. Some of these people seem to think that a competitive sports career in this day and time is not an easy thing to give up.

Certainly it would be a difficult thing for me if my retirement from competition necessarily meant that I should be giving up golf entirely. Golf is the only game I have ever played to any great extent, and if I should have to give it up altogether, I do not know where I should begin to look to find something to take its place.

Interest in some outdoor sport, with the recreation to be had in its pursuit, has become almost a necessity now for the man who wants to preserve his health and vigor. Some how I can't picture myself in declining years cavorting about a tennis court trying to find some one bad enough to give me a game.

AS I have suggested before, there are two distinct kinds of golf just plain golf and tournament golf. Golf, the plain variety, is the most delightful of games, an enjoyable, companionable pastime; tournament golf is thrilling, heart-breaking, terribly hard work—a lot of fun when you are young, with nothing much on your mind, but terribly punishing in the end. From now on, my prospect and intention is to play a lot of plain golf without having to worry about the tournament variety.

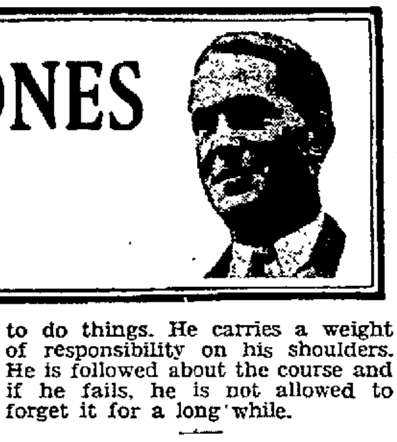
Competition in any line of sport is today frightfully keen. In golf, both the professional and amateur fields embrace far more dangerous players than were to be found 20 years ago. The game is spreading like wildfire.

THIS means that to keep step with the field from a competitive angle is growing more and more difficult every year for the men who have business and professions to look after. One has either to enter a competition conceding to his opponents the advantage of practice and preparation or to take the time himself at the expense of other endeavors to whip himself into form.

But, aside from the time required for preparation, there is the equally important question of keenness. When a youngster embarks upon a career in competition, the whole thing is a great lark. No one knows who he is nor expects him to do anything. He can play to beat all if he likes, fight as hard as he can and congratulate himself if he makes a good showing. Being perfectly free from responsibility he can have a great time.

But let him begin to win and all this changes. He is now expected to do things. He carries a weight of responsibility on his shoulders. He is followed about the course and if he fails, he is not allowed to forget it for a long while.

THE story has been that they all weary of it sooner or later. Miss Joyce Wethered quit tournament golf in 1925 for no other reason that that she was unable to enjoy competition. With her it was not a question of limited time. Since then she has played as much golf as ever in foursome competitions and informal games, but she has appeared only once—in 1929—upon the championship stage. She even remarked rather whimsically at St. Andrews that, after suffering through the 18-hole matches in the British amateur with her brother, Roger, she had decided to give up even watching championships.



Bobbie bids adieu to tournament golf.

To quit for fear of being beaten is to rely on a poor excuse. Every golfer knows that he can by no means win all the time and that he can be pleased so long as he consistently gives a good account of himself. It is nice to quit after a job has been done, but in my case, I had made up my mind after Interlachen that, regardless of what happened at Merion, I would never again subject myself to such torture as I had been through during the past two and a half months.

WHAT I look forward to now is what I have conceived to be the real way to enjoy golf. To play a lot, never too seriously; to go to all the tournaments in the role of spectator; to play a few rounds in practice with the boys, and then sit back and watch, and perhaps write a little stuff if anyone wants to read it; to study the mechanics of the game, to experiment without fear of disturbing my swing before a championship; to play in charity matches and minor tournaments if and whenever I like, but always to leave the big ones to those who are willing to take the punishment. I hope it all turns out that way.

CITY HANDICAP NEXT ON ROSTER

Lincoln Bowlers Making Ready to Pound Pins During Holidays.

The city handicap bowling tourney at the Lincoln parlors will open Dec. 24 and continue until Jan. 4. Handicaps will be based on averages of 155 to 180 and no one will receive a greater handicap than 25 pins per game. The tourney will consist of singles, doubles and team events and the entry fee for each event is $1.50.

The all-event champion will receive a medal from the Lincoln Bowling association. The committee in charge is composed of Bill DeVrient, Henry Beal, Guy Davison, John Beha, William Imlay, Henry Hansen, D. McCauley and Bill Gaughan.

Make Merry With Pins.

Numerous high scores were made by league teams during the week's play at the Lincoln Parlors. In the Greater Lincoln league, Killian Clothiers scored 2,988 pins in winning three straight from the Golden Rods. The clothiers had games of 1,024, 918 and 1,046. Harlan rang up high score honors of the series with a total of 674. Fenton B. Flemings had a 2,908 total in winning two out of three from the Kinsey Tire five. Hansen of Flemings led with a 611 total. Pepperberg won its series with Gooch's Best and the Segar five rolled a 1,004 total for the final game. Graves was high with 571 pins.

Clean Sweep By Central.

In the Booster league Central Cafe scored a sweep over the Union Fire quintet and knocked over 2,904 pins in the series. Art Runge of the Central team led the winners with a 658 total, but individual honors were knocked off by Lud Vlcek, who downed 675 pins for the best singles effort of the week. Vlcek had games of 236, 190 and 249. In the other series the Miller Tires won three from the Davis School Service and the Red Ball Transfers topped the Vogue Cleaners in three straight games. Sipe of the Miller Tires team led with 605 and Huntington of the Transfers had a 569 total.

Rollsmeyer Defies Split.

Midwest Roofers won two from the Modern Cleaners and Nebraska Neon trimmed Garvey Products five in two of three games. Rollsmeyer had high score for the Modern Cleaners with 588 and tumbled 251 pins in his second game, picking off a 4, 6, 7, 10 split in the process. Mart Lange led the Garvey-Neon series with 590.

BOSTON MAT FANS PECULIAR AS EVER

BOSTON, Dec. 20—Some 12,000 wrestling fans today had witnessed the Boston Garden's first wrestling show this season. In the feature bout, Rudy Dusek of Little Rock, Ark., defeated Milo Steinbach, Belgian strong man. Jim McMillan, former University of Illinois football star, flattened Hans Bauer of Chicago in exactly eight minutes in the semi-final.

Chick Frasier was recently released by the Pirates, after scouting for that club since 1913.

DOWN THE LINE

With Bill McGeehan

AT Yale they have come to the conclusion that coaches protest too much or, as some of the boys would put it, are too prone to sound the loud bazoo. The order has gone out in Yale that nobody connected with Yale athletics will be permitted to broadcast, write or by any means sound the bazoo, written or oral, concerning athletics at Old Eli.

In view of what has been happening, especially in California, this is a particularly wise decision. The California coaches have been sounding the bazoo with some disastrous results, and it seems that unless they limit the conversation of the coaches in California there will be a wholesale cancellation of athletic and social relations, as far as the universities of the Pacific Coast are concerned.

First there was the verbal battle between Mr. Glenn S. Warner (Reg. Office). Mr Warner, coaching for U. S. Patent Office) and Mr. Howard Jones (also Reg. U. S. Patent Stanford university, is charged with criticizing the sportsmanship of Mr. Jones and Mr. Jones, coaching for the University of Southern California, retorted: "So is your old man," or words to that effect.

THE quarrel may have increased the sales of the football essay which Mr. Warner and Mr. Jones are supposed to write, but it certainly did not make the relations between Stanford university and the University of Southern California any more friendly. If a personal or business grudge develops between Mr. Warner and Mr. Jones it is all right for them to have it out. Marquis of Queensberry or Chelsea dock rules, but they have no right to quarrel in the name of the universities which hire them to coach football teams.

Shortly after this unpleasantness, Mr. Dink Templeton, who coaches athletic teams for Stanford university and as a side line does a bit of broadcasting and writing for the newspapers, penned some insinuations against the University of Southern California. He said that it was passing strange that the University of Southern California got all of the best athletes on the Pacific coast. He called upon the University of California (the northern one) to demand an investigation of the methods used by Southern California to draw all the best football players.

DINK was bitter and sarcastic about all of this. He wrote, with a sneer in every line, that it might be the wonderful southern California climate, the waving palms and the lovely campus that lured all the best athletes to the University of Southern California.

The results of this essay were far-reaching. It almost caused a civil war between northern and southern California and certainly did stir up a pair of rival chambers of commerce and nettled undergraduates no little. Dink just sat down at his portable typewriter and let the sheets blow where they might.

Of course, the University of Southern California does not seem so tough since the Fighting Irishmen, Schwartz, Carideo and Lukats, ran wild through them. And the material they have at the University of Southern California does not look like a squad of supermen any longer.

But at the same time the bazoo sounding contest between Mr. Dink Templeton and Mr. Howard Jones has not left an exactly pleasant aftermath. The boys are still broadcasting about it, and each is still saying that the other is no gent.

NOW, the situation involving the gabby coaches of the Pacific coast becomes aggravated, according to Mr. Francis Wallace, the novelist of Notre Dame. It all happens because the coaches out there will sound the loud bazoo in way of alibi. The only way you can keep them away from a microphone is to gag them, and the only way you can keep their itching fingers or the itching fingers of their ghost writers away from a typewriter is to manacle their hands behind their backs.

It seems now, according to Mr. Wallace, that Mr. Howard Jones, whose Southern California team was tied into a double bow knot by Mr. Rockne's "fighting Irish," alleges a widespread Notre Dame conspiracy involving old grads of Notre Dame.

His allegation is that Coach Phelan of Washington, who is a Notre Dame alumnus, incited the Washington team to attempt to cripple Southern California men in the Southern California-Washington game. This was with the intent to soften up, as they say in cauliflower circles, the Southern California team against the time when it would meet Notre Dame, the old alma mater of Mr. Phelan.

Naturally, Mr. Phelan is boiling over this insinuation. The noise was so loud that it almost resulted in a cancellation of athletic relations between Notre Dame and the University of Southern California. The end, of course, is not yet.

All Pacific Coast football seems to be more or less in a turmoil, and all because the coaches, whose business is coaching, are too gabby and prone to sound the loud bazoo by way of an alibi. Mr. Jones was not prepared to have the field mopped with his Southern California team this year, and if he said what he is said to have said, it might be attributed to the warm sunshine of Los Angeles.

THESE football coaches have been usurping altogether too much power. They arrange football schedules, they appoint the football captains, and at the current writing have taken upon themselves the privilege of making the official statements for the universities. Presidents, chancellors and deans have nothing at all to say. Football games have become a series of feuds in some instances, and in others friendly battles between the rival coaches.

It used to be considered humorous when Mr. Jack Kearns, the manager of Jack Dempsey, would say: "We will fight Harry Wills or Gene Tunney any time. We are willing to meet any man in the world."

The coaches have reached the point where they go a little further. One of these days you will hear a football coach announcing over the radio: "I beat Army easily and I won from Notre Dame." Or if he does not get it out of his system on the radio, he will be writing: "I lost to Southern California, but it strikes me that there was something queer about the eligibility rules or I would have beaten them by at least two touchdowns."

The coaches have been getting by with this sort of thing for a considerable period. But it is my notion that the reaction is due in the not so distant future. The coaches are bringing this on themselves. They have been taking in too much territory and have been talking too much, which always is dangerous.

One of these days you may read of a coach being removed, not for losing football games, but for sounding the loud bazoo frequently. Which is a consummation most devoutly to be wished.

BOXERS PERFORM IN CHARITY SHOW

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 20—Nearly 8,000 fans attended the charity boxing bouts here last night which were sponsored by the Guardian club for the benefit of the unemployed women of San Francisco. Although no exact figures were available early today, it was believed that the receipts would be in the neighborhood of $10,000. The net receipts, which will be announced later, will be turned over to the fund for which the show was planned.

After Governor - elect James Rolph, Jr., made a speech from the ring lauding the object of the show, a collection was taken up among the spectators which added several thousand dollars to the fund.

Fourteen four-round fights were arranged for the card. The feature bout was won by Earl Mastro, Chicago featherweight, who scored a technical knockout over Les Domingo in the fourth round.

BOARD ALL SET JUMP ON MAXIE

Boxing Commish Ready To Rule Schmeling's Title Vacant.

BY COPELAND C. BURG.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20—(I. N. S.)—Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown, and the titled one who surveys all the vineyards and cork factories in Spain today was joined in pointing to the honor and glory of that ancient quip by Herr Maxie Schmeling. Much stranger things will come to pass in 1931, no doubt, than seeing the New York boxing commission declare Max is no longer a blue blood and his heavyweight championship of the world as vacant as an aching void.

To be pointed as a tack, the commission has promised it will declare the heavyweight title vacant unless Schmeling specifically accepts the challenge of Jack Sharkey on or before Dec. 31.

Max Does Some Ducking.

The fact that the champion wired the commission that Joe Jacobs was his sole manager and that Schmeling had cabled Jacobs to go before the commission and act for him, was considered by the commissioners as most evasive on the part of the German. The cablegram was in response to one sent last Tuesday demanding that Schmeling accept within 15 days the challenge of Sharkey.

The situation today pointed to a show-down which is hardly expected to result in anything but disaster to Schmeling.

No Standing With Commish.

In the first place, Jacobs has no license as a manager in New York and he has no more standing with the fistic papas than a flag-pole sitter. Jacobs announced all over the town today he planned to appear before the commission next Tuesday and ask that the commissioners wait until April before even selecting the outstanding challenger, much less demanding that his Maxie prepare to get busy at once in defense of his title.

Jacobs further said he would not back down from his stand that the challenger must not be named until 90 days before the fight in which the German will defend his wobbly crown.

Leave It to Press.

"I will not be pinned down to a man named in December," said Joe "and I will leave it to the press to decide who is the outstanding challenger next April. If the New York commission does not agree to that, we will take the fight to Chicago."

Which proves that while Maxie may not be much of a fighter, his manager is a champion and a smart one. Jacobs fears Sharkey because he knows he is good. He hopes that elimination heavyweight bouts held over the winter might place either Stribling, Primo Carnera, Victorio Campolo or some one not any more menacing in favor ere the apple blossoms bloom again, thus eliminating the danger of Schmeling ever having again to face the Boston sailor.

That Chicago Offer.

The Chicago stadium has offered Jacobs $500,000 for a Schmeling-Stribling fight, but Jacobs is too smart to fight Stribling in Chicago if he can fight anyone in New York, for he knows that the winner of the Chicago fight would not be recognized as the world's champion in New York.

Since last May, when Jacobs filed his application for a manager's license, the commission has been playing a game of checkers with Joe and he is now in the position of bowing to the commission or being swept off the board. If the commissioners keep their word, something they have seldom done in the past, Jacobs will have to knuckle very low to save the situation and his New York fight. He holds a second's license here and Max might perform in New York with Jacobs his manager in name only.

Fight Game Has Boom When Dempsey Third Man In Ring

Former Champ Cleans Up In His New Role as Referee of Bouts

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

Jack Dempsey & Co. are getting all primed for a refereeing tour along the Atlantic seaboard in January and February.

The "& Co." is busy at present scheduling dates for the man who gained fame with his fists and now is becoming glamorous as a "third man."

Mr. Sacks the Originator.

In case you aren't aware, the "& Co." is Leonard Sacks, the natty business manager of Dempsey. Sacks, who poses—or ought to—for suit and overcoat houses during his spare time, is the aggressive, hus ling citizen who is first the advance man for Dempsey and then the major domo when Jack gets ready to fulfill his engagements.

Sacks is credited with originating the idea that has been profitable to Dempsey. It's the old percentage plan applied to a referee's job, so far as the payoff is concerned.

Selling His Idea.

Jack had refereed countless charity bouts and also many for small town promoters for nothing more than expense money. Then, 'tis said, Sacks met up with a small town promoter who was having trouble keeping out of the "red" and said to him:

"Why don't you get Jack to referee for you?"

"Can't afford it," was the answer. "Can't pay my referees more than $10 or $15."

"What do you usually draw on a good night?"

Promoter All But Faints.

"Well," countered Sacks, "I'll make a proposition to you. Agree to give Dempsey 50 per cent of the house and I'll influence him to come up here and referee."

The promoter nearly fainted.

"How can I give him $750?" he gasped.

"You'll give him plenty more than that," returned Sacks. "The people still want to see Jack, in a ring or out, as a fighter or referee. He ought to add $3,000 to your house. That's a total of $4,500. Your half is $2,250. That's $750 more than you usually get and the referee is paid, too."

Cash Comes Rolling In.

Reluctantly the promoter agreed. Dempsey refereed. The house hit $5,700—$2,850 for the promoter and the same for Dempsey.

Other promoters heard about it. They wrote, wired or telephoned requesting Dempsey to referee for them and rejuvenate their bankrolls. Sacks lined up a brief trip for Jack along the Pacific slope. Although most of his seven or eight appearances were in small towns where the "gates" rarely went better than $2,500 to $4,000, this Dempsey boy, merely as a referee, drew houses that grossed around $100,000.

Everywhere In Demand.

And don't forget this is supposed to be the year of the great depression.

Dempsey was in big demand everywhere. During the last six or seven months, he perhaps has travelled 50,000 miles by auto, rail and air, to keep refereeing engagements. He made a whirlwind tour of the south through October and November and the gross went over the $125,000 mark, although most of his work was in small towns with a population of no more than 25,000 to 40,000.

Making Plenty for Jack.

Just how much Dempsey actually will make this year from this refereeing is his secret—and Sacks's. The gross total perhaps will hit well beyond $100,000. It would have been $50,000 higher if Dempsey had held all parties to the original agreement. But frequently, when a charity was involved, Dempsey would take only his expenses and in instances where rainy weather cut down the "gate," Dempsey tore up the document and took 50 per cent of the net, although entitled to half of the gross.

Which ever has been Jack Dempsey's way.

Against this array of talent, the western coaches, Percy Locey of the Olympic club and Dana Bible of Nebraska, will send the following all-American players:

Beckett, California; Koch, Baylor; Atkins, Texas Christian; Greenberg, Nebraska; Christensen, Oregon; Ebding, St. Mary's; Long, Southern Methodist; Bausch, Kansas; Kitzmiller, Oregon; Shelley, Texas, and Wilson, Baylor.

East Conceded Edge.

For theoretical perfection, there seems little to choose between the two squads, but, as a matter of fact, the East outfit appears actually the stronger and more versatile, and is already conceded a slight edge to take a third straight victory in the classic.

The eastern backfield combination of Bruder, Baker, Hart and Macaluso will be hard to beat.

"Iron Legs" Macaluso, Colgate's plunging fullback and champion scorer of the country, is counted upon to make things unpleasant for the West. Baker is a fine kicker and passer and one of the best field generals. Hart and Bruder both are dangerous.

East Has Heavier Line.

The East line, veterans all, and outweighing the West eight pounds on the average, may be the determining factor in the contest. The West has been weak in the line all season. However, strength in the end positions, with Louie Long, S. M. U., and Bill McKalip, Oregon, both notable pass receivers, may produce an aerial game that Coaches Lacey and Bible favor and that may bring many a gain.

The West backfield probably will be composed of Johnny Kitzmiller, Oregon's "flying Dutchman;" Jim Bausch, Kansas; "Little Jake" Wilson, 145-pound Baylor quarterback, and Dexter Shelley, Texas.

The speedy Kitzmiller may prove elusive in the open field, Wilson can heave passes unerringly, Bausch tears holes in the line and Shelley is known as some blocker, but they'll all have to be at peak if the East all-star aggregation is to be stopped.

sight-seeing trip. The party reaches Los Angeles late Tuesday, and on Wednesday the business of grim practice will be tackled in earnest.

This Alabama outfit has eclipsed all other Wade-coached teams in the blocking of punts, so Coach Wade said today. He hopes that the boys' practice in breaking through and smothering kicks will give them a good break in the New Year's game, and his hopes have been fired by the fact that Washington State resorts to quick-kicking.

Spends Coin for Hats.

Wade also revealed that the boys' alertness in punt-blocking had been costly to him. It all started from Wade's offer of a hat to any player who blocked a punt.

"Before the Vandy game, I told John Suther I'd give him a hat if he scored a touchdown," Wade said. "John scored, so did Campbell. I gave 'em a hat each, and then presented one to John Cain, because his wonderful punting played an important part in the victory."

Wade said that Alabama has devoted at least 15 minutes per day this season to practice in blocking kicks.

Cougars to Halt for Drill.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 20—(INS)—Arrangements were completed tonight for the Washington State football squad, now enroute from Pullman, Washington, to Pasadena, to stop off in Berkeley for a workout with the all-star western squad being prepared for the East-West annual Shrine gridiron classic here Dec. 27.

After several weeks of intensive practice, Coach "Babe" Hollingbery believes he has brought the Cougars along to a point where they can turn back the Crimson Tide. The Cougars have been concentrating on offense, perfecting plays with which they hope to score on the Alabamans.

The Cougars have been outstanding on defense this season, but have faltered somewhat on scoring plays.

The Cougar squad appeared to be in excellent condition when it left Spokane last night with the exception of Mel Hein, center, and Edwards, tackle, both of whom starred for Washington State during the season. It is believed, however, that both will be able to start against Alabama.

BAER MAKES HIT WITH RING FANS

BY L. S. CAMERON.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20—(UP)—Max Adelbelt Baer came from out of the west to seek fistic glory. He failed to win in his first eastern start. He lost a decision to Ernest Schaaf of Boston. But while Max Adelbert was forced to add a defeat to his brief boxing record, the praises of New York boxing writers and fans were ringing in his ears.

Baer's home is in Livermore, Cal. Schaaf's home is in Newark, N. J., but he is registered at the Boston stable of Johnny Buckley, which also boasts the name of Jack Sharkey.

Baer and Schaaf met before a disappointingly small crowd at Madison Square Garden last night. Their bout was supposed to be an attempt at establishing a heavyweight renaissance. In this it was successful. While not more than 9,000 persons paid to see the fight, eastern boxing enthusiasts were talking of heavyweights today, and that's a healthy sign.

Praised by Ring Patrons.

Heavyweights, ever since the Sharkey-Schmeling bout, which ended with a foul, have been all but forgotten in the east.

Most of the conversations revolved about the head of Maxie Baer, and on most points the conversationalists agreed. These were:

That Baer one day may become champion.

That Baer is a courageous fighter.

That he is no boxer.

That he should be "nursed along" against heavies of his now established class for at least one year.

A a matter of fact, Bear probably came closer to winning his fight with Schaaf than is generally realized. He won or halved every round through the fifth. He rocked Schaaf with swinging rights which started from the floor and with side-sweeping lefts.

Ernie Weathers Storm.

But Ernest weathered this early turmoil and after the fifth round his superior boxing and skill decided the issue. Max Adelbert was all but knocked out several times in the closing rounds, but he had the strength and fighting heart to spurt through the tenth round, which he nearly won.

Baer is what is known to boxing as a "crowd pleaser." He has the grit to smile through adversity, but, on occasion, he becomes the thoroughly aroused and angry battler every fan likes to see. He has a Dempsey-like build, with wide shoulders, deep chest, tapering waist and sturdy legs.

Schaaf, too, may go a long way. He is cordially liked by eastern fans. But Schaaf, after some 125 bouts and a ring career of six years, does not seem to hold the promise boasted by Baer.

Rates Himself Good.

Baer was his own advertising agent for his bout with Schaaf. He loves to talk to sports writers on the subject of Baer. He believes in himself and says so.

Even after last night's defeat, he talked enthusiastically. He spied Micky Walker, middleweight champion, passing his dressing room door.

"Hey, Mickey," Max called out. "Tell Jack Kearns I'll be a Dempsey yet. I want to be like Jack and I have plenty of time. I'm glad I pleased the crowd."

And then he went on from there.

JOETOWN STICKS TO GRID BOOKING

St. Joseph Hi Declines Transfer Turkey Day Game to Lincoln.

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 20—(Special)—Effort of Lincoln high school representatives to transfer next fall's Lincoln-St. Joseph Central football game from St. Joseph to Lincoln failed at the annual meeting of the Missouri Valley high school conference here Saturday. Director Earl Johnson and Athletic Manager Lauritsen of Lincoln sought to bring the game to Lincoln because the University of Nebraska will play at Pittsburgh on the date, Thanksgiving day.

After awarding the 1931 track championships to Omaha Tech and the golf and tennis tournaments to Omaha, all on May 29, the representatives drafted football and basketball schedules for 1932.

Officers elected were Dwight Porter, Omaha, president; H. C. Mardis, Lincoln, secretary-treasurer; J. M. Haines, St. Joseph, vice-president.

Varsity Star Wins Rhodes Scholarship

Julius Byles, varsity player on the Princeton football team, was one of the 33 students selected in the United States from 529 applicants to be awarded a Rhodes scholarship. The scholarship provides $2,000 annually for three years, with the stipulation that the first two years be spent at Oxford and the remaining year at any foreign college.

CALUMET ADAM PLENTY SPEEDY

Kentucky Pacer Likely Go In Two Minutes Next Year.

When a trotter or pacer acquires a record around 2:01, the owner, or at least a majority of them, thinks that he has the next two-minute performer. But from 2:01 to 2:00 is a long journey, and the statistical tables show that around 50 trotters and pacers which acquire records of 2:01 or better failed to enter the select circle of two-minute performers.

There is one particular performer which went into winter quarters with a tab of 2:01¼ that really looks to have an extra good chance to acquire two-minute honors in 1931, this being the three-year-old pacer, Calumet Adam, 3, 2:01¼, which carried the colors of Calumet Farm, Lexington, Ky., in 1929 and 1930.

Fast Heat at Kalamazoo.

The chestnut colt from W. M. Wright's breeding establishment stacked against the best of the stake pacers of the year in the $25,000 pacing derby at Kalamazoo last July, paced one of the greatest races ever credited to a pacer of his age and, over a track which is not considered fast, paced to his record of 2:01¼ when he showed the big field the way in the opening round.

Sent away on a break in the second heat, he was out of it, but came back and forced May E. Grattan to tramp the third and fourth heat in 2:01½ and 2:02¼.

Should Turn Trick in '31.

Later, he paced another mile in 2:01¼ in a race at Springfield, Ill., but, unfortunately, was taken sick shortly after, and failed to get back into top form. Otherwise, he undoubtedly would have been a two-minute pacer this year. On what he showed this year, it would seem almost center tha the Calumet Farm colt would turn the trick in 1931.

HOOF BEATS.

Only a few days and all horses will be a year older. They move up a year on January 1, in the harness horse world.

Walnut Hall farm has purchased Lady Brooke 2:05¼, and Petrona by Caduceus the Great from Leo Oettinger, New York City. Both mares will enter the brood mare ranks at the Kentucky speed nursery.

The trotting mare, Mazie Brooke, 2:09¾, owned by Mrs. John W. Van Buskirk, New York City, and raced this year on the Grand Circuit by Vic Fleming, is to be retired and will be bred to the Hanover Shoe Farms stallion, Sandy Flash.

O. C. Belt, Columbus, Ohio, who recently sold the fast and handsome trotting stallion, High Noon, 2:02¾, to Walnut Hall farm, has purchased the three-year-old trotting colt, Bonnicastle, 3, 2:08¾, by Peter Volo, 4, 2:02, from David M. Look, New York City.

The Hanover Shoe farms stable in charge of Tom Berry, who piloted the members of the "shoestring" to many sparkling victories in 1930, was shipped from Hanover, Pa., to Orlando, Fla., last week.

Earl Pitman, the Trenton, N. J., reinsman, who raced the great pacing mare, May E. Grattan, 1:59½, with marked success this year, has added the Ohio pacer, The Grand, 2:05, to his stable. The Grand, a son of Oliver Evans, 2:16¼, showed plenty of class in his races this year and will be sighted for the big money in 1931.

William Allen, son of the Lexington, Ky., trainer, Ed Allen, has accepted a position as second trainer for Fred Egan and will move shortly to Orlando, Fla., where the Egan string will be trained.

Will Dickerson, trainer of the Arden Homestead stable of E. Roland Harriman, is very enthusiastic about the yearlings by Guy Trogan, 2:03, which he has in his stable at Pinehurst, N. C.

It is hinted that Nat Ray may leave the trotters and pacers and return to the runners. Ray piloted Guy McKinney to victory in the first Hambletonian Stake, which was raced in 1926, the event that year being worth $73,451.32.

"Strib" Has Led Very Busy Life

W. L. (Young) Stribling, one of the foremost contenders for the heavyweight boxing championship, is at the age of 26 a man experienced in many lines.

For one thing, he has had almost 300 fights. He is married and has two sons.

He has put in more than 800 hours in the air and now owns his fourth plane.

He superintends a 1,500-acre plantation in Georgia, where cotton, sugar cane and corn are grown.

And he has been in Europe three times.

PHAR LAP SURE SHOT RACE HOSS

Australian Nag Likely to Break All Records as Money-Winner.

BY FRANK MENKE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20—It's perfectly loyal for the U. S. A. to get all aroused over Gallant Fox, the high money-winning gander, and Sun Beau, Equipoise and Jamestown, which may tag the Fox and then pass him by—but don't overlook this horsie named Phar Lap.

He is campaigning down in Australia, where purses are comparatively low. Yet this four-year-old already had won $224,210 by Nov. 5 and that was just the start of Australia's racing year, where the seasons reverse ours.

Great Distance Runner.

Australia has produced some marvelous track-burners through more than a half century, but Phar Lap rates as the greatest distance horse in all Australian history. Right now he seems to outclass opposition by so vast a chasm of speed and durability that he should go through the year unbeaten. If so, he will be up around the $300,000 mark.

Weight, 'tis said, will cause a train to pause. But it hasn't stopped Phar Lap. They loaded him up with 138 pounds for the Melbourne Cup, but he snickered his way two full miles and "just tip-toed home far ahead of all pursuit.

Owner Gave Lease.

D. J. Davis bought the colt as a yearling but never thought he had a bargain. Harry R. Telford, an obscure owner and trainer, looked him over and came to conclude what no other man in Australia thought, "Here is a mighty race horse." Telford asked Davis if he could lease Phar Lap and Davis was entirely agreeable. With the deal completed, Telford undertook Phar Lap's yearling training.

The colt didn't take to his studies very seriously and when he went to the races at two he barely escaped the maiden class. Quite a dumb bunny in horse wisdom, Phar Lap five times ran second, won once (purse $910) and upon the other four occasions finished among the doleful also-rans.

Goes Like Express Train.

"He's built for a route," Telford told those who jocosely inquired, "What's happened to your wonder horse?"

Debutting at three, Phar Lap showed little in his early races. And then, of a sudden, he got the hang of things. Since then he's been Australia's twentieth century express. At anything beyond a mile, he is the super horse of the Antipodes—perhaps of the world.

As a four year-old, he won his first nine starts. He almost has wrecked the bookmaking fraternity. Betting on him is no more hazardous than having your money locked up in a safety deposit box. But there's a difference. The bookie must pay interest.

Shortest Price In History.

In the future books on the historic Melbourne Cup, Phar Lap was quoted at around six to one. On race day he was eight to 11, meaning you had to bet 11 to win eight—the shortest priced horse in the history of the Melbourne Cup.

A few days before the race, a group in an automobile, riding past his barn, fired shots intended to kill him. But none hit him. The culprits were not nabbed. Who they were nobody knows. But the bookmakers bitterly resent insinuations that one of their number inspired somebody to kill the horse that no one could stop from winning.

May Smash All Records.

Up to Nov. 5, Phar Lap had gone to the barrier 33 times during his career, scored 22 victories, two seconds, two thirds and won $224,210. He's as sound as a brass bell and seems good for at least three more great racing years. If that is so, he will run his earnings up to $400,000 or $425,000.

And that, dear citizens of Rome—or ain't you a resident?—is equivalent to winning $750,000 in this country, where selling platers get shots at $50,000 purses every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Oklahoma is satisfied concerning his eligibility," Dr. Allen said.

Sooners Deny Protest.

NORMAN, Okla., Dec. 20—(U. P.)—The University of Oklahoma has not protested the eligibility of two University of Kansas basketball players, it was learned tonight from Oklahoma authorities, who refused to be quoted directly.

Reports from Lawrence said that Oklahoma had filed protests to the eligibility of William and Kenneth Johnson, Oklahoma City brothers, who are members of the Kansas team.

Dean S. W. Reaves, dean of the faculty representatives of the Big Six conference, also refused to comment. However, it was understood that Oklahoma merely pointed out to the Kansas authorities that the two brothers played a Commercial league game here Dec. 26, 1929, against a Mustang, Okla., squad. This is was alleged, was in violation of Big Six conference rule prohibiting varsity men or freshmen representing another team.

ANTRAM CAPTAIN OF WYMORE TEAM

WYMORE, Neb., Dec. 20—Floyd Antram, stellar quarterback of the 1930 Wymore high grid team, has been elected as leader of the Gembler squad for 1931. The announcement was made at the annual football banquet Thursday evening. Letters were awarded to 21 gridders.

The Cardinals had a very successful season, losing but two tilts. Crete and Jackson high were the only teams to defeat the Wymore eleven.

Antram is a junior and is one of 11 lettermen who will be available for the Wymore squad next season.

Coach H. F. Schulte of the University of Nebraska and Walter Black, secretary of the Nebraska High School Athletic association, spoke at the banquet.

Penn Knocked Over By Michigan Quint

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Dec. 20—(I. N. S.)—For the third straight time Pennsylvania's traveling basketball squad was defeated tonight when Michigan chalked up a 46 to 22 score against the invaders.

Previously the Penn team went down before Wisconsin and Notre Dame. The victory was the third successive one for Michigan.

Penn did not threaten once. In the first half, Deforest Eveland, crack Michigan forward, sank five baskets and in the second half Norm Daniels got 12 points, enough to discourage the easterners.

TROJAN QUARTER MIXES SINGLES

Orv Mohler All Balled Up In Scheme to Play With Hearts.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Dec. 20—(UP)—Affairs of the heart tonight appeared to have Orville Mohler, young University of Southern California football star, just about as baffled as Orville and 10 other Trojans were two weeks ago when Notre Dame put on a magician's act before 90,000 fans in the coliseum.

Out in Hollywood was Rosita Moreno, 19 years old and a talented screen actress, and over in Long Beach was Miss Gertrude Ross, also 19, the daughter of Harry Ross, retired Oklahoma oil man.

And in between, so to speak, was Mohler, dark-haired, handsome, one of the best sophomore quarterbacks in football and no mediocre performer on a ballroom floor when not in training for the gridiron.

Hangs Around In Hollywood.

For some time, particularly after the end of the football season gave him additional liberty, Mohler has been often seen in Hollywood with Miss Moreno. Questioned by newspaper men at the studio, where she was workin, Miss Moreno admitted she and the football star were "very good friends" but that the time was not yet ripe for any formal announcement of an engagement.

"I am only 19 years old, you know," the actress said, "and Orville has three more years in the university. There might be something to announce later."

Mohler denied that he had pledged his troth with the actress. In the course of conversation, Miss Ross entered the picture. Her status, it developed, hinged more or less on the quaint and age-old collegiate habit of girls wearing men's fraternity pins.

Frat Pin Proves It.

Mohler's Phi Kappa Psi pin is worn by Miss Ross, and, to many collegians, that means just one thing—an engagement.

Mohler said: "Gertrude is wearing my fraternity pin, which means she is my girl."

Miss Ross said: "I am wearing Orv's pin. That may or may not constitute an engagement. I cannot say I am engaged until I talk to some one else."

Who that some one else might be Miss Ross preferred not to say.

STRENGTH NATURAL TO TED SANDWINA

Ted Sandwina, heavyweight boxer, inherited his great strength. His mother, a circus performer, was the strongest woman in the world, she could lift 20 men.

Ted was a youngster with a circus education. John Ringling wanted to adopt him. He was named after Roosevelt.

In Europe at the age of 16, he having gone over with his parents who were with a circus, his first boxing was done. Max Schmeling once was his sparring partner.

WILDCAT QUINTET BEATS CARLETON

CHICAGO, Dec. 20—(I. N. S.)—Northwestern's basketball quintet romped over Carleton college at Evanston tonight, defeating the Minnesota college five by a score of 31 to 22.

Riel, forward, was high point man for Northwestern with four baskets and three free throws. Perrin led for the losers with nine points.

BELOIT BOWLED OVER BY GOPHERS

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Dec. 20—(I. N. S.)—Minnesota defeated Beloit college, 39 to 18, in a basketball contest here tonight. The Wisconsin quintet did its best work in the first half, scoring 14 points to Minnesota's 21, but in the last period Beloit was held to four free throws, while the local five counted 18 points.

HIGH BASKETBALL.

CHESTER.

CHESTER, Neb., Dec. 20—Chester high won its first game of the year from Alexandria, 11 to 5. The contest was played before the largest crowd ever to witness a basketball game here. Gallion, Chester captain, was high scorer with six points. Mohr and Hartman, guards on the local five, played a strong defensive game. The Chester schedule:

Feb. 6—Hardy at Hardy; Feb. 10—Hubbell at Chester; Feb. 14—Superior at Superior; Feb. 17—Hebron at Hebron.

WOOD RIVER.

WOOD RIVER, Neb., Dec. 20—Wood River dropped the initial game of its basketball season Friday night when the Pleasanton five took the long end of a 16 to 10 score. Failure to convert short shots was costly to the local team. Dixon of Pleasanton led the scoring with eight points. The Wood River schedule:

JAN 6—St. Paul at Wood River; Jan. 9—Riverdale at Wood River; Jan. 13—Overton at Overton; Jan. 16—Gibbon at Gibbon; Jan. 20—Dannebrog at Wood River; Jan. 22—Open; Jan. 27—Gibbon at Wood River; Jan. 30—Kearney Prep at Kearney.

SOONERS REPEAT WIN OVER TEXAS

Oklahoma Cagers Single Point In Front of Longhorns.

AUSTIN, Tex., Dec. 20—(UP)—University of Oklahoma cagers barely emerged with victory from a hard fought basketball battle with the University of Texas here tonight, winning 34 to 33. The game marked the fifth straight defeat for the Texans and their second one-point beating at the hands of the Oklahoma Sooners.

At the half, the University of Texas trailed their visitors, 21 to 13. A sensational rally in the waning moments spot-lighted Earl Taylor, forward, and Captain Jimmy Fomby, but the comeback proved futile though the score was tied 29-all in the last period. Two field goals by Hathman and Anderson and a free toss point by Anderson in the final seconds meant victory for the Sooners.

Oklahoma scored 14 field goals to Texas' nine. Taylor of Texas led the scoring with 18 points, eight of which were tossed from the field. Anderson, Oklahoma, led the scoring for the Sooners with 15 points. He climaxed the Sooner victory by dropping a free toss for the one-point margin. The score:

KANSAS SWAMPS MISSOURI QUINT

Jayhawkers Romp Away With Basket Victory By 40-26 Score.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 20—(UP)—With Tom Bishop, fighting University of Kansas captain, leading the attack the Jayhawk cage team tonight stormed its way to victory over the University of Missouri basketeers, winning, 40 to 26. Many K. U. substitutes saw action in the second half.

Bishop at forward carried off individual scoring honors, dropping six field goals through the hoop and adding two free throws to total 14 points. Hale, former Rockhurst college, Kansas City, star, playing center for the Jayhawkers, bagged three fieldgoals and gave his captain able assistance.

Hale had not been slated to start but was thrust into the lineup when Dr. F. C. Allen, K. U. athletic director and basketball coach, decided not to use Bill Johnson, great sophomore pivot man, following a request from an investigation made by the University of Oklahoma.

For Missouri, Jimmy Zinn, once a Kansas City high school star, showed the best stuff. Playing forward, he eluded the tight Kansas guarding to slip three field goals through the ring. He also had a talent for being fouled, and added six free throws to his scoring record. The score:

Washburn Downed By Kansas Aggies

TOPEKA, Kas., Dec. 20—(UP)—The Kansas Aggies cage team, playing tight basketball, tonight took the measure of the Washburn college team, 34 to 28, in a well played game here. Individual scoring honors went to Boyd, Washburn forward, with three field goals and six free throws for a total of 12 points, but the combined efforts of the Aggie marksmen were too much for even his sterling efforts.

Alex Nigro, Aggie captain, once a Kansas City high school star, played nicely, but his scoring eye was not in tune and he caged only two of his many tries at the hoop. He added four free throws, however. The score:

Gardner Rings Up Total 13 Baskets

With Gardner scoring 13 baskets and 26 of his team's points, Bethany Christian trimmed St. Paul M. E., 30-10, in the third week of competition in class C of the Y. M. C. A. Church league. Games in both divisions of class C Saturday night at the "Y" wound up Church league competition until Jan. 2.

Although the play was close in the first half, the Grace M. E. offense was able to roll up 13 points in the last two periods to trounce Havelock M. E., 20-6. Dietrich led the scoring for the victors with eight points. The entire Havelock M. E. score was accounted for by McKee.

Second Baptist trailed Union Church by one point at the half, but came back and edged out its opponents, 19-11. Williams, Second Baptist center, was responsible for eight of this team's counters.

Both teams displayed a potent offense in the game in which First Baptist defeated Temple Baptist, 26-21. Hammer was high point man for the winners with 10 markers. Shaw led Temple Baptist with 12 points.

The Second Presbyterian eagers turned in another victory when they spilled Elm Park M. E., 18-14. Pavey was high man for the Presbyterian quintet with eight points.

Warren M. E. had little difficulty with the diminutive First Plymouth team, winning 24-4. Parsons was high point man for Warren with 12 points. The energetic defensive play of Luke stood out fo rthe losers. The scores:

WILL OF MURDERED WOMAN CONTESTED

Nieces of Eccentric Mrs. Rosetta Baker File Suit; Charge Woman Was Addict.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 20—(I. N. S.)—Charges that Mrs. Rosetta Baker, strangled to death in her luxurious apartment here two weeks ago, was a narcotic addict and that she gave "wild and drunken parties" with men young enough to be her grandchildren as her guests, were made here today in a sensational suit filed in Superior court to break the will disposing of her $580,000 estate.

Two nieces of the eccentric 73-year-old amateur actress and apartment house owner, Mrs. Hazel Ardene Cox of San Francisco and Mrs. Alma Lorraine Root of Oakland, started the will contest. They named as defendants the Los Angeles and St. Louis beneficiaries, and the executors of the estate, Lincoln U. Grant of San Francisco and Arthur L. R. Miller of Los Angeles.

Mrs. Baker was slain a few hours after she had attended a theater party with Walter Middleton Cutler, young amateur actor, who had been her protege for several months.

Her 63-year-old Chinese servant has been charged with her murder by the police, although the county grand jury refused to indict him.

The will contest suit charged that Mrs. Baker was under the "undue influence" of Grant, her business manager.

Francis Stadsvold has begun his twelfth season as coach of the West Virginia university basketball team.

Benjamin Appears on G.O.P. Horizon as a "Colonel House" For Hoover Administration

Californian to Have Office in National Republican Headquarters, But Rumor That He Will Become Chairman Branded as "Silly."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20—(UP)—A new figure, little known here, has appeared in national republican circles to act as a sort of "Colonel House" for the Hoover administration.

House became internationally famous and President Wilson's confidential agent and adviser when he undertook private missions for the wartime executive and was so successful that ultimately he dealt with foreign nations in Mr. Wilson's behalf.

Roy Benjamin, a law partner of Samuel Shortridge, republican, California, is moving to Washington, apparently to do something about the same thing in a political way for President Hoover.

An office is being made ready for him at republican national committee headquarters, but no title is being assumed him. Upon all the glass doors of the headquarters are signs like "Senator Fess, chairman" or "Mr. Lucas, executive director," but upon Benjamin's door will be only "Mr. Benjamin."

May Become G. O. P. Chairman.

When asked concerning Benjamin's connection with the committee, Senator Fess said: "Nothing definite has been determined upon that up to date."

In senatorial circles it is generally believed Benjamin is being groomed for the chairmanship, as Fess is expected to retire in the spring. This, however, is branded "a silly rumor" at the white house and by all those connected with the committee, including Benjamin.

It seems the Californian is to come and go as he chooses at the capitol and committee headquarters, unencumbered by a title for the present. A close friend of Mr. Hoover for years, he was one of the group invited to the Hoover mansion at Palo Alto, Cal., on election night, 1928. Benjamin is expected to take an active part in the campaign for renomination of Mr. Hoover in 1932.

Switches to Shortridge.

Early in his career, it is said, Benjamin was identified with the Johnson wing of the party in California. In recent years however, he has been affiliated with the Shortridge wing. There is a wide difference between the two groups. About ten days ago, Benjamin was called to the white house on a confidential matter. Shortly afterward he returned to San Francisco and made arrangements to move his office here.

At present he has few contracts with members of congress other than Shortridge. Benjamin is 58 years old and has had an extensive legal career. He began the practice of law in 1892 at his birthplace, Vallejo, across the bay from San Francisco. Later he served as district attorney of Napa county, chief deputy of the attorney general of California and attorney for the state insurance commission.

In 1918 Benjamin was made regional director of the republican national committee and later became a special assistant attorney general here. Recently he has been practicing law, specializing in tax cases.

CHICAGO, Dec. 20—(UP)—The American association today accepted with out qualification the draft proposal as submitted by the major leagues.

President Thomas J. Hickey of the American association said the decision to accept the draft was made upon the receipt of votes of the owners of the clubs in the league.

The American association is the first of the three minor double A baseball leagues to accept the draft. The Pacific Coast league and the International league, which have been leading the battle against the draft, have taken no action.

President Hickey said he did not know whether the action of the American association would affect the attitude of the Pacific Coast or International leagues.

The draft, in short, calls for a purchase price of $7,500 and stipulates that the player must have four years of minor league experience before he is eligible to be drafted by a major league club.

HOLIDAY PLANS HOLD CENTER OF SOCIAL STAGE THIS WEEK

Christmas Week Calendar Crowded With Festivities

Affairs Planned for Next Few Days Include Dinners, Dances, Luncheons for Young School Set and Others Home for the Holiday Season.

HASTE—fleeting glimpses of colored lights in windows, Christmas trees, tinsel, holly wreaths, the beam of Christmas candles, ornaments—more haste—eager-eyed, breathless children, smartly dressed shoppers, worn out shoppers, toys, bundles, mailing lines—more haste, but everywhere— Christmas.

And the social calendar is crowded with festivities of every variety. There are dinners and dances and luncheons, some of them for the very young school set, some for young matrons who are home for the holidays, and some given for no better excuse than holiday fun.

Mrs Morris Roberts Mrs Monroe Gleason, Mrs Kenneth Cozier Mrs Thomas T Varney have been the incentive for a number of affairs since their arrival for the holiday season and a number of other things have been planned for them during their stay

Friday afternoon, Mrs. Monroe Gleason entertained a group at an afternoon bridge at her home including in her guest list the out of town girls, and hostesses who had complimented her with social affairs.

Holiday Dinner Dance.

An attractive holiday dinner dance was given Saturday evening at the Lincoln hotel, by the Cornhusker dancing club. A huge tree decorated with silver icicles and blue lights centered the ballroom and the four tables arranged cross-shaped around it. On the tables, set for forty couples, were small trees banked with artificial snow and decorated in silver. These were alternated with white tapers in silver candlesticks. Potted flowers for the ladies and miniature reindeer were at the places for favors.

At the entrance was a large fireplace on which were stockings filled with candy for the ladies. There weer two favor dances, the men receiving flashlights and pencils, and the ladies stationery. Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Lowry, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Gardner, and Mr. and Mrs. Earle Hildebrand were guests. The committee included Mr. and Mrs. C. Myron Loomis, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Roper, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Aldrich, and Mr. and Mrs. Victor Toft. During dinner Miss Margaret Atken gave a dance.

School Children Present Operetta

—Bucklin Photo.

Sheridan school children presented a Christmas operetta "The Toys Entertain," Tuesday afternoon at the school. Thursday morning the performance was repeated for an assembly of the whole school.

Women's Clubs Planning Help Make Christmas Real

Programs and Gifts for Children in State Institutions Scheduled to Fill Busy Days of Pre-Christmas Period for Hundreds Lincoln Women.

The civics department of the Woman's club under the leadership of Mrs. Eugene Levy has formulated plans for Christmas entertainment for the "shut-ins." This department will co-operate with the music and dramatic departments in featuring programs.

Children at the Orthopedic hospital will be entertained Thursday with an operetta entitled "The Great Adventure" by the music department under the direction of Mrs. W. A. Miller. Candy canes will be distributed by the civics department. Readings and music will complete the program.

Letters written to Santa Claus have been received. Every wish expressed in them has been answered, wrapped with paper ribbon and tinsel. Bearing each child's name they will reach their proper destination.

Program At Farm.

At the county farm plans have been completed for a program. The Christmas tree will be donated by the girls athletic association of the Lincoln high school under the supervision of Miss Lillian Story.

The dramatic art department will present a little skit "Aunt Sabiny's Christmas." The Lincoln-Crete club will co-operate in presenting each inmate with an individual gift and assist in the program with readings and vocal solos. Red and green tarlatan Christmas stockings are being made by the children at the Orthopedic and filled with candy by Mrs. Clara Stover. Gifts will be presented to each inmate. Mrs. [illegible] Iverson impersonating Santa Claus.

The children at the detention home will be provided with suitable gifts and warm clothing.

Operetta Planned.

The home for dependent children in University Place will be entertained with a Christmas operetta by the music department. One hundred fourteen letters to Santa Claus have been received and every child's desire has been gratified. The music, dramatic and mental hygiene departments lending their assistance in the acknowledgement of the letters. The promise to "Be good as Christmas is Coming" was scrawled in many letters and "Mamma dolls that talk, trains that wind up and go, pop guns and Amos 'n' Andy taxicabs" were some of the things asked for by children who are now wards of the state.

The civics department also delivered toys, candies and Christmas trees to destitute families who are not provided for by any other agency.

Gifts Made By Children In Hospital

Children at the state Orthopedic hospital in Lincoln believe in Santa Claus. They know he'll bring a lot of pretty toys on Christmas to cheer their long convalescence. And because they know how to appreciate those brightly-colored playthings in a world of hospital wards, they are determined to do their bit to insure similar joys to other unfortunate children.

Several of the tiny patients have been laboring for some time now on a number of wooden toys which they are going to send to children at the Jicarillo Southern Mountain sanatorium at Dulce, New Mexico.

The elaborate facilities in Santa's workshop are too far away for use, but the Orthopedic kiddies are going to show him a few tricks of his trade.

Parents Join Children In County First Aid Classes

Parents matched wits with children and teachers with their pupils in final examinations given Saturday to the rural Red Cross first aid class of Lancaster county at the Lincoln Y. M. C. A. building. The class, held for the first time this year by the local Red Cross, is believed to be the first county-wide instructional unit in the history of the American Red Cross.

Started as a junior enterprise, eighteen adults joined thirty-six children whose ages varied from 12 to 17 in the class. They met each Saturday morning for eight consecutive weeks and this week's ninth session was devoted to the tests [illegible] the requirements of official Red Cross first aid [illegible] from the national headquarters.

E. F. Burke, instructor in first aid at the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co., was in charge of the class. He was assisted by Roy Meissner, captain of the telephone company's first aid team, and Jack McKenzie, an outstanding Boy Scout of Lincoln.

Several Talks Given.

In addition to the regular lectures and demonstrations, supplementary talks were given by O. B. Anderson, athletic director of the Y. M. C. A., Mrs. Fred Putney, representing the Camp Fire Girls organization, and A. J. Gillette, Boy Scout executive for Lincoln.

The class was composed only of persons living in Lancaster county but outside of Lincoln, any children being given first aid instruction through their school. The towns of Davey and Rokeby sent the largest delegation. A total of fourteen rural school districts being represented in the entire membership of the class.

"The class was started as an experiment and we have been most gratified by the results," is the comment of Mrs. Max Armstrong, secretary of the local chapter of the Red Cross. She also indicated that the instructional plan might be made an annual feature.

Accompany Daughters.

Among the mothers competing with their children is Mrs. Fred Anderson of Walton, who brought her daughters, Eleanor and Alberta. Mrs. George A. Burgess of Rokeby sat next to her daughters Phyllis and Evelyn. Mrs. H. W. Eckwall of District 43 accompanied her daughter, Velma. Garner Tremaine came with her mother, Mrs. L. V. Tremain, from Malcolm.

District 51 not only sent two pupils, Ruth Graff and Evelyn Boyd, but also Mrs. R. R. Betz, president of the school P. T. A., and Mrs. Ella Colbert, the teacher.

Vera Beall is a teacher at Martel and her young brother, Hugh Beall, attends at Roca No. 95, but they made the trip to Lincoln together to learn what they could about first aid.

Club Hears Review Of Conference

Miss Reynoldson Tells History Department Of Conference.

The history section of the Lincoln Woman's club met Tuesday afternoon in Faculty hall for the last meeting of the year.

Prof. Adeline Reynoldson opened the meeting with a review of the recent round table conference in London, where the East Indian self-government question was discussed. The native princes or high caste have had treaties with England but the outcasts or low caste, have had no standing whatever. The low caste was represented at the conference and now will have equal right with the high caste in governmental matters.

It will mean self-government within the empire and India will still remain a part of the British Empire, Miss Reynoldson said. It is also agreed that all of India, the native states as well as British India shall be included in the self-government federation. Although invited to go to neither Gandhi or his party took part in the conference.

"Colonial Rivals" was the lecture topic of the afternoon. Spain and Portugal, Queen Elizabeth, the great East India Co., the Dutch East India Co. and American colonization were discussed. The next meeting will be in January [illegible]. The subject will be "Empire Building in Canada."

Help For Sciatica

Cause of Painful Condition Now Located.

Sciatica is an abnormal condition of the great sciatic nerve which passes to and supplies the tissues of the thigh and lower leg.

Sciatic Nerve.

The essential characteristic of this condition is that of pain, and this pain may be the result of inflammation of the sciatic nerve, or its sheath, or may be due to a pressure upon the sensory nerve fibres which have their peripheral termination in the sciatic nerve. Sciatica can only be classed under one of two heads—neuritis of the nerve tissue, or neuralgia. If neuritis, it is marked by congestion, swelling, redness and pain. Such a condition, when it first exists, gives rise to a marked degree of pain. As it progresses, the pain becomes less pronounced, congestion is gradually eliminated by the overgrowth of connective tissue which binds the nerve fibres together and the contraction of this connective tissue. When the contraction has taken place, sufficiently, it not only eliminates the congestion in the nerve, but it serves to produce compression on the filament which it contains. For this reason, the carrying capacity of these nerve fibres is decreased, and the effects which are noted depend entirely upon the function of those fibres.

Motor Nerves.

Some of them are given the function of transmitting vital energy in the form of motor impulses. If they are pressed upon, the condition is one of partial paralysis, which gradually progresses until complete paralysis results. If the pressure happens to be upon fibres which possess the function of transmitting vital energy in the form of sensory impulses, there is a lack of sensibility in the extremity affected Naturally, the results of such a pathological condition are variable If it is the motor fibres which are involved, the muscular weakness and the final paralysis are accompanied by a decrease in the size of the muscles in the lower limbs. An atrophy exists, and the size of the two lower extremities is not equal.

Sensory Nerves.

If it is the sensory fibres which are affected, the condition gradually progresses until such time as a complete loss of sensibility manifests itself. The limb is insensible to heat, cold, pressure and other impressions which can only be felt if the nerves of sensation are normal in their carrying capacity.

Logically, the only way to eliminate the condition is to eliminate factors which cause the abnormality.

Why Nerves Are Inflamed.

The nerve fibre, like any other tissue or organ, is supplied by many other nerve fibres. They carry impulses of heat, nutrition, expansion, and transmit certain sensations. Upon the proper supply of life force depends the normality of the nerve When it is abnormal, it is because one or more of these varieties of life energy is normal in quantity.

If there is an excessive expression of heat in the sciatic nerve there will be inflammation, and the condition is called sciatica. Excessive expresson of heat can only result because the carrying capacity of those nerves which supply heat impulses are impaired. They can only be impaired when pressure exists upon them, and the only place pressure can exist is where they emit from the spinal cord and pass between bony segments of the spinal column. If one or more of these bony segments is in an abnormal position, pressure is produced upon the nerve fibres, emitting immediately above or below them.

Naturally, if this is the condition which is primarily producing the abnormality, the only way to reduce that abnormality is to restore the vertebra (bony segment) to its normal position.

Solution.

The Chiropractor locates the vertebra which is in an abnormal position, and which is producing the inflammation in the sciatic nerve. This is accomplished by palpation, based upon a thorough knowledge of the nervous system. Not only is the vertebra located which is slightly displaced, but determines the direction in which this subluxation exists. The Chiropractor then restores the vertebra to its normal position through adjustments.

Results.

If you are suffering from sciatica, the most logical course is chiropractic. The Chiropractor will examine your spine and point out to you where the trouble exists, then have him adjust the subluxated segment, and health must necessarily follow.

Former Lincoln Girl Finds Santa Claus In California

Anita is very much interested in what Santa Claus is telling her, but her four-footed companion refuses even to look at the children's Christmas saint, perhaps, because he gets his share of bones any way, and what does a pointed-eared dog care about the holidays. The little girl on Santa's lap is Anita Calfot. formerly Lincoln's smallest dramatic star. She had her photograph taken at the studios of the National Broadcasting company in San Francisco, where she works regularly on the station dramatic programs. Anita is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Calfot.

Business Women Advocate Crime News Be Banished

Resolution Sent to Lincoln Newspapers and Other Agencies Asks That Week of December 25 to 31 Be Devoted to Advancement of Forward Thinking.

In a resolution approved at a recent meeting of the Lincoln Business and Professional Women's club, Lincoln newspapers are urged to refrain as far as possible from printing on their front pages all crime news, or stories that will have a depressing effect upon the readers. The request is made to include the holiday period. A copy of the resolution was ordered sent to the newspapers. It follows:

"We, the members of the Lincoln Business and Professional Women's club, an organization of business and professional women executives, believing in the destructive power of the wrong as opposed to the constructive power of the right thought, hereby petition the newspapers of Lincoln and other public agencies of the city to devote the week of December 25 to 31, 1930 to the advancement of forward thinking, and to refrain, during that week, so far as lies in their power, from publishing on the front pages any news of crime, scandal, sorrow or depression.

"And we further petition that they begin the new year for themselves and for the reading public, with the expression of every possible sane concept of hope and prosperity, ignoring the troubles of the past and facing the future with a confidence which inevitably draws success in its wake."

Looking to Future.

As the new year approaches, club plans look forward to the season following the holiday vacation and the various committees of the club are planning interesting events for January and the new year.

The education committee, under the leadership of Dr. Sylvia Ashworth, will sponsor a series of talks by a prominent educator on "Psychology in Its Relation to the Business World." The frequency of the talks has not been determined.

"Being well groomed" is the subject of talks by Miss Agnes Schmitt, chairman of the state board of cosmetology, and recently re-elected president of the State Association of Cosmetologists. There will be demonstrations. These will deal with problems which may be treated at home. The talks will be held each Monday evening preceding the recreational program. This also will be without cost to members.

The Merry Diners will start the year with a new course, meeting on Friday evenings for six weeks.

Interior Decorating Course.

A course in interior decorating for the small apartment will be discussed by an interior decorator. One meeting will be in charge of an eastern decorator who will display samples of decorating materials, showing the types and colorings for various occasions.

Plans are in progress for the celebration of business women's week in March. An affair is planned for each day featuring the progress of business women.

Thrift week begins January 17. A thrift program is urged by the national federation. The advisability of every woman, no matter how small her income, reserving something for a time of need, will be stressed. Sunday, January 18 is urged as "Share with Others" day when each club is asked to make a contribution to the community fund for the relief of the unemployed.

Last Monday evening a Christmas party took the place of the usual recreational evening. Games and a social time filled the hours, and refreshments were served.

The next meeting of the club will be held on Thursday evening, January 8, when Mrs. A. F. Berggren will be dinner chairman. Mrs. Gladys Van Camp will supervise the dining room and service.

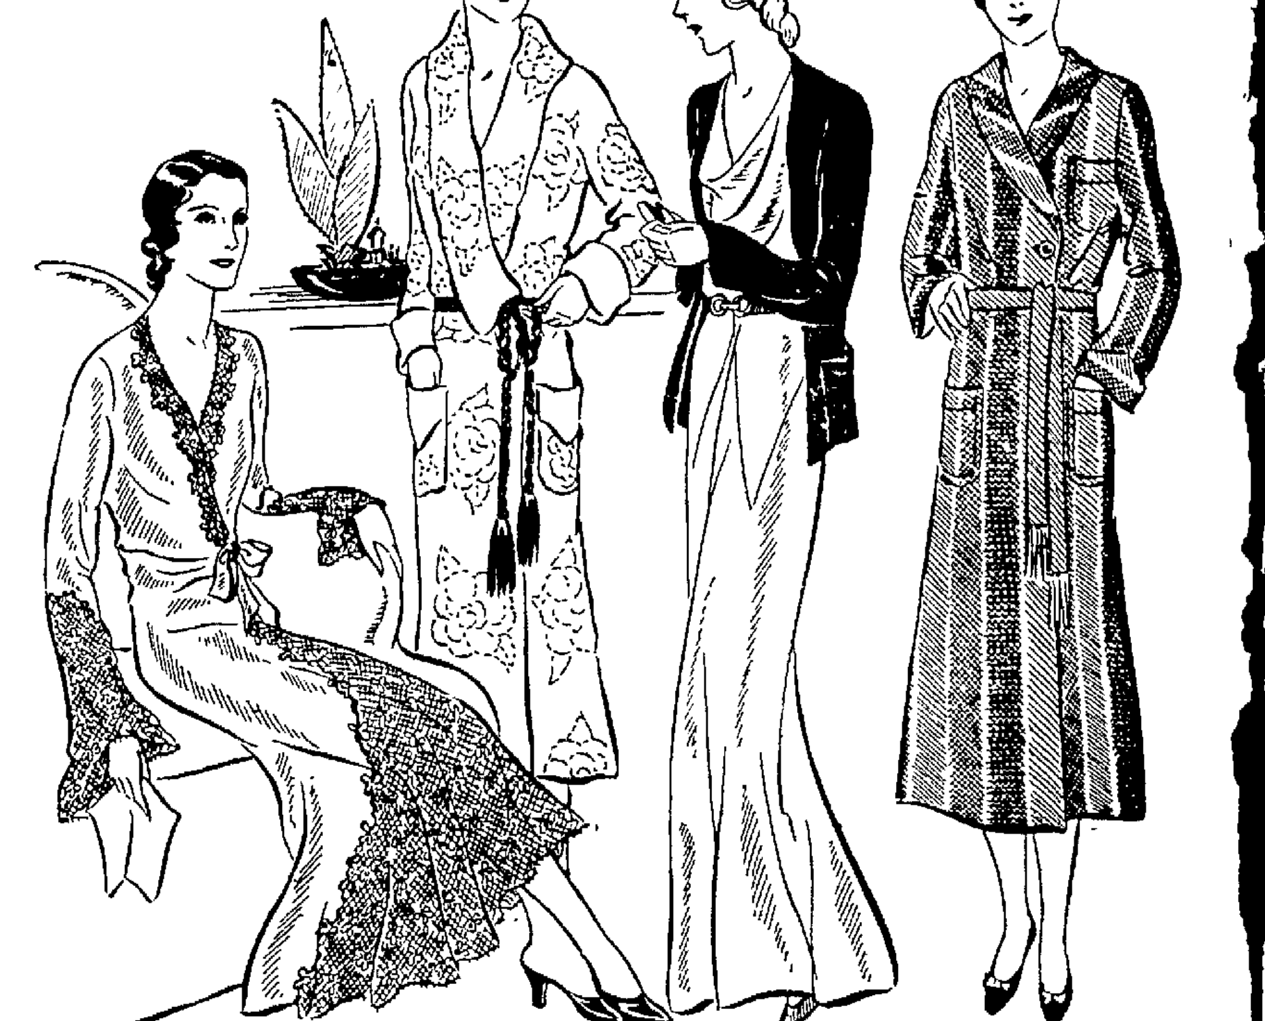
What's in Fashion?

Leisurely Robes and Negligees

Directed by AMOS PARRISH



NEW YORK, Dec 20—What's your new negligee going to look like? If it's to be a practical, useful and durable one, it's probably going to look like a coat.

While if it's for decorative purposes only, it surely will look like a dress Even when it's pajamas.

The lounging robe most in fashion looks almost exactly like a coat It's of flannel—either plain colored and trimmed in contrast, or striped, like the one in the illustration

It has notched or rolled lapels like a coat. It fastens over at the side with a button, like a coat. It has a belt, like many coats. And plain, tailored sleeves and pockets like a coat

It's good-looking. Very But practical and durable, too. A good kind to wear when you curl up on a couch or into a chair in a lazy, comfortable way Or get up in the middle of the night to see why the baby is crying.

And good mules to wear with this robe are the simple open-heel type of leather.

Quilted Robes.

The next most in fashion robe looks like a coat, too But it's more feminine, because it's made of silk or of satin. And that's the quilted robe.

It usually has flat or rolled lapels, straight sleeves and pockets, and fastens with a sash of some sort.

The diamond quilting pattern is an eternal favorite But newer is the flower quilting, like the robe illustrated. It's just as warm as the flannel robe, because it's padded and lined. But a bit less practical It soils easier and has to be dry cleaned instead of laundered Lovely, though—quite worth the trouble of the cleaner.

Plain crepe or satin mules look well with this robe, with or without a back to the heel

More formal is the negligee that still has coat lines but takes on certain dress details. Wider sleeves for instance Wrap around skirt sections that tie at the side And dress materials—crepes and satins that aren't lined—or are self lined and reversible.

Lace Trimmed.

They grow still more like dresses when they add lace trimmings, like the one sketched. And then they are really a negligee—charming for an afternoon nap on the chaise longue where it's warm. But not much help when Johnny falls out of bed at midnight.

Still more formal negligees raise their waistlines, lengthen their skirts tighten their sleeves above the elbow and widen them down below Then they become the hostess gown of Mediaeval inspiration and are graceful at the tea hour or the informal home dinner

But—like the picture that they make—they're purely decorative And a luxury—unless one has time to be purely decorative.

Formal Pajamas.

The newest of these very formal negligees is the pajama with trousers so full they look like a divided skirt. Indeed the newest of all look much like an evening dress when they're sleeveless—and like the Sunday Night frock when they have long, wide sleeves And the more formal mule, with heel strap, is the one to wear with these

Pajamas, of course, make an almost perfect lounging costume when they're less formal Then they're two piece with a tuck-in or overblouse top And a jacket that comes well below the hips.

For a very dashing costume, try such pajamas in flannel—a combination of striped and plain. You'll think you were never so comfortable

Little Paul Makes A Call

IT was nearing Christmas time, and growing very cold. We boys had gathered around a campfire that Jerry Moore had built down on the river bank, below our clubhouse.

"I wish it would start to snow," said Johnny McLarren. "It never seems like Christmas time unless it snows."

"Sure!" said Bill Darby, with a grin. "Santa Claus will have to leave his sleigh at home and come on in an airplane this year, that's certain."

"I should think, sir," said Perry Stokes, looking up at me, "that an airplane would be a great help to Santa Claus in getting around, and he would no longer want to use the sleigh and reindeers."

"Perry," spoke up Lew Hunter, with a smile, "it wouldn't seem right, somehow, to have Santa give up his eight tiny reindeers. You see, so many people have learned to know those reindeers—why, I should imagine that every one in the world even knows their names—let's see there's Donner and Blitzen and Comet and Cupid and Dancer and Prancer and Vixen, and—and—"

"Well," said Jerry Moore, as Lew paused. "I thought you said you knew 'em all. You've only named seven of 'em—"

"I ought to know,' said Lew, with a nod. He turned to me. "Hawkins, you ought to know 'em all—which one did I forget?"

"Dasher," I said, with a little laugh.

"THAT'S it!" cried Lew, as he slapped my knee. "Leave it to Hawkins! Ask him any question and you'll get the answer pronto!"

"Sure!" drawled Jerry, as he poked the fire. "Leave it to Seck! The smart boy of our club. That's why he's the seckatary. Everything we say around this campfire, boys, he will write down in his book. So don't say anything dumb, or you might be sorry."

"Most things you boys say," spoke up Johnny McLarren, "aren't worth writing down!"

"But it's a gift to remember like Seck does," snapped Jerry, turning suddenly and pointing at Johnny with the smoking stick with which he had been poking the fire.

"I've always said that, too," said Bill arby. "Seck, how do you do it?"

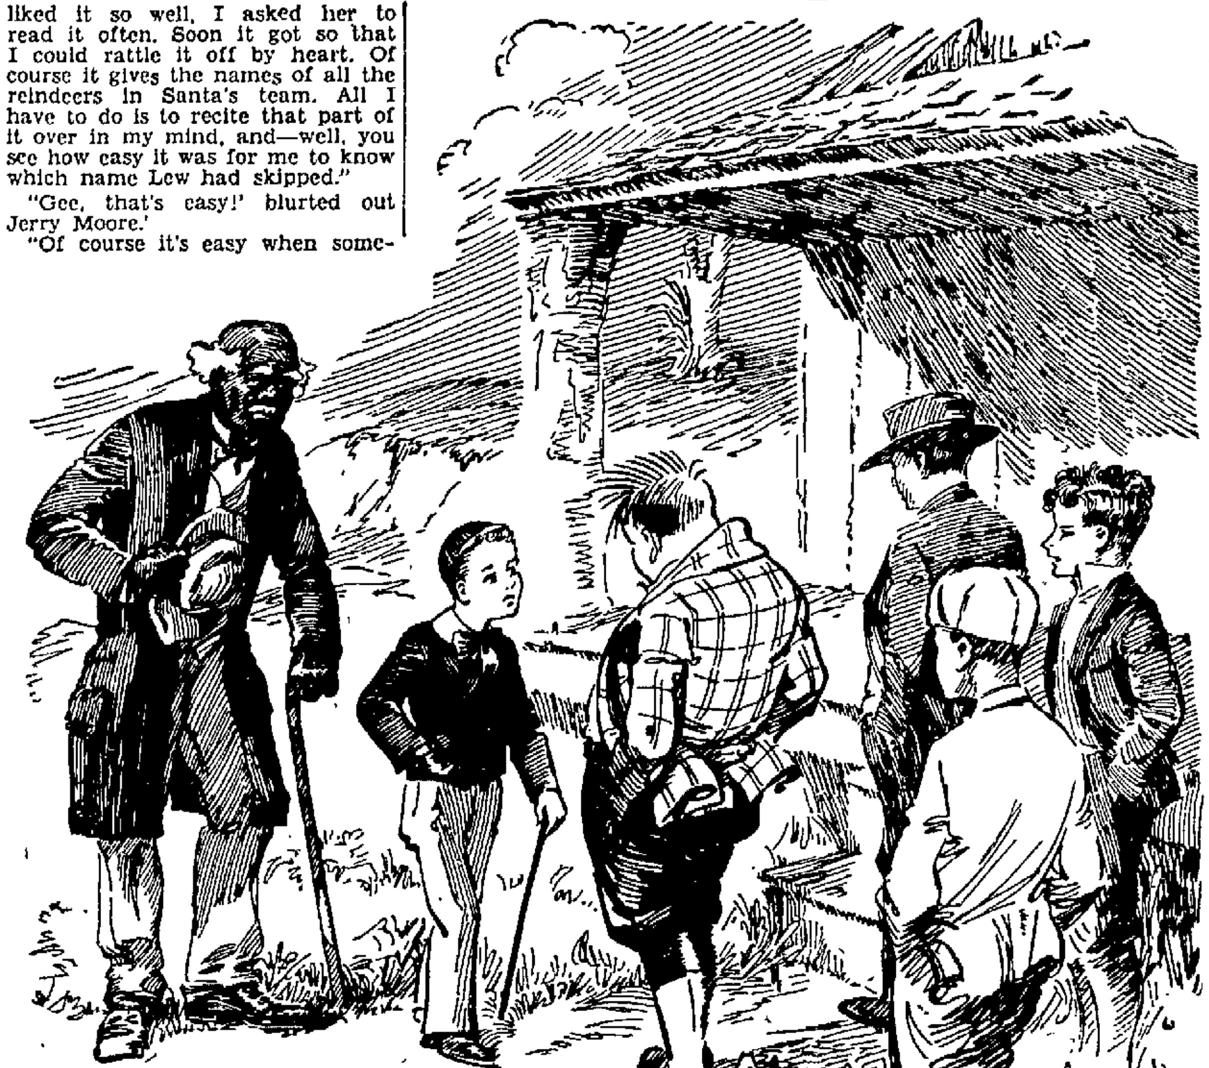
"What? Remember? Why, it's just a habit, I guess, Bill. It's learning how not to forget. Quite simple, as you will find, if you try it. No trick at all. Of course, there are some things a fellow does not want to remember—"

"But how did you know the name of the eighth reindeer in Santa's team just now, when Lew couldn't remember it"

"Oh, that is easy. I learned that old poem called 'The Night Before Christmas' when I was a little kid. My mother read it to me, first. I liked it so well, I asked her to read it often. Soon it got so that I could rattle it off by heart. Of course it gives the names of all the reindeers in Santa's team. All I have to do is to recite that part of it over in my mind, and—well, you see how easy it was for me to know which name Lew had skipped."

"Gee, that's easy!' blurted out Jerry Moore.'

"Of course it's easy when somebody tells you how it's done," said Johnny McLarren.



"Well," he said, "I don't suppose you have a boy in your club by the name of Peter?"

"WELL, fellows,' I said, "listen to me, now. It's remembering that helps a fellow mostly. If you boys will all do as I tell you, we will win some more rewards for our club. Judge Granbery calls us his Junior Police. That means we've got to keep order down on this old river bank, so that we may have peace and quiet. If we don't, Judge Granberry will make us give up our clubhouse and disband—"

"We'll never do that, Seck!' broke in Jerry Moore, with a shake of his head. "We boys have stuck together better than any boys in the world. We have had our fights and quarrels, but we never went so far as to bust up our gang. Old Judge Granbery wont have to worry about us—"

"It's not us that I'm thinking of," I said, with a shake of my head; "it's the other boys who come down to this river bank and draw us into their fights. I want you all to keep this in your mind—weve got to remember every little thing we see and hear. If we do that, we will be able to stop any trouble that is likely to come—"

At that moment my attention was suddenly attracted to a movement beyond the evergreens that line the river path. All of the other boys saw it the same time I did. Coming down toward our clubhouse from the main road was a handsome-looking boy, dressed in the most stylish clothes, and swinging a small cane in his left hand. A few paces behind him walked an aged negro, whose gray hair jutted out in woolly shocks from beneath an old, dilapidated hat. It was evident that the boy was making it hard for the old negro to keep up with him, but the aged darkey, in long frock coat, gray trousers, and enormous shoes, shuffled along with the aid of an old hickory stick, wheezing for breath through the good-natured smile upon his coal-black face.

"Oh, look at Uncle Tom without his cabin!" piped up Jerry Moore, trying to be funny. But all the other boys turned upon him with a hissing sound, and Jerry sank down to his seat beside the fire. We all watched the boy and the aged darkey. They came to a stop, near the little footpath that leads from the river path toward our clubhouse.

"Jes erbout where?" inquired the darkey.

"Right hereabouts that I thought I saw him. I dare say I was mistaken. Yet I can't believe that, either. I don't know what to think, Uncle Esdras."

"Ah weesh ah could think fer ye, Mist' Paul, suh," exclaimed the darkey, as he thumped the ground with his hickory stick. "But ah can't do dat, suh! Ah never wuz much on dat, suh! Ah jes is plain Unc' Ez, an' ah is what ah is, an' I ain't no izzer. Wha' fo' yo' all come down yeah this-a-way makin' mah pore ol' bones huht an' ache wid de walkin' eroun' lahk ah is younger'n what ah is? Yo' knews yo' pappy an' yo' mammy dey expects me to keer fer yo' all—"

"I don't need any looking-after, Uncle Esdras!" said the boy, indignantly, as he swung his cane full around and thrust his other hand into the pocket of his short jacket. "It's not that. And you know it! I like to have you with me, Uncle Esdras, just because you've always been wtih me as long as I can remember, and what's more, I like you. Now, here's where I stood, when I thought I saw him. I was ready to call out 'Peter! Here I am!' but—something inside me was holding back my words. Then, before I knew it, he was gone!"

"Yassuh, Mist' Paul, yassuh! Dassaway it moster times goes," said the old colored man, nodding his head. "Onless yo' all speaks up fo' de angel Gabriel blow de horn, yo' most allus lose yo' chanst to git in. De las' time ah waz at de camp-meetin' an' Brudder Jones done spoke up an' say—"

"I DON'T care to hear about it, Uncle Esdras," cut in the boy, lifting his cane and pointing toward our clubhouse. "Do you see what I am pointing at—"

"Yassuh, de cabin, yassuh, I sees it, Mist' Paul!"

"Well, that's what got me guessing. Why would Peter go to that miserable shack? Why is Peter here at all? And why should it be that I came down here just at the very moment when he sneaked around the little porch of that cabin? It all beats me. Uncle Es."

"Yassuh, an' yo' mammy sho' did beat yo' all too, when she fin' yo' ran erway widout me. Yo' want her make shuah ol' Uncle Es'ras is wid you, nex' time yo' go ambulatin' eroun', Mist' Paul. Yo' all know de orders I done got—to stay wid yo' all an' see no trouble come ovah yo' haid—"

"Oh, please stop, Uncle Es, and help me think this thing out. You know what I thought of Peter. What have I had out of life since he's gone? He meant everything to me—I've never had a pal like him—and I'll hunt everywhere, until I find him back again. I need him. I'm lonesome. Everywhere I go, I think of him. Everything he did, was great. And he liked me—Peter did! I want him back again!"

The old negro had drawn a large, red handkerchief from a pocket under his coat-tails, and now was wiping the corner of his eye. The boy turned around and saw it.

"Ah! Uncle Es! Forgive me! I didn't want to make you feel bad about it. Of course I love you, too, Uncle Es. You've been my good old watchman, ever since I was a baby. But you know how Peter and I used to get along—"

"Ah ain't cryin' erbout dat, Mist' Paul," broke in the old darkey, putting away his 'kerchief and smiling down at the boy. "Whut I is worryin' erbout is dat yo' all is mistaken, suh! An' dat whut yo' al thought yo' see dar by dat cabin ain't realy fo' truly sartain. Yo' dreamed it, honey—"

"If I dreamed I saw Peter there by that cabin," spoke the boy, suddenly pointing toward our clubhouse, "then I dreamed I saw that cabin. But there is the cabin, just as I saw it. And Peter must have been there, just as I saw him!"

"Yassuh! Yassuh! Le's go, we'uns take er look at dat cabin, Mist' Paul. Yo' jes trest yer ol' Unc' Es'ras. Ah done sho' yo' erlong life's way ernough to know whut ah is doin' an' ah reckon ah'll stan' by yo' to de end. Come on, take erhold o' ma han' lahk yo' used ter do when yo' wuz little baby boy an' Uncle Es wuz yer trail buster. Some erlong—we'nus look at dat cabin an' find out erbout it."

And, almost as though it had been a habit from infancy, the boy placed his right hand in the left hand of the old negro's and together they started toward the clubhouse. We boys arose, and leaving the camp-fire, made toward our clubhouse. We met the old negro and the boy just at the front steps that led to the porch. At the sight of us boys appearing in a group before them they paused.

"Ah!" said the stranger boy, whom the old negro had called "Mist' Paul." He looked around at all of us, but his eyes finally came back to rest upon mine. "Perhaps you boys own this cabin, then."

"It is our clubhouse," I said; "we are the Fair and Square Club. We fixed up the cabin to hold our meetings in every day, after school is out, you know."

The boy nodded. The old darkey dropped back a pace behind him, respectfully. For a moment there was silence as we faced each other. It seemed to me that a number of different thoughts were chasing one another through the mind of the boy who was called Paul. It was evident that he had a secret, and was going to be careful what he said.

"Well," he said, at length, "I don't suppose you have a boy in your club by the name of Peter?"

I shook my head. "No,' I said, "we have not."

He nodded, and, turning to the old darkey, said.

"That's is all. Come on, Uncle Esdras. I guess I was dreaming, after all."

• • •

WE watched them go up the river path together. And, as we watched, we stood silent, too puzzled, I suppose, to speak. At least there was nothing said during the time that it took for them to start away and go up the path, hand in hand, he boy swinging his little cane in his left hand, his right hand holding tight to the left hand of the old darkey's. But old Uncle Esdras did not swing his cane—he leaned upon it heavily as he went, and wheezed noisily. And they were gone.

"What a sissy guy!" said Jerry Moore, disgustedly.

"Hold on," I said; "you can't judge a boy all at once, Jerry. He's in trouble. Trust me for that."

'And I suppose you intend to use every boy in this club to help him out of that trouble,' said Johnny McLarren, with a sneer, which was not at all like him. But I never blamed Johnny for that. It's just natural for boys to hold to their own, to stick up for their own, and to be wary of trouble from outside sources.

"Nobody's asked our help, Johnny," I said, without turning to look at him. "Somehow or other, though, I think I would ask every boy of you, each one in this club, to help Mist' Paul, as that old Uncle Esdras called him, if he needed our help. It wouldn't be fair and square to refuse to help, if it was in our power to help him. Would it?"

There came no response to my question.

"Well, boys," I continued, "that's my way of looking at it. Figure it out any way you want. Perhaps we won't be called upon to help Paul and his old Uncle Esdras. But this one thing I want to remind you of again. Remember! Paste in your memory hat every word you overheard. Don't forget a single thing you've heard or seen. You may hear it again, or you may see Paul and Uncle Esdras again when it may come in handy to remember that you heard them and saw them. That's all. Now, let's go and hold our meeting and go home for the day."

BEFORE we had chance to take a step, there came an interruption. We could hear the dull thud of horses' hooves below us on the lower river road. We all turned our heads toward the sound. And then we saw a line of ponies pushing through the evergreens that line the river path. Some were saddled, and some were not, but upon the back of each was a boy, some of whom were known to us, and some were not. But the foremost rider was known to every boy in our club. Who could ever forget him, once he had met him? Upon his head rested a plush cap that covered his ears. His face was broad, and there was a leer upon it. His eyes mere crafty, like those of a fox. From his shoulders hung a cape, trimmed at the neck and around the lower rim with dark brown fur. He rode up to us in a magnificent gesture of greatness, but really he was small. Ever since he had read in his schoolbooks of Napoleon, he had fancied he could "be like that."

It was our old enemy, Mopey Quayle! How my heart leaped at the thought of another chance to bring him down to the level where he belonged! Yes, every boy feels something like that—even when there is no good reason! Mopey Quayle! He had bullied so many boys around this old river bank. He had got away with so much unfair dealing and bluffing that I felt a righteous desire to pull him from that high horse and make him fight it out fair and square, before us all.

BUT I didn't. I waited for him to ride up. In his insolent way he leaned down from his pony and shouted into my face:

"Greetings, Seckatary! We meet again!"

"What do you want?" I asked.

"Don't stay around here any longer than you have to—'

"I bring you news!" he cried, throwing out his right arm, with a gesture of magnificence, and I could see he was tickled to death with the idea that he had come at the head of a large number of boys riding upon ponies—"I am the leader of Mopey's Mob! We want information, and we aim to get what we are after. Have you taken any new members in your club, lately?"

"No," I said; "we don't need any."

"This one we are searching for is a handsome lad,' continued Mopey, without heeding my answer, "and he has a daddy who has lots of money. I have a bone to pick with him, and I aim to pick it clean. Now, look here, Hawkins, and all your wooden-heads who stand behind you, let this sink in. There is a new family moving in this neighborhood who have a boy we are after. Never mind what for. If you boys don't let us know as soon as you hear of a new family moving in, we are going to lam the daylights out of your whole crowd—"

"You and who else?" demanded Jerry Moore, running up and gripping the stirrup—at which Mopey struck at his hand with his quirt. Luckily Jerry drew back in time.

"Just Mopey's Mob!" said the ugly leader, as he leaned down and hissed into Jerry's ear. And, wheeling his pony about, he started back. At the evergreens he turned once more. "Don't forget, it's Mopey's Mob!"

That was the challenge that set off the fireworks. None of us boys

A CHRISTMAS PASSWORD.

Last week our password was "Happiness," which we wish you in large portion for the new year which is standing on the threshold.

This week we are going to give you one in keeping with the day, and if you can not figure this one out, I am going to be surprised.

TASCALUNAS.

There it is, the letters are all mixed up, of course, just to give you some work to do, but if you take a pencil and put the letters down in their proper places, you will have the name of an old friend of ours, who never fails us if we are good.

Judging from the letters that I have been getting, there seems to be keen interest in the membership drive which is to come during January. One member of our club wants to know whether a prize will be given each of the members who bring in ten new members or whether the prize goes to the one who gets ten members first.

I think in order to be fair and square that we will have to give a prize to the one who gets the most members, and then a prize each for the ones who bring in ten each.

I am also very glad to see the enthusiastic response to the request for suggestions for the club page. Among them are included the following ideas, riddles, puzzles, joke column and contests on various subjects besides those which are given out by Seck Hawkins each week.

Tish Speidell, who is one of our most regular contributors, writes us a letter with reference to a club song. Here is the letter, what do the rest of you think of the idea?

Dear Seck, Since we have a club motto and colors, I think it would be fun if we could have a club song. There could be a contest, and the member who wrote the best song, (the song can be sung to such tunes as Yankee Doodle, Swanee River, Old Kentucky Home, etc.) can be given a prize or not, just as you think best. Then a time could be set, maybe 9 o'clock or 8 o'clock central time, etc., as the time depends on where you live. At the time set, all of the member could sing the club song at the opening of the Sunday meeting. Of course the clocks would all be different, but everyone would be singing at about the same time at the opening of the Sunday meeting. If you think the idea is O. K. see what the other members think about it.

Yours, fair and square,
TISH SPEIDELL.

New Year's Story.

And here is a story on "Happy New Year" by Roma Sue Pickering, and it really is such a nice story that I know all of you kill enjoy reading it.

Happy New Year! What does it suggest? A new year filled with happiness, joy, new ambitions, the turning over of a new leaf. A new thrill fills our heart as we think of its true meaning.

Perhaps we are sorry to leave the old year, and perhaps a little sad, but as we listen to the joyous ringing of the bells and blowing of whistles, we do not mind. We are glad to welcome Baby New Year.

We forget everything behind us, and think only of the joy and happiness ahead.

Perhaps we are sick at heart, tired of life, a miserable, bitter failure. The thoughts of a new year bring new hopes, new expectations. What if we have done the wrong thing? A new year brings us a chance to turn over a new leaf.

Maybe we are sick, we do not want to live, a new year brings us a longing to get well, and so we fight to live, we fight to win, to conquer, to be master of all things.

Perhaps there is a feeling of sadness in parting with the old year, but as for me I feel that the coming of the new year means a lot to all of us, and from the four corners of the earth we echo, "Happy New Year."

Seck Offers Prizes for Best Letters Showing Spirit of "Christmas Gifts"

Merry Christmas! Just four days ahead of time with my Christmas wishes, but by the time we hold our next meeting, Christmas day will be past, and so I'll send you my greetings early. And I'll bet you are all expecting old Santa Claus to put a lot of fine Christmas gifts in your stocking this year. Well, a Christmas gift is a beautiful thing—even if you just get one of them. It means a whole lot, the spirit of Christmas and the love of the giver.

Couldn't you write a nice story about a Christmas gift? At least you can write me about a Christmas gift that you received once upon a time, or perhaps a better story would be about a Christmas gift that you gave to someone. Well, that's going to be our title for a contest this week. "A Christmas Gift."

Write Today.

Don't you put it off! Write today. Of course you might think that tomorrow is as good as today, but it isn't. Remember this, an early bird catches the worm. And there is no school for another two weeks—Hooray!

Now our regular weekly meeting comes to order and we will present some of the new members we have received. The letters presented in this part of the page will win a book of our adventures for the writers of the same, but remember, in order to win one of these books, your letter must be in this part of the page. Those printed in the "Seckatary's Mail Box" are only honorable mention. So if your letter has not yet succeeded in getting to our meeting here don't be discouraged, but write again, and try until you succeed, like this member from Ohio.

Dear Seck:

I hope that you will never tire
Of looking at my name;
For I mean to keep on writing you
Until I reach my aim.

I now possess three of your books—
No better have I known:
But I will never be content
'Til the whole set I own.

Each week I follow your adventures,
And for your safety fear:
But well I know that Jeckerson
Will from all danger steer.

For though the mystery of Lake Tapaho
Has proved to be a hard one,
It'll take much more than swimming ghosts
To make this old fox run.

But now before you get too tired
Of reading poor poetry,
I'll end it, hoping the letterman
Has one of yours books for me.

Yours, fair and square,
ARDELIA BRADLEY, 14,
2314 E. 103d St., Cleveland, O.

Another member in the Buckeye state wins his second book. Remember this, if you win one book, you must not quit. Winners never quit, especially in our club, because there are ten different books in the set, and you should keep on until you win them all:

Dear Seck:

I have been a member of your wonderful club for one year. It is a club that sticks to the rules, and this of course, makes it better. I have won a book called the "Chinese Coin," and it sure was a wonderful book.

The motto "Fair and Square" is the best I ever heard of. I enjoy reading your page, and it must be very good when I read it before I read the funny paper. I hope that Jeckerson soon finds the person that is playing ghost on the lake. I think it is "Chief Big John," don't you?

Well, Seck, my letter is getting long; I will close, hoping my letter is a success, for I have had so many thrown in the waste basket, but as "a quitter never wins and a winner never quits," I follow it.

Yours, fair and square,
ANTHONY RAABE, 11,
4405 W. Eighth St., Cincinnati, O.

Right On Mystery.

Now from Old Kentucky—this members also figured out the mystery of Lake Tapaho correctly:

Dear Seck:

I believe I have been a member of your club for over two years. This is the second letter I have written you. I am not a winner nor a quitter. I am going to keep trying to win a book. A quitter never wins and a winner never quits. I have read one of your books, "Seckatary Hawkins in Cuba."

Well, Seck, when are you going to solve this mystery? You're doing some fast work, though, in solving it. I think the Big Chief John is the guilty one.

Well, Seck, as I will have to study my lessons now, I will close, remaining a true member, and hoping to get a book. I am,

Yours, fair and square,
CHARLES F. WOODS, 10,
New Fair Pike, Cynthiana, Ky.

And here we make the acquaintance of another California member who would like to hear from members in other states:

Dear Seck:

I wrote to you three times before. The last ime I got my letter published, but I'm out to get a book (as we Americans say). I am a great lover of books, and would like very, very much to get a book this time...

...Dear Seck, if this letter is published, I would like to receive a few letters from membrs of the club. When I found that your club was in our paper, a happy spot came in my life.

Yours, fair and square,
EDWARD ILLES, 9,
920 No. Wilcox, Hollywood, Cal.

Member In Nashville.

Let's give Tennessee the floor next and hear from one of our members in Nashville:

Dear Seck:

This is from a little girl who wants to join your club. I live in Nashville, Tenn. I have two friends who have joined your club and like it very much. They have both read "Stoner's Boy." They say it was very good and interesting. I have not read it yet, but I am going to. It has just started to get cold down here. It is real cold in the morning, but after the sun gets up, it is real warm.

Yours, fair and square,
MARY DEAN BRADLEY, 11,
Care W. F. Allen, Harding Road,
West Meade, Nashville, Tenn.

Next we turn toward the Hoosier state and meet a new member who thinks every boy in the United States ought to belong to our club:

Dear Seck:

I am a new member of your club, and I like it very much. It is a good, clean club, and I am sure that every boy in the United States ought to belong to it. I like your motto, 'fair and square." Your club colors blue and white also attract my attention. I am closing this letter with the hopes that I may win a book. But if I don't, I'll try, try again.

Yours, fair and square,
MARION RICHTER, 10,
117 So. Fifth St., Richmond, Ind.

Proud of School.

A member down in dear old Georgia is proud of her school and she writes about it:

Dear Seck:

Don't know much to write about, but I know that Christmas is coming on fast, and that I have a birthday four days after Christmas, and I will be 13 years old.

I am in school and don't have much time to do anything, except study. I am in the sixth grade, and it sure is hard.

We have a basketball court, and I sure do like to play.

Oh, Seck, just let me tell you what our school did. We put on an exhibit at the Carroll county fair and won first prize. We are planning to get us a library for the school, and you know I sure will be proud of it, as I am strictly fond of reading good books. If you knew how proud I would be, you would send me one for a birthday present, if not before then.

Yours, fair and square,
DORIS HUGHES, 12,
Route 7, Carrollton, Ga.

While we are in the South we want to drop in and say "Hello" to this new member in Alabama:

Hello, Seck:

Though it is my first time to write to the club, I have been reading it eveery chance I get. I am 4 feet 6 inches tall. My name is Mildred Lee Duncan. I am in the seventh grade.

I hope I win a book on my composition. This is a famous club. I am enclosing a two cent stamp for my badge. I hope Mr. W. B. don't get this one. I wish to be a faithful member. I need all fan mail.

MILDRED DUNCAN,
Rt. 2, Box 22, Montgomery, Ala.

Dear Seck:

I have belonged to your club for a long time and have written to you many times, but I have never had the luck to win one of your books, but I stick to the motto, "A quitter never wins and winner never quits." So I am hoping this one will win for me a book.

Yours, fair and square,
JOHN J. McCOY,
3656 Liston Ave., Cincinnati, O.

Meeting adjourned till next week. I know you are all happy, thinking of Christmas so near at hand, and your minds will be filled with lots of other things besides our club, but I do hope you'll take time to write just once anyhow during the Christmas vacation. So once more, then, Merry Chris.mas!

Bye, till next week.

Yours, fair and square,

FRANCES DANEK IS BIRD WINNER

Pick Baltimore Oriole For Next Week's Color Contest.

FIRST PRIZE.

SECOND PRIZE.

Aileen Merting, 1547 North Thirty-third street, Lincoln, 9 years, Clinton school.

THIRD PRIZES.

Nancy Mae Zimmerman, Ansley, 10 years, District No. 44.

Irene Bures, Exeter, 8 years, Turkey creek school.

Junior Staska, David City, 9 years, South ward school.

Mary Louise Simpson, 3020 South Twenty-fourth street, Lincoln, 9 years, Sheridan school.

These seven—six girls and one boy—colored birds and earned money for Christmas presents. The first and second prizt winners and a couple of those placing third live in Lincoln. The others ar out state youngsters. In Lincoln, the Clinton school seems to be filled with young artists, as Clinton weekly contributes a larger umber of birds than come from the pupils of any other school. One or two of them nearly always win a prize. Clinton rates two this week, but Sheridan and Everett come to the fore demanding a prize each.

Betty Lou Simon of Martel writes to the editor in her best hand writing, lamenting that she is only five and can't enter the contest. She says she colors the birds every Sunday evening, and has lots of fun doing it. Betty goes to school every day, knows all the sounds of letters, and can read and write the numbers to one hundred. Here's hoping Betty Lou turns six before the contest closes so that she can send in one of her offerings.

Baltimore Oriole.

The next two weeks are vacation, and boys and girls will have plenty of time to color the birds. The Baltimore oriole, that lovely golden bird, is scheduled for this week.

But—before you send in your bird, see that you have followed all the directions.

All children between 6 and 12 years of age, inclusive, are eligible to color the bird appearing each Sunday in The Lincoln Star. Instructions for coloring are given below, and the youngsters most closely following this advice usually come out on top.

The contest closes Thursday evening. Prizes are awarded the following Sunday and checks are mailed early in the week.

Outline Rules.

No letters from Lincoln bearing a postmark later than Thursday noon are considered by the judge. Letters from boys and girls outside of

The Baltimore Oriole

The Baltimore Oriole really does not need to be described to any one who knows some of the other names by which it is called. These names are firebird, golden robin, and hangnest. But here it is the Baltimore Oriole. A flash of fire among the green leave is what we see, a handful of lively actions covered with bright orange and black feathers. You will know it when you see it. There is no other bird like it. The orchard oriole is brown and black, and seldom or never is seen except in the country. On the other hand the Baltimore Oriole likes the city, likes people and hangs its nest on the trees over the city and village streets.

The nest is not easily seen although it hangs as a bag-like hammock near the end of a fork or y-shaped branch. It is a wonderful piece of work made with bill and claws. The material used is grasses, bark of plants, strings, horsehair and anything that can be woven, and some soft down in the bottom. In this the eggs and baby birds are safely rocked by the wind.

The mother bird is the weaver, and a skilled weaver, the most skilled in weaving of all our birds. The humming bird, yellow warbler, blue-gray gnat-catcher, goldfinch and vireos build wonderful nests but they are not woven as is that of the oriole and tied to the branch with knots and loops. Did you ever think what wonderful things bird nests are?

Father oriole helps his mate by bringing materials, cheering her with his song, and guarding her from harm. When on or rather in her nest she is protected by her suit of orange olive, olive brown or dull yellowish green, and gray where he is black; enough like his for you to recognize her as Mrs. Baltimore Oriole. The babies, too, are dressed like their mother, for a bright young bird would not get to live long.

What happy times the baby orioles must have together in their cradle, as happy as children in a hammock. And listen to the song that comes from another tree. "Sweet birdie, hello, hello."

The eggs are white, very oddly marked with brownish spots, streaks and scrawls.

The baby birds do much crying for food, and keep it up until their mouths are filled. Any kind of insects are eaten by these useful birds. They can be seen hunting among the branches and leaves of trees, and especially among the blossoms. They never stop to sing but sing as they work. The baby birds keep up a chirping after they leave the nest, so the parents do not have to stop to call them but know where they are and can find them easily.

All the oriole's notes are not pleasant ones. Its notes of anger and complaint are more harsh. When cherry trees are in bloom, when the maple and oak trees are unfolding their leaves, when the japonica or burning bush is ablaze, then it is time to look for the orioles. When the bluebird comes it says "Tree-al ly, tree-al ly," but now when the oriole comes it is truly spring.

They do not stay with us very long. Usually it is the last week of April when they come, and they are getting ready to leave during August. Sometimes after taking the young away to the country, they will come back for a few days and sing their spring song and notes, as if they were bidding goodbye to the place where they spent a happy summer.

Maybe you have wondered why it is called Baltimore Oriole. Lord Baltimore came from England to this country not long after the pilgrims came over in the Mayflower, and as black and orange were his colors, class colors you would call them in school, the bird was named Baltimore Oriole.

Walter Wellman Tried Out Nebraska Life Previous To That of Arctic

BECAME INTENSELY INTERESTED IN AVIATION

MET ROOSEVELT ON HIS RETURN FROM THE WILDERNESS

KNOWN internationally in journalism, exploration, and aeronautics, Walter Wellman, in a letter to The Star, recalls with real enthusiasm his youth in Nebraska, where his father homesteaded in York county.

Walter Wellman, now of New York, established the Cincinnati Evening Post in the year he reached his majority.

For twenty-six years he was political and Washington correspondent of the Chicago Herald and Record-Herald.

In 1892, he located the landing place of Columbus on Walling's island (San Salvador) in the Bahamas, and erected a monument there. The location has been endorsed by many geographic societies and organizations of other purpose. Through disinterested work, he brought about the transfer of the Panama canal to the United States and the creation of that great waterway.

Mr. Wellman has led two sledging expeditions to the polar regions. During his second expedition in 1898-99, he wintered in Franz Josef land, and in the spring of 1899 made a dash for the pole, being compelled to return from Rudolf land because of accident.

Between 1906 and 1910, Mr. Wellman devoted himself to aviation. The summers of 1906, 1907, and 1909, he attempted aerial exploration of the unknown areas of the polar region to the north of Spitzbergen, using Dane's island as a base. He was the first man to fly over the Arctic sea in a modern airship, in 1909.

First To Try Atlantic Hop.

The one-time Nebraskan was also the first man to attempt an Atlantic crossing in the same fashion. The year following his Arctic flight, he undertook to cross the Atlantic in a balloon, starting from Atlantic City He travelled 1,010 miles, breaking the world's record, and was picked up 375 miles east of Cape Hatteras.

He was the winner of a special steamboat race up the Nile in journalistic rivalry, arranged to meet Roosevelt coming out of the wilderness

Those are some of the big moments in the years between the homesteading days and now. Experiences he only dreamed of on the Nebraska plains! And yet—in his own words—

"It is a genuine thrill to me to go back to good old Nebraska again, to revisit in thought the scenes where more than a half century ago I was a fresh, daring, ignorant, but ambitious kid. As I write of it, it seems as if it were only yesterday!"

Walter Wellman—they called him "Genie" then—was making records even then. In the first year of his teens, a store keeper. A year later, an editor, down in Clay county!

M. Wellman's own story of those days—he was but a lad of 13 when he and his family came from the back woods of southern Michigan—is as fascinating as fiction. Camped twenty miles south of Chichago when en-route to the west they saw the north aflame with brilliant flashes of light, and learned that Chicago was burning.

Called Lincoln "Metropolis."

Of those Nebraska days, Mr. Wellman says:

"A few weeks later we drove into a rather small village, known as Lincoln, and camped on the banks of Salt creek on the outskirts of the town. Unfamiliar as I was then with city life, the Lincoln of that day impressed me as a marvelous metropolis and I hear that it has since tried to grow up to the definition given it by its "cub" visitor

"In a few days our trek ended at McFadden, on the banks of Blue creek in York county. McFadden had a few houses, a barn, blacksmith shop and a great commercial establishment, built of logs, about 10 by 14 feet square, known as the McFadden post office and general store

"This concern fascinated me. It was a center of gossip; it was in touch by mail carrier service with the whole of the great world. After my father had created a dugout on a nearby hillside, and we had made it our home for the winter I obtained a job as helper in the post office and store.

"Never before was I so happy. The man of the place, also the postmaster, was so busy with farming, virtually the whole management to me. Thus, at 13, I became a merchant, buying and selling goods, and an officer of the federal govern- hunting, and fishing, that he left ment with complex duties and great responsibilities.

Drops Name of "Genie."

"This was the life! And almost overnight, the men and women, the boys and girls of that part of the Blue valley became intimate friends and clients of 'Genie' Wellman, as I was then known by my given name of Walter Eugene. I later dropped the latter appellation, because I felt as I became a journalist, author, and other things, that alliteration's artful aid might be worth while in reaching the public And it was.

"May I here express hope that if any one has patience to read this he will not think me vain and self-praising. This is indeed a humble effort to paint a little picture of the way in which boys get a start in life and to illustrate the opportunities for action and adventures which the newly-peopled prairies of Nebraska offered more than half a century ago.

"Doubtless there were plenty of other boys whose experiences were more interesting than mine. But I don't know their glories I do know mine and I am striving to tell them simply as a chapter of life in what was then the frontier of American civilization"

As Mr. Wellman's story continues, he tells that the mail carrier, delayed by a severe storm, was late in reaching McFadden Remaining in the village for the night, he turned over to the 13-year-old boy all the mail he had, including various packages of registered letters, presumably containing currency. As he did this, two men in the store displayed an unduly eager interest in the registered packages.

He soon told the near-strangers that they must leave, as he was closing for the night. After they had walked out, the lad turned off the kerosene lamp, put the mail in a corner, locked the door, fastened the windows, and departed for the Wellman dugout However; it was a poor night's sleep he had, for he was worried about "the precious mail for which I was responsible."

Burglars!

"Next morning I arose early and rushed over to the store," he tells.

"Sure enough, the lock on the door was smashed. Burglars had broken in and the mail had been ransacked. Some cigars, tobacco, and candy had been stolen.

"With trembling fingers I reached within the bolts of calico and other fabrics on the shelves and then, I pulled from the interior of the bolts one registered mail package after another, and counted them. They were all there, just where I had hidden them the night before, after turning out the light. When the mail carrier came, I told him what had happened, and he, patting me on the back said:

"'Gene, I'm going to report this to the post office department at Washington. Some day you will be postmaster general yourself.'"

Mr. Wellman's story of his first cigar is as entertaining as his encounter with the bandits.

"The cigars we had for sale had a strange fascination for me. I had never smoked. My Puritanic parents would have whipped me had they found me puffing.

My First Cigar.

"One day I resolved to enjoy a cigar. McFadden was in the store, so I slipped away, went over to the barn, got astride my favorite horse, galloped out to the prairie, and lit the cigar.

"Great Lord, what a thrill! Shouting between puffs I galloped on At last, said I to myself, 'I am a Man! Why, I feel as if I were Napoleon, or a Caesar! No wonder men smoke!'

"Soon after there came a revulsion. There was something queer down in my stomach. I stopped my horse. Threw the cigar stump away. But I was feeling still worse. Soon I fell to the grass, became ill, and then went to sleep. The horse went back to the barn. Two or three hours later I ambled back to the store. I did not tell my boss a word what had happened.

"But here came an illustration—perverse thing human nature is! I was so disgusted I solemnly declared I would never smoke again. That was fifty-eight years ago, and I have been smoking cigar ever since."

The Wellman's 160-acre homstead was eight or nine miles from the postoffice. Returning from home one day, Walter Wellman and his brother, Arthur, were overwhelmed by a cold wave sweeping the prairies shutting off sight of trees, bushes, and houses, leaving the world bleak and bare. Arthur was driving and Walter Wellman went to sleep in the wagon box Several times, the driver was forced to kick his brother, to make him get up to avoid freezing to death. Mr. Wellman states that had it not been for his brother's courage he would not have lived to face the rigor of the Arctic in several voyages near the North Pole.

An Indian "Attack."

Mr Wellman tells of a notable fishing trip—and aptly applies his

LINCOLN'S PARKS OFFER WINTER CHARMS

UNUSUAL COLLECTION BIRDS AND ANIMALS IN ANTELOPE PARK CAN BE SEEN DURING STORMY MONTHS; MAKE MANY IMPROVEMENTS

The bird in the picture is a South American toucan. It is but one of many specimens recently added to the aviary at Antelope park greenhouse. Along with a varied assortment of monkeys and other tropical animals they will be available for inspection Sunday between 10 o'clock in the morning and 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

The elk are in the outdoor pens adjacent to ten white fallow deer, which can be seen from the short stretch of Normal boulevard between A and D streets. The park buffalo also are nearby as are two Virginia deer and a Japanese siki deer. These latter can be seen from D street better than from the boulevard.

The lake in the picture is on the Stewart tract, north of the S. Y. A., and east of First street. The north boundary is Oak creek, from which the water supply is taken. Filled, the lake will comprise 37 acres, varying in depth from about two and a half feet to five feet. This is the lake, which, although only about a third filled, members of the city planning committee of the chamber of commerce, are urging be completed at once.

The picture was taken looking across the lake toward the city, the cameraman being about 250 feet east of First street, and about the same distance south of Oak creek.

Another 40-acre tract south of the highway, also is available for conversion into a lake. Nothing will be done with it this winter, however. When completed it will be connected with the one in the picture by a culvert under the highway. This is in place now, but the north end is covered to hold the water from the south side.

BY FRED FASSETT.

LINCOLN'S parks have gone into winter quarters. That does not mean, however, that there is nothing in the parks worth seeing. In fact, just the opposite is the truth, for Lincoln residents this winter will be but a few steps from a touch of the sunny southland—Mexico, Central and South America, and tropical African jungles. At the same time they will be just as close to reminders of the Polar regions and other sections of the far north.

Fur-muffed and shivering?

Hardly more than a wave of the hand and presto—tropical plants, animals and birds—crocodiles, monkeys, cockatoos, parrots, macaws, love birds, and Birds of Paradise—all yours to see for no more than a visit to Antelope park greenhouse Sunday, or any day thereafter, between 10 o'clock in the morning and 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Hardly a stone's throw away are the reminders of the north—bear, eagles, coyotes, gray wolves, hawks, buffalo, wild cats, raccoons and badgers, as well as many other northern or fur-bearing animals. These are caged outside the greenhouse and are open to inspection anytime, day or night

Protected From Weather.

It is only the tropical animals and birds that are in the greenhouse, where the plants are kept, they being unable to withstand the blizzardy blasts of the north during the winter.

Sunday they will be ready for inspection. Visitors to the greenhouse will see what park department officials claim is the finest show of zoo and aviary specimens that has ever been brought together here at one time Many of them have but recently been added to the park.

Noticeable in the collection will be a toucan There also will be macaws of two different kinds, a green monkey, a Hindu parrot, a sulphur cockatoo and a parrakeet Among the odd animals is a pair of bush apes, a pigtail monkey and a pair of velvet monkeys, along with a pair of rhesus from India.

Includes Peculiar Bird.

The toucan is probably the most peculiar bird in the collection. It comes from South America, has a small body covered with black feathers and a scissors bill at least 4 inches long and probably an inch and a half through from top to bottom A yellow stripe one fourth inch wide runs the length of the bill, breaking into a belt more than an inch in width that encircles the bill at the junction with the head. On the under side, the belt takes a bluish tinge.

The breast of the toucan is white, bordered with a red band about an eighth of an inch wide. The white portion is about 2 inches wide and 6 inches long, extending downward from the throat. The under side of the tail feathers are also tinged with red where they join the body There is a golden yellow ruff on top

The eyes are the most peculiar part of the bird. Large, bright, and glittering black, they are set in a circle of light blue feathers about three fourths of an inch in width. Darker on the outside, the blue changes shade in the play of the lights as the head is moved.

The macaw, a species of the parrot family, is a gayly colored bird. In one cage there is a pair, the feathers of which are blue and green over the back. On the breast and under the body they are a rich gold color A green crest is on top of the head. In another cage is a green macaw Its crest is red, and the breast and under feathers dull gold. The love bird and the Bird of Paradise were in the same cage, at the north end of the greenhouse. These, however, were to be separated and caged by themselves, pending the arrival of mates which are expected shortly.

Among the animals the bush apes and the green monkey will attract considerable attention The apes, a pair of them, are little mites, so small in fact, that when they roll up in a ball in the corner of the cage they can scarcely be seen "Really," Clarence Kittinger, park executive, declared, "they appear much larger than they are Their bodies are very small Their fur makes them look about three or four times their actual size"

Other animals and birds in the greenhouse are a coatimundi that has been away from its native haunts in South America no more than a year. Ringtail cats from South America also have been in the United States but a short time. Two monkey-faced owls are in another cage while close by is a Rocky Mountain chipmunk, with a pair of bonnet ringtail monkeys not far away There is a white throated capachin, a pair of black squirrels and two red ones

The animals common to the northern climes are greater in number this year than ever before, and they are entering the winter in better condition They are healthy and fat, and ready for a long siege of cold. This part of the zoo, although outdoors, will not be seen as readily as will the others For the most part the animals prefer to sleep during the day, as they are of the nocturnal species.

Starting in the pasture at the east side are a pair of American buffalo, ten white fallow or European deer, a pair of elk and a third about half grown There also is a pair of Virginia deer, a Japanese sika female, and a cow with five legs, six feet and two tails.

In the cages not far from the pasture are four black bear, and a cinnamon, two gray and the same number of red fox, eight coyotes and three Russiangray wolves There also are prairie dogs, a possum, ground hogs, woodchucks, five wildcats, a collared peccary, seven raccoons, a porcupine and two badgers. In a separate group are thirty rabbits, including the red, white, New Zealand, Belgian and Chinchilla varieties.

Ideal for Skating.

While the animals, flowers and many other things at the park have gone into winter quarters, there are parts of the system that are just beginning to blossom of for the winter Among these is a lake on the Stewart tract, northwest of the city, and for which the city council is seeking an appropriate name The lake now covers about thirty acres The water varies from 1 foot to three feet deep and when frozen will be ideal for skating. This also will be true of two smaller lakes along Lake street, east of Fourteenth street.

These latter places will be crowded as soon as the ice will hold, this being indicated by the number of boys and girls who go there every evening after school to test their strength. The skating rink near the municipal swimming pool also is ready for use as soon as freezing weather comes. All that remains to be done is turn in the water and let it stand for a night or two.

At Pioneers park the golf course is being prepared for winter use Stones of all size are being taken from the fairways The grass has been cut and raked and within a short time the course will be one of the finest winter links in this section of the country

But this is not all Plans are in the making for a number of coasting places for the children. One of these is to be on the slopes of the new water reservoir at Thirty-second street and Normal boulevard The sides have been levelled and all that is needed for the fun to start is a good snow This also is the case in the south part of the city where it is contemplated to use a long hill at the bottom of which is one of the lakes along Lake street.

Because of the closing down of cold weather, it is unlikely that the lake on the Stewart tract will reach its height this winter as a pleasure resort It should blossom into one of the best all year pleasure places in the city by this time a year hence When full, the lake will be about 2½ feet deep at the shallowest part, and not to exceed 5 feet at the extreme depth.

Enthused Over Outlook.

On a recent afternoon when Commissioner Bair, head of the park department, went to the lake, lake, accompanied by Frank T Darrow, Dan W Hayes and Prof J. E. Alexis of the University of Nebraska, the three were enthusiastic over the outlook, Mr. Bair said. According to the commissioner, Mr. Darrow stated that the lake should become one of the outstanding resorts of this section. "This will be true," Mr Bair said, "if the city will extend the lake to include the approximately forty acres on the south side of the S Y A. highway. This, with the thirty-seven acres on the north side will provide boating and many other sports, it being possible for no less than fifty small craft to be operated on the two places"

Other delightful places will be Irvingdale park, Pioneer park, and Van Dorn park at Ninth and Van Dorn streets This tract, in the opinion of Mr. Bair, is the prettiest in the entire park system, even though it is not the largest At Irvingdale, aside from the shade and playgrounds, the attraction will be an outdoor amphitheater, immediately east of the school. It will look to the north

Memorial Drive a Beauty.

Memorial drive between Sheridan boulevard and Sumner street is another beauty spot Here are some of the most beautiful spots in any of the parks. The ground has been smoothed, formal gardens have been laid out and the drive is entirely free from debris on both sides.

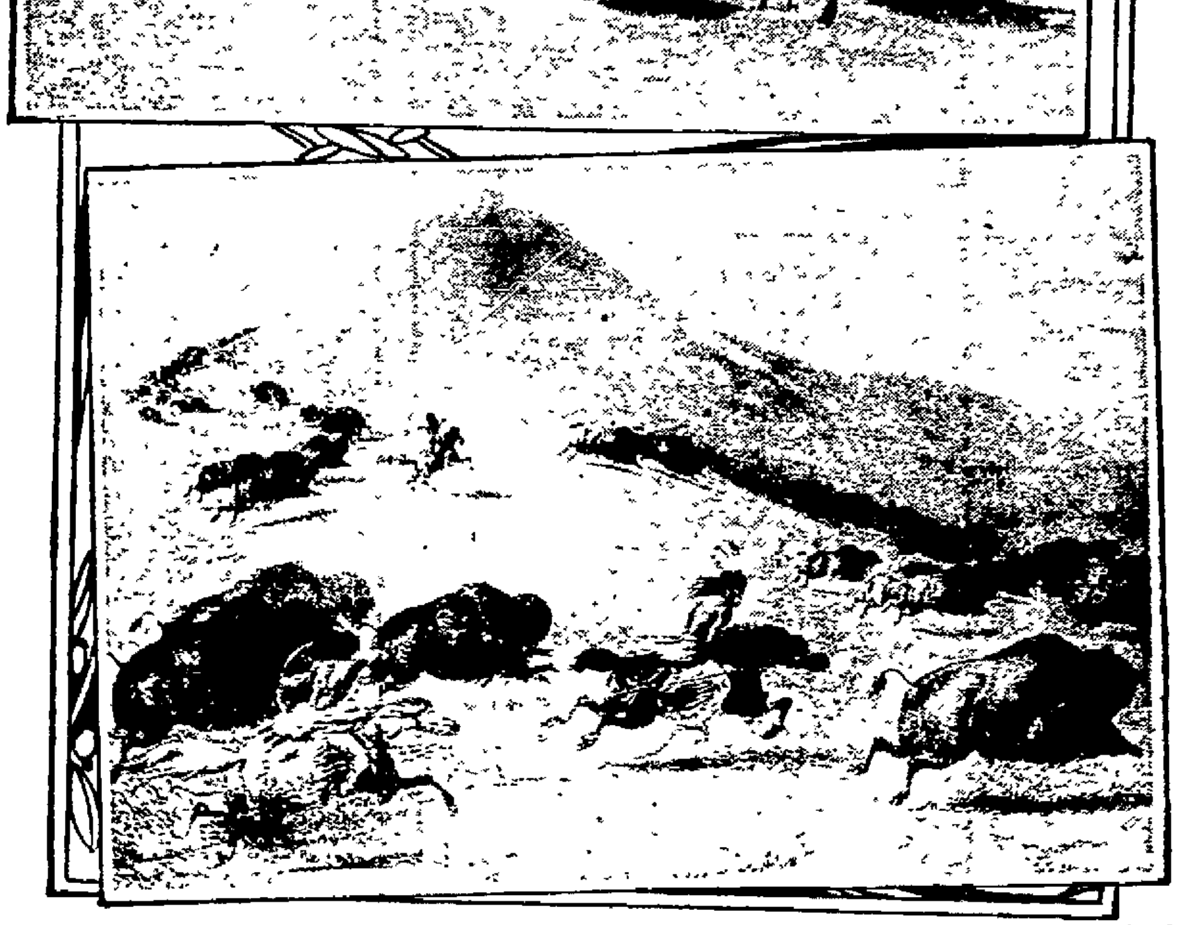
Another improvement at Antelope park is a formal garden west of Auld pavilion This was made during the past summer The plot is on a gentle west slope, and with trees and shrubs that have been planted should become, during the next summer, one of the pretty spots of the park, second only in beauty to the formal garden north of the Sumner street entrance Certainly it will rank with or ahead of the C street entrance

F street park also is being improved Six tennis courts are being built at the northwest corner on ground that formerly was the site of the well and pumphouse, the first in Lincoln's municipal water system. On the south side, two courts will be rejuvenated and made to fit in with the ballground nearer the middle of the park.

Improvements also are under way at the isolation hospital. The ground is being graded The two buildings have been connected and now a formal garden is being designed to fit into the drives being laid out. South of the house the fence will be taken out and the entire tract made into a small park.

This property is adjacent to one of two small parks that have been cut out of the Sawyer-Snell tract. The second is north of South street and west of the Union Pacific tracks On the south tract a circular driveway has been graded, and a football and baseball field have been laid out. The same improvements have been made in the north park, except that the driveway has not been graded. The trees on these tracts are all living and by the coming summer should show just what the two places are going to be.

Buffalo Auction Recalls Nebraska's Great Herds of Early Plains' Days



A buffalo herd at the Niobrara game reserve is shown in the upper picture. It is one of the few herds remaining of the great beasts which once swarmed this prairie state. The lower picture (courtesy of the Nebraska State Historical society) shows an Indian buffalo hunt as depicted by George Catlin, artist who visited the middlewest in 1832-39.

When Wm. T. Collins of Beaver City announced recently that he would offer twelve head of buffalo at auction, thoughts of a great many Nebraskans who read the announcement went back to the days when the American bison roamed the Nebraska plains and afforded the Indians meat, clothing, shelter and articles of personal adornment.

Historians estimate that at one time ten million buffalo fed on the Nebraska plains They moved in herds ranging in size from a few hundred to thousands The Indians literally lived on the buffalo The buffalo's flesh furnished him meat; his hide, robes, wearing apparel and tepee walls; his horns hoofs and bones, personal jewelry Every fall there was a great hunt when the Indians took their winter supply of meat and hides Fought to Protect.

It was for the possession and propagation of these herds and the subsistence they afforded that the Indians made such stubborn and fierce resistence to the encroachments of the whites. They foresaw the departure of their hunting grounds with the rich valleys converted into farms, and visioned their own ultimate extinction as a race. So they contested every foot of the way the whites took and answered every demand for more territory with fearful reprisals

In a most interesting and important series of letters George Catlin, an eminent artist and writer who visited the middlewest in 1832-39 and made a study of Indian tribes, describes the buffalo:

Is Noble Animal.

"The buffalo (or more correctly speaking bison) is a noble animal that roams over the vast prairies from the borders of Mexico on the south to the Hudson bay on the north Their flesh, which is easily procured, furnishes the savages of these vast regions the means of wholesome and good subsistence, and they live almost exclusively upon it, converting the skin, horns, hoofs and bones to the construction of dress shields, bows, etc The buffalo bull is one of the most formidable and frightful looking animals in the world, when excited to resistance his long shaggy mane hangs in great profusion over his neck and shoulders and often extends quite down to the ground The cow is less in stature, and less ferocious though not much less wild and frightful in her appearance."

The early settlers also depended on the buffalo for meat. His skin was a welcome contribution to the white's bed and wagon. As the settlers increased and the commercial and sporting spirit developed the buffalo herds underwent a frightful slaughter. Buffalo hunts became sporting chases instead of meat-gathering expeditions.

Slaughter Thousands.

When Edward, Prince of Wales, visited this country in an early day, a buffalo hunt was staged for his pleasure with Buffalo Bill Cody in command. Thousands of buffalo were slaughtered for sport in such hunts and their carcasses left on the plains to feed wolves and vultures The millions became thousands, the thousands hundreds, until at last the great thundering herds became isolated bands protected by fences

A few small herds are privately owned in Nebraska. W. T. Collins started with a herd of twelve at Beaver City and is selling a superfluous increase There is a small herd at the national game reserve near Valentine The bison, like the Indian has disappeared from the haunts in which he lived with such undisputed sway through the long years before civilization came to Nebraska with powder and shot.

own reaction to a far more important expedition. On his way home with a string of fish, he saw the redmen coming.

"I nearly fainted with fear when I saw the figures were Indians. My first impulse was to seek safety in flight, then I realized they could easily overtake me, and it would be waste effort Gasping, declaring I would sell my life dearly, I pulled out my big knife, opened the blade, and walked trembling on.

"When I met the first Indian he grunted: 'Heap good fish. Heap big knife'

"As the others came up, they just grunted, although one said "ello, kid. Luck—fish—eh'

"And when I reached the post-office I proudly boasted to the tobacco chewers sitting around the stove how my courage, and my big knife, had awed the Indians and saved my life.

"They laughed at me, explaining that the Indians were Omahas enroute from their reservation near the Missouri to the far western plains for buffalo hunting, and so friendly to white people that they wouldn't take a hair from a head. I had to laugh with them.

"Years later in Franz Josef land, so far north that for 127 days in midwinter the sun does not rise at noon. I was taking a walk one day near my headquarters' hut. A polar bear suddenly approached me I had no gun with me; fright overwhelmed me; shouting at the top of my voice for help, I ran toward the house.

I Became An Editor.

"Out of breath, I paused, expecting the bear to be ready to leap on me. To my surprise and joy, he was quite a distance away and running as fast as he could still farther. The strangeness of my cries had frightened him!

"And what a satisfaction it was to tell my comrades how my courageous yelling had scared the bear away and saved my life!"

In the spring, the Wellman family moved from the dugout to a sod house, but young Walter Wellman did not care for prairie farming. He secured a job as a printer's apprentice with the York Monitor, a weekly newspaper at the county seat.

"I quickly learned the rudiments of a fascinating typographical art. It all seemed like a transformation from a world of heavy materialism to a heaven of skill and intelligence and imaginative activity.

"It was not long before a real adventure came my way The owner of the Monitor was called east by his mother's death, and I had to get out that weekly paper all by myself. I made a fair job of it, and despite the grammatical and typographical errors the boss pointed out on his return, he said: 'That as a kid of my years I had the right to be proud of myself.'

"Of course I was So proud and unduly confident that I went over to Sutton in Clay county and began publication of the Sutton Times in June, 1873 How I managed to raise the money to buy an old Washington hand press and enough page type to make a four-page paper I do not remember. Probably borrowed the money and then forgot all about it.

Ridin' The Cowcatcher.

"But I did it and made a fairly decent country weekly out of it. Despite the fact that up in Michigan I had graduated from the greatest university in America the 7 by 9 country school, with honor in the whole curriculum, of the three R's, 'readin', 'ritin', and 'rithmetic, my language and grammar were frequently a little weak.

"Though the publisher and editor of a newspaper, and with a certain dignity trying to flop about me—at 14 I represented myself as being 18—still I was a boy. And boys will be boys Not infrequently I left my editorial desk and went down to the railroad station to see the trains shifting about on the tracks.

"One day I climbed upon the cow catcher of a freight locomotive doing some switching, when to my surprise, the train moved out to the main line and did not stop until it reached Harvard, ten or twelve miles to the west. To get back to Sutton, having no money in my pocket, I told the conductor of a passenger train who I was and what had happened, and he gave me a free ride home He also said he was sorry they didn't have a dining car, so he could hand me out a nice free dinner.

"That little adventure exerted an influence upon my whole career. It set my mind going in a way that made me ever after unsatisfied to sit at the rear of a train and see things after they had come and passed. I am eager to have a seat out in the cow catcher and see things before they have come

"Not long after, I established the Cincinnati Evening Post Became a journalist in Chicago. A correspondent at Washington Intimate friends of many presidents and other eminent men Author of many big news scoops. Author of books on the World war, forecasting the German republic, the League of Nations, the World court, the Briand-Kellogg pact, disarmament, and much more progress toward universal peace, which has not come yet but is on the way Inventor of improvements in rapid transit which will in time revolutionize that art, of such vital and increasing importance to mankind. For many years, the advocate of women's emancipation the end of the liquor curse upon humanity, and the obliteration of racial prejudice and antagonism

"And what a thrill it is to step for a moment down from the cow catcher and look backward a little upon boyhood days in Nebraska!"

FIRE DANGER SEEN AT STATE PENITENTIARY

EQUALLY DEPLORABLE CONDITIONS EXIST AT OTHER INSTITUTIONS DECLARES BOARD OF CONTROL IN URGING APPROPRIATIONS

ROOFS at the state penitentiary which constitute a fire hazard sufficient to make members of the board of control fear a disaster similar to that which occurred in Ohio last winter.

Conditions at the state hospital at Hastings are so crowded that part of the employes are forced to spend their rest hours in rooms adjacent to insane patients.

A heating system at the Nebraska Industrial home at Milford which constitutes a constant fire danger and is beyond reasonable repair.

These are a few of the more serious conditions existing in Nebraska's state institutions for the relief of which the state board of control is asking substantial appropriations of the incoming legislature.

Claim Emergency Exists.

Conditions at the penitentiary are serious enough in two cases that the board is asking an emergency appropriation. One is for fire protection, the other for a new cell block and chapel

The horrors of men confined in locked quarters while fire sweeps down upon them—the dangers of a fire turning dangerous prisoners loose to ravage innocent homes and institutions—these have been vividly seen in the minds of the members of the board who have examined conditions at the institution.

As a result the board is asking $26,000 for a fire-proof roof on the administration building and two of the cell blocks. It is also asking $2,500 for asbestos shingles on the furniture factory.

Request New Chapel.

Besides these funds to insure against a serious fire catastrophe, the board is asking an emergency appropriation for a new cell block and chapel. The last legislature allowed $100,000 for the construction of a one tier cell block and chapel. Upon investigation, the board reports it was discovered that the foundation under the existing cell blocks was not strong enough to support any additional weight.

It was also found, according to the board's report, that the two cell blocks now in use had rusted and corroded to such a point that they are unsafe and liable to collapse. Construction engineers advised the board to demolish the two existing cell blocks and erect a new three tier block. An emergency appropriation of $80,000 to add to the $100,000 from the 1929 appropriation is asked for this purpose.

The penitentiary also is asking a building for women, a request which was denied at the last session of the legislature. The board believes that women prisoners should be given quarters entirely separate from the men It is also asking a $40,000 appropriation for a new building to provide suitable workrooms for the women, many of whom are now forced to work in the corridors of the present plant. The only other request for the penitentiary is for a $13,000 appropriation to purchase an electric oven and steel tables The 1929 Handbook of American Prisons and Reformatories listed the Nebraska prison as needing new tables with non-absorbent tops

Hastings Conditions Bad.

One of the most serious conditions exists at the Hastings state hospital. The building used for an employes' dormitory was originally the laundry building. It is located so close to another building that light and air can hardly enter it from the north.

The rooms, according to the board's report, are small and inadequate. The walls are sagging and in the board's opinion the entire building is unsafe.

Besides the unsatisfactory conditions of the dormitory proper, the increasing list of employes has made it necessary to house some of them in rooms near the wards.

Trying as is the task of caring for mental patients with their myriad changing thoughts and distorted views, often so painful to those forced into contact with them, these employes now secure no real relief. When they go off duty, they are forced to spend their time in rooms disturbed by the noises of the insane patients.

Several other requests are made for the Hastings institution, which the board of control feels are necessary to maintain minimum standards. Three include repairing wards, $27,000, two wings being believed to be in danger of collapse; a sewage disposal plant, $20,000, the present plant being believed to be becoming a public nuisance; purchase of 160 acres of land, $24,000; laundry machinery to care for increased population, $12,200 and repairs and replacements on buildings some of which have not been changed since 1889, $20 000

A summary of the needs of the institutions prepared by the board of control reads like the story of a promoter trying to revitalize institutions which had been allowed to decay over a period of years for lack of care They represent a measure of the demands which will be made upon the people of the state to provide wholesome care for dependents children and soldiers, mental patients and inmates of penal and reform institutions.

The Beatrice home for feebleminded feels the need of a new building for girls so keenly that it is asking an emergency appropriation. To help relieve the problem of care for its ever growing population, it is asking purchase of 130 acres of farm land

The girls' training school at Geneva is calling for a new power plant and concrete stack to replace one which is inadequate, almost beyond repair, and not fireproof.

Want New Building.

The soldiers and sailors' home at Grand Island seeks furnishing for the new administration building now being erected which will be ready for occupancy late in the spring. It also needs boiler rooms repairs and equipment

The state industrial school at Kearney wants a school building so that it no longer will have to hold classes in make-shift quarters here and there about the institution.

Funds are asked to build an "L" on one end of the receiving hospital at the Lincoln state hospital to accommodate new patients. The Lincoln institution also needs substantial repairs on the main building and a new laundry building and equipment

The orthopedic hospital is asking $15 000 for equipment to help it carry on its work with the state's crippled children

The Nebraska industrial school at Milford wants to purchase 160 acres of land and to erect a power plant building

Need More Space at Norfolk.

The Norfolk state hospital is asking an emergency appropriation for three receiving hospital ward units and an appropriation for a new lanudry and employes' building. It is also asking an appropriation for farm cottages, barns, sheds and for rebuilding tunnels and steam lines

The school for the deaf at Omaha is asking boiler and boiler room equipment, an additional unit to its school building, a hospital building and equipment, a laundry building and equipment and repairs and replacements

The reformatory for women at York is asking for an office building outside the enclosure to make it possible for the superintendent to deny access to the enclosure to persons not wanted therein The superintendent is also entitled to more desirable quarters, the board believes.

New fire-proof buildings for boys and girls with adequate living rooms, play rooms, and other facilities are asked for the home for dependent children at Whiteball. An addition to the farm cottage is also asked.

The reformatory for men here is asking a new cell house, a building to house refrigerating and storage facilities kitchen and dining room, and additional land to relieve the problem of finding employment for the men.

Nebraska Fraternities and Sororities Bring Christmas To Tots and Needy Families

THERE'S nothing much more fun than going to college and sharing in its gay and lively hours, but the youngsters on the University of Nebraska campus don't chart their way through a life entirely enclosed by campus boundaries. They look so vivacious and debonair, even when their noses are an inch from a book, that it's difficult for the casual observer to believe they are hearing more than the call of the happy college world, and that they recognize that all lives aren't as blithe as theirs.

But the Greek groups and other organizations the past week showed the deeper side of their members. Many little boys and girls are having a larger Christmas because the sorority girls and the fraternity men gave a few hours out of their crowded days that little children might know the real holiday season. Christmas parties for children in the various homes and in families whose needs are many and whose purses are unusually slim this year have been the order of the week on the campus.

Several of the organizations have had similar parties in past years, but this year all of the sororities and a number of the fraternities have done some sort of philanthropic work. The need is acute this winter, when even organized charity is finding itself taxed to care for the worthy poor. The university students took it upon themselves to aid.

Santa Claus Present.

Chi Omega sorority entertained Thursday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock, when twenty little children secured through the Salvation Army came to the chapter house for the Christmas party After a series of games Santa Claus distributed toys, mittens, and clothing to the children as well as candy and fruit.

The members of Delta Zeta contributed to a social service project of the national group The sorority maintains a mountain school at Vest, Ky., and the local girls contributed a sum of money for this cause

Thirty of the children from Tabitha home were at the Alpha Chi Omega house Thursday evening from 7 to 9 o'clock. Games were arranged for the youngsters, and presents were distributed from the large Christmas tree.

Feminine Santa.

Alpha Omicron Pi had twenty children from the Bancroft district at the chapter house for a couple of hours Thursday afternoon. Jane Wickersham had a story hour for the youthful guests after which Santa Claus, normally Julia Simanek, appeared with a pack full of gifts, toys, clothing, and sacks of candy.

The first of these Christmas parties for the children was given Monday evening by Alpha Xi Delta, preceding the active and alumnae party of the chapter. Five children from Bancroft spent the hours from 4 to 7 o'clock at the house, enjoying games and the Christmas tree, which yielded toys, clothing, candy, and fruit for them. Ruth Schull was the Santa Claus who distributed the presents.

Thursday evening, the girls of the Kappa Delta sorority planned a party for the chapter, in which the members exchanged small and amusing gifts. These presents were taken to a family in which the sorority is interested Alpha Delta Theta arranged a similar party for Thursday evening, when the toy gifts from the chapter tree were taken to the Orthopedic hospital for the children.

Aid to Family.

The members of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority have been caring for a family during the winter, and their Christmas money was given for food, clothes, and fuel for this same family. Gamma Phi Beta is arranging three baskets for families, each one containing a large Christmas dinner, supplies for several weeks to come, and clothing.

During the school year, the members of Sigma Delta Tau sorority do Americanization work among a group of foreign-born residents. To the homes where there is need, the chapter is sending food, clothes, and toys for the children. Delta Gamma is giving its holiday contribution, to be changed into food and clothing and little gifts for the children, to one family secured through the community chest

Aid National Plan.

Another of the Lincoln groups which works in co-operation with a national plan is Zeta Tau Alpha sorority A box of toys and clothes is sent to the national organization's health center in Currin valley in the Virginia hills. Following a party Wednesday evening for the children of alumnae, the alumnae members, and the active chapter of Alpha Phi, the small presents given to the adults were taken Thursday to one of the charities.

Alpha Delta Pi entertained a group of eighteen boys and girls from the Bancroft district Wednesday afternoon. A Christmas tree was decorated for the living room, and about it were massed the presents for the children. Following the games, dinner was served. Each young guest was given oranges, popcorn balls, candy, and nuts, in a Christmas stocking.

Toys to Orthopedic.

Phi Mu sorority sent toys to the Orthopedic hospital, in place of having a party this year at the chapter house. Members of Phi Omega Pi prepared baskets for some families, and put clothing, groceries, and toys in them. Pi Beta Pi followed the plan of giving its contribution to the Social Welfare society, and permitting the secretary to use it where most needed.

The active chapter of Sigma Kappa entertained at a two-hour party Wednesday evening for ten children from the detention home and from needy families Games were arranged for the first hour, after which toys were presented to the visitors Refreshments were served before the children departed.

From Tabitha Home.

Twenty-five or thirty children from Tabitha home were taken to the Alpha Gamma Rho house Thursday afternoon for a Christmas party. Jack Quackenbush served as Santa Claus for his fraternity, which gave the young visitors candy, fruit, and clothing.

Members of Beta Theta Pi entertained forty children from Community chest families Thursday afternoon at the chapter house. Santa Claus appeared before the youngsters went home, and game them toys and candy Refreshments closed the afternoon.

Thursday night, Kappa Sigma fraternity had a Christmas dinner for a number of children from the Orthopedic hospital. Dinner was served at 6:15 o'clock, with a brief program following. Santa Claus presented gifts from a large Christmas tree. Mrs. C. P. Smith, the house mother, had charge of the entertainment and presided over the dinner.

Newsboys Present.

Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity entertained Thursday evening at the chapter house at dinner, when fifteen newsboys were present. Santa Claus appeared before the evening was over, and brought gifts for the little boys. The fraternity will also send out seven baskets to needy families for Christmas.

The largest affair of the week, and the one to which many of the fraternities contributed their time, energy, ingenuity, and funds was the Interfraternity council party Wednesday evening, given at the university coliseum. Two hundred Lincoln newsboys were guests of the Greek groups of the campus for a Christmas tree program. Francis Obert, a member of the council's committee for the party, was master of ceremonies A program, composed of specialty dancers, a female impersonation, and orchestral numbers of popular music, provided the entertainment. Following the program, two hundred pounds of candy and nuts and several boxes of apples were distributed

Dinner for Families.

Delta Sigma Delta fraternity entertained at a 6:30 o'clock dinner and Christmas party Thursday for three families. Toy gifts were given the children and clothing to the adults. Twenty-five boys and girls were guests of Delta Sigma Lambda for an evening party Wednesday, when Wayne Owens was the Santa Claus. In his character role, he brought dolls to the little girls, toys to the boys, and candy for all.

Instead of bringing children to the chapter house, Phi Kappa Psi fraternity contributed a sum of money to one of the charity organizations. The members of Acacia had their Christmas party for a dozen little newsboys Thursday evening. Following the dinner, clothing was given the youngsters and the freshmen entertained with a stunt.

Forty boys and girls were guests of Phi Gamma Delta Thursday evening for dinner at the chapter house The youngsters, secured through the Salvation army, were given toys, gloves, and other useful gifts by Santa Claus

Theta Chi will have its party for a group of boys from the city mission Monday evening The twenty-five guests will be entertained with games, and will take gifts home with them

Members of Phi Sigma Kappa are sending the gifts from their own chapter tree to a family in the city Farm House is carrying out a similar idea, presenting the presents from the fraternity tree to the Social Welfare society.

Pi Kappa Alpha entertained thirty-one little boys at dinner Thursday evening. A program that the boys enjoyed followed the dinner. Martin Premer served as Santa Claus

Fifty youngsters of the Belmont school were entertained from 7 to 9 o'clock Thursday evening by Tau Kappa Epsilon. The chapter furnished the entertainment, arranged by the house mother. The youngsters were given candy, oranges, pop corn, and a useful gift by Santa Claus.

David Jack, 91, Doubts If River Control Possible, So Visits Lincoln To Find Out

"Conquer the Missouri? Maybe so, but you've got a big job ahead of you."

David Jack, whose home is at Peru, came to Nebraska in 1857 He was only 17 years old, but just at the right age to get a big thrill out of the giant "sidewheeler" steamboats that plied the Missouri river from St. Louis to Omaha in those days.

How the pilots judged the ever-changing current of the "Big Muddy" was a subject of everlasting fascination to him. One day he mustered up enough courage to ask the captain. That hero of the fifties told Jack that the only guide was experience in watching the surface of the river every day. "The current is never the same from one day to the next You've just got to watch it and guess"

Doubted Control Possible.

Those memories of sixty years ago sprang forward in David Jack's mind the other day when John Lemly told him of modern plans for conquering the rampant boundary river The argument waxed hot Then Lemly, who is district manager for southeastern Nebraska of the securities department of the Woods Bros Corp of Lincoln offered to bring Mr Jack here to see movies of river subjugation prepared by Woods Brothers Jack accepted

The pictures shown Mr Jack were taken in Mississippi on the location where the Woods Bros Corp has been doing millions of dollars worth of "harnessing" work on the Missouri river for the federal government.

Mr Jack will be 91 years old in February, and life has mellowed him In fairness, he felt bound to admit that the movies made a great impression upon him But still, "I'd like to see them actually do it."

However, he refuses to be skeptical He has seen greater miracles performed When he came to Nebraska seventy-three years ago, "The Great American Desert" covered the western part of the state. His "Mitchell School Geography" unequivocal expounded that "fact."

He first lived at Nemaha, and they told him that no man could possibly make a success of farming at any point ten miles west of that place The years went by and a few hardy pioneers literally "dug in" and exploded that myth Then an official federal government survey reported that agriculture was impractical west of Fort Kearny.

"Well," he said when he was in Lincoln this week "you know what kind of farming they do in western Nebraska."

Amused At Depression Talk.

Contrary to the careers of most of the state's pioneers, Mr Jack has been primarily a merchant. As such he is amused by the "depression" talk of today In these good many days and years he has seen panics and depression come and go He knows that they eventually they go.

"In the old days panic principally meant a tightening up of credit. I, along with the others, was more

BRYAN AND COCHRAN.

"I believed I am pretty well posted on what is going on in political circles in Howard county and I believe it is safe to say that had Mr. Bryan made any announcement prior to election that he would not retain Roy Cochran as state engineer, in the event of his election, it is certain that his majority of more than 850 would have been turned into a majority for Governor Weaver," wrote J. F. Webster of St. Paul, publisher of the newspaper in that community, former president of the Nebraska State Press association, and one of the outstanding democrats in Nebraska. Mr. Webster's letter appeared in the Forum department of this newspaper last Thursday night.

"That is the way the people of Howard county feel toward Mr. Cochran. They appreciate his worth and realize he has accomplished a great deal in his official capacity during the time he has been in charge of our good roads program.

"I have been an admirer and a supporter of Charles W. Bryan every time he aspired for office in this state and have fought his battles in many instances when the going was bad and the prospects very dark, but we persevered and remained steadfast and true. But a new light is dawning and when another campaign rolls around it is certain that we will be joining thousands of democrats over the state to vote our disapproval of his work if he releases Mr. Cochran, or does anything that will lose his very efficient services to the state.

"We want Governor-elect Bryan to make a good showing as governor, and to have a successful administration, but if he is going to start at the very outset and dispense with the one man who has made such a wonderful success in his department, Roy L. Cochran, in the face of almost unanimous demands that his service be retained, then we do not give a care as to the success of Mr. Bryan and his administration because we will be one of the democrats who will be ready to see him repudiated at the next election."

Pretty plain talk, but it is the only kind, which "Dan" Webster, as he is affectionately known to his hundreds of friends, employs. Frank and direct in his speech, there have been few more devoted and enthusiastic democrats in Nebraska than J. F. Webster. He has toiled for his party early and late. He is a fighter and whenever the going was heavy and the outlook black he could be depended upon to strike mighty blows for the cause to which he gave his heart. He supported Mr. Bryan. He is anxious that the governor-elect's administration shall be successful. But Mr. Webster, along with hundreds of other democrats, is more concerned with Nebraska's development than he is with individual political fortunes of any man, or any organization.

If Governor-elect Bryan carries out his avowed purpose of deposing Roy Cochran he will seriously jeopardize the highway program. Mr. Cochran has been the head of road activities during the eight years that most of the development has taken place. He and his associates have planned the system and have built those portions of it which have been completed. No man, granted that he is competent and skilled in his profession, could be expected to master the enormous detail which arises in connection with more than 6,000 miles of highway in a month or even in a year. As an inevitable consequence highway work will lag. Until a new man has time to familiarize himself with his duties and with what has been done and is to be done, he will hesitate to lay out new projects and to let new contracts.

Never will conditions be more favorable for an energetic highway program than they are at this time. Labor and material costs are low. Paving can be secured for half of what it cost at the peak period of prices, and gravel can be laid for less than half. The people of Nebraska will get more for the money which they spend upon roads in the next twelve months than it is likely they will receive in the next two decades. Will Mr. Bryan continue to ignore this situation? Will he stubbornly cling to his decision to deprive the state of the services of a thoroughly competent, trained and experienced man? If he does whatever economies Mr. Bryan may be able to effect in other directions will be more than offset by his foolishness in highway matters.

With the passage of the bill in the United States senate Saturday, appropriating $80,000,000 additional for highway construction, an entirely new reason was added to the many good and sufficient ones already existing why Roy Cochran should be retained.

Under the provisions of that measure $4,000,000 and more will become available immediately for road building in Nebraska. A period of five years is given the state to match these funds, or 20 per cent of the total amount each year. The condition is attached, however, that the contracts shall be let and the work completed by September 1, 1931. Now how is a new man in the engineer's office going to prepare the plans, let the contracts and see that they are performed intelligently and efficiently? There can be no delay if Nebraska is to take advantage of this federal appropriation, to which the people of this state will contribute. The projects must be planned at once, and the contracts let early in 1931, in order that work may start early in the spring. It is unthinkable that Nebraska will ignore the opportunity to draw upon the federal treasury for more than $4,000,000 of road funds so sorely needed in this state. It will provide work for people now unemployed and keep them busy throughout the spring and the summer. It will give Nebraska a substantial start upon paving the main primary roads subjected to the heaviest traffic and exceedingly costly to maintain under present conditions.

Mr. Bryan has never seen fit to disclose his reasons for ousting the man he originally appointed, and whose efficient, and honest work has won the full faith and confidence of the overwhelming mass of Nebraskans. He says he has complaints. What are these complaints, and who is making them? What interest is back of them? Is it disappointed property owners who wanted highways built past their farms? Is it sour contractors who failed to get jobs they wanted. Is it machinery men and supply men who have an axe to grind? Mr. Bryan had a chance to observe Roy Cochran two years, and at the conclusion of that term publicly declared his appointee was honest, trained and competent. The governor-elect was even more implicit. He suggested to his successor Mr. Cochran should be retained even although the incoming governor was a republican and Mr. Cochran is a democrat. Evidently Mr. Bryan has changed his mind about retaining able and efficient men in office.

HATS OFF!

Oh, for the courage of a child! If man could only grow up without growing old! No obstacle would ever be too great.

Children at the Orthopedic hospital in Lincoln occasion this outburst. Handicapped at the very start of life, many with absolutely no hope of ever cavorting on the healthy limbs of normal children, yet they shame the world of strong bodies and pessimistic minds.

Could one imagine any group of children that are so in need of toys to brighten their convalescent lives? Yet a number of the kiddies at the local institution are ingeniously laboring over wooden toys, not for themselves, but to send to the children in the Jicarillo sanitorium in New Mexico.

We grownups worry over depression. We argue vague theories of armament in a world that cries for peace. We helplessly toss a thousand different troubles over in our minds. How many pause to realize that someone else may be in worse trouble, or that the skies might be much, much blacker?

Dear kiddies, poor and unfortunate that you are in the common language of men, you are the possessors of the best wealth—the true spirit of Christmas and the real philosophy of life.

THE DICTATOR FINDS A SCAPEGOAT.

And now poor old Wall street has to be the goat for Mussolini's failure to restore prosperity in Italy. It was the crash in the New York stock market a year ago, Benito tells his countrymen, which knocked things galleywest and threw the mechanism of finance and trade out of gear on both sides of the Atlantic.

As an alibi for the Italian boss this may serve, although it is pretty far-fetched. He certainly needs one. His national deficit of about 60,000,000 lire in 1929 has been swelled to 900,000,000 lire this year. In order to reduce it, he has had to cut the salaries of all government officials and employes very substantially. As the public payroll is said to comprise 60 per cent of all wage-earners in Italy, this cuts deeply into the people's means of sustenance.

Even a dictator likes to have the power of public opinion behind him, even though he may be able to enforce his decrees without it. In casting the blame for Italy's economic ills upon Wall street, Mussolini is playing the same kind of politics that Big Bill Thompson did when he assailed King George of England for interfering in Chicago's public school affairs. One charge has just about as much behind it as the other.

If Mussolini had not tried to make the Italians believe that he was their financial savior, as well as their political Poo-Bah, he wouldn't have let himself in for so much trouble explaining why his waving a magic wand of fascism did not bring back good times.

A PRACTICAL WAY TO HELP BUSINESS.

"Practice what you preach" is an old saying that has a good deal of force in it. Manufacturers, jobbers, retailers, bankers, and business leaders generally have for some time past been advising people to "buy now" in order to start the wheels of industry turning again at a normal pace. It is good advice too.

In order to help along the buying movement, the Sparks-Withington Co. of Jackson, Mich., manufacturers of a well known radio line, decided to advance the date of payment for its usual end-of-the-year dividend so as to place the money in the hands of its stockholders before Christmas. This has been done, and thereby more than a quarter of a million dollars put into circulation in advance of the holidays.

If the good example thus set by the Jackson firm had been generally followed by large corporations throughout the country, it would have measurably increased the pre-holiday purchasing power of the people and to that extent hastened the general business recovery now under way. The same idea was, in fact, carried out by some other concerns, though not generally.

A few business establishments in Lincoln have likewise made their dividend payments ahead of time and the state of Nebraska is paying its employes at the capitol their full December salaries a few days before Christmas. This is one of the reasons why merchants are able to report as good business as they had a year ago, or better.

MEXICO'S NEW LAND POLICY.

Far-reaching changes in Mexico's land policy took place during the past week in the form of amendments to the agrarian law, which, except for the tactful intervention of Dwight Morrow, former ambassador to Mexico, might have produced a serious difference of opinion between the United States and Mexico.

Under the amendments adopted certain agricultural properties such as sugar plantations, orchards and dairy farms are exempted from seizure for development as communal projects, under both federal and state authority. Likewise new accessions to existing communal farms are forbidden unless payment for the land is made in cash, instead of in bonds. Heretofore property owners have found, when they tried to redeem or sell the bonds which they secured for their land that the actual value was but a fraction of the face value. In effect, the inclusion of private lands in communal projects was virtual confiscation, it was claimed. As a result capital sorely needed in Mexico was fearful of going ahead with development plans.

Before the Mexican legislature passed the land legislation during the Calles and Obregon administrations, it was estimated that American investments in Mexico aggregated a billion dollars. The United States department of Commerce recently placed them at $638,000,000, which represents a withdrawal of $362,000,000 in less than five years.

It is with an idea of encouraging foreign capital that the Rubio administration is softening its land policy. The main objects have been achieved, because the vast estates which formerly deprived the mass of the Mexican people of the opportunity to own land have been broken up sufficiently to provide farms for them. To add to the communal projects would not aid materially, it is recognized, while it would increase the Mexican debt which was boosted some $200,000,000 by the land bonds issued. The changes will be highly gratifying to American business interests in Mexico.

One need not be possessed of a great musical understanding to know that static isn't related to harmony.

Listen to the Grandson Talk!

ROCKNE
ALUMNI

Knute lays down the law.

BY WILL ROGERS.

When you great Grandchildren are sitting around some Penal Institution at recreation time, they will talk of the time away back when their parents and Grandparents used to tell about a certain man that flourished from around 1920 to 1940 and from then on Children will be as they are today, they will have to be taught who was President around all that era. But the same as we today remember Jessie James, and Paul Revere and a few of those without any particular aid from history, why we will remember this man. These confined Grandchildren of ours will say, "Yes we have great Coaches today, we have great Teams. But Dad says every play they know was originally done away back in his childhood by Knute Rockne who founded Notre Dame.

This Notre Dame was just another Stubblefield College, they cut down the tall grass, dammed up the creek, and made another one of those Indiana Institutions of learning that flourished on practically every quarter section throughout the State. Well it was going along, it had a few old Uniforms, and some second hand Footballs. But they had never played any further away from home than you could make in a day Coach. On Sunday the results of their games would be listed along with Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Penn, and Columbia, and all of that ilk. They had never made the headlines along with Alabama, Georgia, Northwestern, Army, Navy, and all the other Big-Shots.

A Ski-Jumper.

Well from what Granddad says, this Rockne blew in there, and went to school. He was a Swede, or a Norweigan, or a Dane, or some of those Ski Jumping Nations up in there. He dident know a Football from a footpad. But these Pumpkin seed Boys was kicking one around here and playing what they humorously referred to as Football. They let him play with em just for comedy purposes, and for a Swede, or a Norweigen, or a Dane, he turned out to be mighty good. Along about then they started throwing forward passes, so to have some more fun they got to throwing em to this Swede, or Norweigen, or Dane. Well instead of this Swede, or Norweigan or Dane dodging em, why he got to catching em, and Ski'ening over the line with em.

So He Graduated.

Well then he graduated, for they wont let you stay in one of these Schools but four years, no matter how little you know. They got a rule they made you graduate whether you want to or not. Then when they graduated him, then come the problem, what was he going to do? He hadent finished from Harvard so he couldent sell Bonds. He was just a Swede, or Norweigan, or Dane football Player and there wasent a whole lot of market for a Football Player, that was back in the days when Football was a recreation and not a Racket. So he says to himself why cant I coach? I have missed enough signals during my years on the team to entitle me to instruct others.

So he found some boys that dident know much more about the game than he did, so he started in coaching em, the first thing you know he was helping to coach Notre Dame. Well he dident think he was much of a Coach till he got to seeing some of the others. The head Coach got a job at what he thought was a real high Goal University, and Knute took over the team. Well from that day football left the red and started to making gains into the Credit, the black side of the Ledger. When the graduating class would receive their invocation, he would ask to say a few worlds to em. "Boys what is your aim through life?" "Why sir to make a living." "No its not, its to send a football Player to Notre Dame, thats your lifes work. Send me a Football Player."

A Game Of the Head.

But when the football player got there he knew what to do with him. He told em that football was a game of the head, and not of the feet and hands. Well it just wasent no time till Notre Dame had got out of the weeds, and raised their Scholastic standing a half dozen touchdowns, and you started reading about it. It wasent just a Buckwheat College, it was right up in the money. It was filling more Stadiums than any of em. He then originated the unique idea of playing a real team every Saturday, instead of about three a season. Then come his climax, as my old Grandparents have told me. He was a great Kidder. He was to play a game on the coast against their best, and their Sporting Writers had boosted their team up till it looked like practical death for Knute to even go on the field with em. Well he started in before they left Chicago, saying that his team dident have a chance, that they would be beat, as they had lost their only Star. Well on the Coast they fell for it, and when he got to Tuscon, Arizona to practice, why he was supposed to have lost another Star, A Mr. Mullins. The Sporting Writers come down to see who he was practicing in Mullins place and they noticed a No. 31. They looked it upand it was a Mr. Hanley. But when the game started a gent named O'Connor was the starter. Nobody had ever heard of him, but nobody will ever forget him. Then the news leaked out that during this Arizona practice he had been wearing Hanleys sweater. But No Sporting Writer had ever thought of that.

He Even Got Odds.

Well he kidded em right up to game time, and even got the odds against his team. Well Grandpap says that when they kicked off Notre Dame got ahold of the ball and never give it back to the other side all day. But the thing that Grandpap laughed about was the way this fellow Rockne just kidded the pants off the whole Pacific coast from the time he left South Bend till he got back. Barnum Grandpap says in his balmiest days never made such a Sucker out of folks with his side show as this Knute fellow did singlehanded, outside of what his team did to the others. He even told em that next year they would beat him that bad. Well everybody was surprised to know that they would play em again next year. Nobody ever heard of the Kaiser wanting a return date.

But I have just heard Grandpa sit by the hour and tell some of the Komical things this Rockne did in his day. Yes, Sir, Grandpap says he is the one that made Notre Dame more famous than Oxford and Cambridge. This Swede, or Norweigan, or Dane, or Luthianian, or whatever he is.

Facist Logic.

(Kansas City Times.)

From reports the first showing of "All Quiet on the Western Front" in Berlin seems to have been anything but quiet. The German Fascists apparently took exception to the film because it so vividly depicted the futility and horror of war. They prefer to think that war is certainly necessary and probably beautiful. To convince their fellow citizens that they were right, they staged a riot at the theater with the aid of stink bombs, sneezing powders and brass knuckles. It would be interesting to know how many converts they made for the cause of "frightfulness."

THE STATUE IN THE PARK.

There stood a statue in a park
The life of one long dead to mark.
Upon his head the snow was thick,
A boy had struck him with a brick.
And up and down his rugged form
Showed wear and tear of many a storm.
Wind-blown and dirty was his face.
Yet night and day he kept his place
And night and day he must remain
Out there to buffet sleet and rain.

And as we passed, a friend said: "Wait!
Behold the glory of the great!
Behold the penalty of fame!
Gaze now on Mr. What's-His-Name.
Who was, but long has ceased to be,
Warm flesh and blood like you and me.
Those icicles upon his chin
Are what he struggled hard to win.
That frozen look, that coat of grime
Are called 'the sweet rewards of time.'

"On that extended arm in spring
The birds will perch and gayly sing.
The dust of years will settle there
And not a living soul will care.
Remembered? Yes, on holidays
When orators are spouting praise.
But not when rain is falling down
Or bitter snow storms sweep the town.
He stands a great gaunt question mark:
Why be a statue in a park?

"Who envies him his lofty place
His snow-crowned head and cold bruised face?
Better it is to be alive
Against the world's long odds to strive.
To love and laugh and shed our tears
And go on dreaming down the years
Than be a thing of bronze or stone
Left out there in the storms alone.
Better on, ventures to embark
Than be the statue in the park."

Black Diamonds in Brazil.

(Engineering and Mining Journal)

Brazil enjoys the distinction of possessing the only known commercial deposits of the carbonado, a so-called anthracite variety of diamond, dark gray to black in shade.

Three varieties of diamonds are known—the crystalline gem stone; the bort, frequently translucent, and resembling the carbonado in structure, and the true carbonado.

Until the invention of the diamond drill carbonados were of little value, but so rapidly has a use for them developed that deep exploration by drills would in present practice be impracticable without them. Prospecting by the use of the diamond drill is now approved engineering everywhere.

Carbonados have no cleavage, and are thus much better than crystalline diamonds for use in drills. In fact, the carbonado possesses the distinction of being the toughest substance on earth.

The largest diamond ever found was a carbonado. It was discovered in the state of Bahia, Brazil, in 1895. The stone weighed 3,078 carats and was worth at the present market more than $300,000. This carbon, broken to sizes suitable for use in diamond drills, rendered great service in the exploration of the Mesabi Range. Beside this giant stone the Great Mogul and the Kohinor rate low in the scale, as to size, among the famous diamonds of history.

Although diamonds of the crystalline variety were mined in Brazil as early as 1725, only since 1876 have carbonados been known in that great country. At that time the carbons were discarded as waste material.

The carbonados range from minute fragments up to several hundred carats. About 98 per cent of the product is used in drills, the remainder, in the form of powder, being used as a polishing material in the cutting of white diamonds, and for abrasive purposes.

Stones of larger than commercial size are split and broken under pressure by a sharp wedge of superhardened steel of German manufacture. After this simple process the carbonado becomes a very useful engineering tool of such weights as the purchaser may specify, the price of which has varied from 25 cents a carat sixty years ago up to $185 in recent years.

The Old Pioneer Spirit.

(New York World)

Miss Rosemary O'Connor, 13 years old, arrived in Buffalo the other day to find out that she was suddenly on her own. Her father was to meet her, but her telegram to him was not delivered, and so she was unexpectedly faced with the problem of how she was to eat, sleep and be clothed. She went to the Young Women's Christian association, took a room for the night, and paid for it. This left her 35 cents. With this capital she went to a store and bought Christmas postcards at a cent apiece. Then she went to a street corner and sold all her cards at 5 cents apiece. Going back for more, she went to the street corner again and sold them too. With the profits of both ventures, she now went into a restaurant and ate. Then, going along the street, she saw a sign in front of a theater giving notice that it was amateur night. She bought a ticket went in, and circulated through the audience, telling the people she was going to put on an act and asking them to give the little girl a hand. Then she went on the stage, sang two songs and danced, and was applauded so loudly that she received the first prize $1.50. Then she went to her room and to bed. The next day the police, egged on by a frantic father, located her, and found that she was planning to attend another amateur night.

Now what arrests us about all this is not the young lady's pluck. With a name like Rosemary O'Connor she would naturally have pluck. It is rather her incredible decisiveness. Most of us, in her situation, would take a seat on a park bench and think of 20 schemes, all more or less feasible, but we would put none of them into execution. Eventually we would go around to the police station, confess our plight, and let the sergeant start us on a round of the aid societies that give bewildered people their bearings. But not Miss Rosemary O'Connor. The moment a plan occurred to her she acted on it, and the moment a second plan occurred to her she acted on that. We must say she commands our admiration.

The Recent Crisis.

(The London Statist.)

England most conspicuously and other countries having a legislature more or less modeled on or in some sense resembling that of England have so far, in Europe, succeeded in masking the inherent defects of the system. But in South America the political history of the ten repblics and the formation of their populations is so different from the experience of Europe that the governmental system has to be modified to suit the peculiar conditions prevailing in the various republics.

It has to be remembered that the ten republics came into existence very much in the form in which we know them at present not much more than a hunrded years ago. They had been for three centuries before that colonies of Spain. South America, unlike North America, was relatively a densely populated continent and, although there were and are, vast spaces virtually uninhabited, nevertheless nearly all the republics contain a substartum of a native and relatively highly civilized people. Those people were kept in subjection; and, in addition, over large areas of the continent slaves were imported from Africa. In the sequel it will be seen that the population, which any legislature has to represent are relatively small and their interests, or supposed interests, exceedingly diverse. Most of these republics are accustomed to rely to a large extent upon the support of the army partly because populations are rarely homogenous and partly because their legislatures have never obtained a position of authority in the minds of any class which would even given them the appearance of the right to rule, as is the case, for example, in those countries of Europe where the representative theory is accepted as interpreted by Orthodox democrats. This merely means in the case of South America that when the legislative system practically fails to function and a change becomes manifestly necessary and often desirable, that party, or section, which secures the support of the ablest directors of the military force available will succeed in altering the government very much as an election alters the government in those countries which accept with relatively little question the elective theory.

QUESTION.

Pittsfield, Mass.

What is the World Court and what nations belong to it?

ANSWER.

The World Court is a court of justice which exists for the purpose of applying the principles of international law to the judicial settlement of certain classes of international disputes. Its official name is the Permanent Court of International Justice. It sits at The Hague, the capital city of Holland, in the Peace Palace built by Andrew Carnegie for the Hague Court of Arbitration.

All the nations belong to it except Afghanistan, Argentina, Ecuador, Egypt, Honduras, Mexico, Russia, Turkey and the United States.

Its judges are nominated by the national groups in the Hague Court of Arbitration. Jurisdiction is limited to three major categories. The first covers all cases which the interested parties voluntarily submit to it for adjudication; the second comprises those disputes referrable to the court under the provisions of certain treaties and conventions already in force, and the third category consists of optional cases which may or may not be submitted to the court, as the respective nations determine.

QUESTION.

Roanoke, Va.

What can we do as parents to cultivate the love of art in our children? I am the mother of three and they are at the stage when their tastes are forming, so I feel it is important to give them the right guidance.

ANSWER.

Possibly the experience of the directors of the Children's Art Center of University Settlement at 184 Eldridge Street, New York, will be helpful. The Children's Art Center has an exhibition room in which are shown paintings, drawings, etchings, statuary and various forms of craftsmanship.

First of all they are impressed by the dignity and order of the room. No matter how excellent a work of art may be, it cannot express itself in a disorderly setting any more than good music can be appreciated in a boiler factory. If we would cultivate love of fine objects, we must show them under conditions that permit their beauty to be studied. Therefore, the parent who wants to develop a child's love of beauty must see to it that the rooms of the home are orderly and gracious. And graciousness, of course, includes cleanliness. I appreciate it is a continual struggle to have to clean and tidy up after youngsters. But it is a primary condition precedent to do so if an appreciation of art is to be taught in the home.

Again, a child's experience of life seems to be more consciously three-dimensional than that of the adult. Therefore, sculpture makes an immediate appeal to children. They also show more sympathy for animals than for human beings. Consequently bronzes of both domestic and wild animals have been found to be a source of constant interest to them, as have figure pieces of children. They also enjoy grotesqueness, provided the subjects are not too extreme. If you can afford it, buy some good bronzes and place them where they can be handled, so that the children may understand them with their finger tips as well as with their eyes. Many art connoisseurs derive much pleasure from physical contact, with the things they love, an aspect of appreciation which should not be denied to your children.

As for pictures, children seem to appreciate highly finished paintings more than those which are chiefly suggestive. Vermeer, of Delft, for instance, is a prime favorite with them. Good reproductions of the masterpieces of painting are now available, such as Durer's works, which are greatly loved by children. They welcome complexity in a painting or drawing provided it challenges their powers of observation. Durer's "World of Little Things" is most visited at the Children's Art Center of the University Settlement of New York, both because of what is obvious and also because youngsters constantly discover new forms hidden in its design. Paintings and drawings should be hung low enough to be on the eye line of the child.

Objects of art should be changed frequently. When a thing has remained in the same place for any length of time, no matter how good it is, it tends to lose its individuality and fade into the background. Have a sufficient supply of objects of art, therefore, to permit at least a change or rearrangement every few months. Exercise a little pains to freshen the eyes of the children if you would have them pay attention to visual beauty.

Do not lecture the youngsters on what they should and should not like. If after a reasonable time any object of art does not speak in terms understood by the child who looks at it, nothing that a third person can say will make any real difference in the child's attitude. Display works of art say little about them, and if they have a message for the partcular child, in course of time he or she will ask questions which will give you a chance to add to the child's ideas on the subject. More harm is done by adults in this connection, who insist on airing their knowledge or their prejudices, than the recording angel will ever be able to note.

COLORFUL ARRAY OF PROGRAMS ON YULETIDE MENU

International Exchange Of Broadcasts to Be Holiday Feature.

Hoover to Greet Nation At Annual Capitol Tree Lighting.

Filling Christmas stockings with radio programs for the average radio listeners has been the business of program arrangers in the leading broadcasting studios of late. As a result a creditable array of music, drama and special features is set up for the Yuletide menu.

Putting a microscope over the tastes of the American radio public is no small job and weeks have been devoted to studies of Christmas season programs of the past and fan mail reaction to them.

Among the foremost Christmas day events are the international broadcasts. The National Broadcasting company has arranged an exchange of features with England and Germany, and although details have not been completed, the programs which America will receive will include holiday entertainment of a type familiar to the originating countries.

Japan Broadcast Planned.

A broadcast from Japan also is planned and although this program is not definite, engineers see that it will be possible in view of the success of the first transmission made from that country this year in the broadcast of the signing of the London naval treaty.

The Columbia Broadcasting system has arranged a complete religious service coming over the Atlantic Christmas afternoon from 12 30 to 1 30 o'clock. Originating in the Parish church of St. Mary's in the Whitechapel district, London, the program will feature the London Vicar choir and a sermon by Rev. John A. Mayo.

President Hoover's voice will be heard giving a Christmas greeting to the nation Christmas eve at 5 o'clock when he participates in the annual lighting of the national community Christmas tree in Washington, D. C. Lieutenant Colonel U. S. Grant III also will speak and musical selections will be given by the United States Marine band.

Symphony Concerts.

Two outstanding symphony aggregations will be on the air. The Detroit Symphony orchestra, assisted by the Detroit Symphony choir, will be heard Wednesday from 9 to 10 p. m. Leopold Stokowski's Philadelphia Symphony orchestra, the most important Yuletide feature as far as many listeners are concerned, will play Christmas day from 3 to 4 o'clock.

RADIO DEVELOPS NEW MICROPHONE

Enemy Planes Raiding at Night Gave Idea for Latest Invention.

The parabolic reflector microphone is radio's latest development. It has been adopted by the National Broadcasting Co. for sending out the Chicago Civic Opera programs and the music of large symphony orchestras. It will be used Christmas day when the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra goes on the air under the direction of Leopold Stokowski.

Unlike the ordinary microphone the face of the new one is turned away from the artists participating in a broadcast, while facing the diaphragm is a parabolic reflector. The reflector catches the sound waves, which reflect into the diaphragm of the microphone, thus being focused harmoniously on the small diaphragm of the condenser microphone.

Farther Away From Artists.

Parabolic reflectors may be regulated to assimilate the sound waves within a certain radius even as a focused camera or an arc light's rays cover a specific area. Noises originating outside the focused area are thus discriminated against and undesirable reverberation also eliminated.

The new microphone is placed further away from the artists participating than the ordinary condenser microphone, and a more harmonious blending of the instruments and voices as a whole is secured.

Studio engineers found that the standard form of condenser microphone, ordinarily satisfactory in small and medium sized groups working in properly adjusted studios, was not sensitive enough to pick up speed and obtain the best orchestral balance when used in opera houses, concert halls or for outdoor work.

Principle Used In War.

"By use of the parabolic microphone, capable of operating at greater distances from the source of sound, this defect is overcome," said O. B. Hanson, engineer. "The new instrument is purposely placed further away from the artists in a large group to gain a better ratio of relative distance between the microphone and respective musical instruments and voices. Rich overtones are broadcast with more fidelity.

"The directional sound reflection principle was used in the World war to determine the approximate direction of enemy planes raiding at night," said Mr. Hanson. "Of course, devices then in use were not quality devices, but when the reflector directly faced any enemy plane the sound of the airplane motor was amplified, and soldiers fired blindly at the air intruder after the direction was determined."

CHEERIO PROGRAM RETURNED TO AIR

The transmission of Cheerio's complete radio half hour has been resumed by thirty-five NBC stations, including WOW, Omaha. For eleven weeks only half of the period was being received by midwest stations of the chain which were switched to another program for the remaining fifteen minutes. Objections from various sources led to the decision to restore the broadcast.

The Cheerio program is conducted without compensation by a man known to listeners solely as Cheerio. It is designed to give the listener a "mental slap on the back" as the day begins. It has been a chain feature for two and a half years, and first was presented over KGO, San Francisco, five years ago.

PLAN EXPERIMENT IN RADIO DRAMA

A radical innovation in radio dramatics which opens an almost unlimited field in this type of entertainment will take place Friday at 9 30 p. m. when the Columbia Broadcasting system presents a new work entitled "Behind the Words, a Drama in Radio Telepathy."

The story of the play will be told in dual dialogue. The characters will speak their lines and reveal simultaneously the inner motives which prompted them, their thoughts being made audible by the use of "asides."

This ancient dramatic form of thinking aloud was revived by Eugene O'Neill in "The Great God Brown" and "Strange Interlude." Georgia Backus of the Columbia dramatic staff is the first to apply the idea to radio. She will also use musical motifs to enhance the effect of the characterizations.

Radio Guild Drama

The play, "The Servant in the House," is to be adapted for radio. It will be presented by the Radio Guild Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock on WJZ and stations including KFAB, with the author, Charles Rand Kennedy, in the leading role. The guild is a weekly series in which outstanding plays are fitted into an hour's broadcast.

Nancy Carroll on Air

NEW YORK, Dec 20—Announcement has just been made that Nancy Carroll, screen star, is to appear on the air after the first of the year. She will be guest artist with the "Musical Revue" on WJZ and stations, at 7 45 p. m., January 16.

PRAISE EINSTEIN.

Broadcasting veterans around the NBC studios say that Professor Albert Einstein, who gave a series of talks shortly after his arrival in this country, is the first celebrity in history who did not clear his throat before beginning to speak.

Radio Winners Receive Awards

Carol Deis, soprano, of Dayton, O., and Raoul E. Nadeau (right), baritone, of New York City are shown above receiving checks of $5 000 from A. Atwater Kent as winners in the fourth national radio audition which was broadcast over a coast-to-coast NBC network last Sunday night. Each also received a two years' musical scholarship.

Radio Digest

To Get Best Results from Modern Receiver.

While the installation of a modern radio receiver is a simple task, there are a number of important factors which should not be overlooked in order to obtain the best results. First of all, the aerial should be between 50 and 80 feet in length in order to get distant broadcasting stations. This includes lead-in from the aerial wire to the set. A good grade of insulation should be used, and the wire should be supported free from metallic objects. Consideration of the ground connection is important, if best results are to be obtained. While almost anything which is directly or indirectly connected to the earth may be employed for this connection, it will be found that usually a cold water pipe gives best results. Perhaps the second best is a wire leading directly to a pipe driven into the earth. Other things which may be used are steam heating systems, counterpoise wire (a wire supported horizontally to the ground), etc. Another thing which should be considered is the location of the set in the room. Most rooms where sets are located are small, and occasionally offer acoustical problems. For instance if a set is set close to a wall it may cause the wall to vibrate, giving the receiver a peculiar resonant sound. This may be overcome by placing some non-reverberating material such as felt behind the set.

For the Notebook.

Continued high temperature will dry insulation in a receiver and cause insulating compounds to run.

Power or output tubes are used primarily for providing the energy necessary to operate the loud speaker with sufficient volume.

The effect of shortening an aerial is to improve the selectivity, but at the same time it reduces the pick-up of the receiver.

It is unusual to get good, reliable entertainment reception from more than five outside stations from an eight-tube all-electric set.

The modern well constructed receiver is subject to mechanical wear at only three points—the variable condensers, the volume control, and the on-off switch.

Jascha Heifetz, Mendelssohn Glee Club And Philadelphia Orchestra Feature Gala Week

JASCHA HEIFETZ, world-famous concert violinist, will make his radio debut in what promises to be one of the year's outstanding musical broadcasts over WJZ and a special nation-wide network of National Broadcasting company stations Sunday evening. He will be heard in the "Slumber Music" program from 9 30 to 10 o'clock, central standard time. Among stations which will transmit the broadcast are: WLW, Cincinnati; WENR, Chicago; WREN, Lawrence, Kas.; WSM, Nashville, Tenn., and KOA, Denver.

Heifetz will receive $15 000 for his initial broadcast which probably will be his last for two years since he soon departs from the United States for a world concert tour.

The celebrated violinist, who is the husband of Florence Vidor, former screen actress, will make his own announcements, adding a picturesque feature to the broadcast. He will tune his Stradivarius, tell what he is going to play and in fact, put on the whole show himself. Isidor Achron will be at the piano. The program:

First Movement From Concerto (Mendelssohn); Ave Maria (Schubert); Hungarian Dance No. 7 (Brahms); Puck (Grieg-Achron); On Wings of Song (Mendelssohn); Hora Staccato (Dinicu-Heifetz).

The music of Bach and Handel [illegible] comprise the program the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra will play when its third radio concert of the season is broadcast Christmas day with Leopold Stokowski on the conductor's stand. Pastoral Symphony from "The Messiah" (Handel); Overture in D Minor (Handel); Shepherd's Christmas Music from "The Christmas Oratorio" (Bach); Chorale Prelude in E Flat Minor (Bach); Toccata and Fugue in D Minor (Bach).

Jascha Heifetz, above, celebrated violin virtuoso, was offered this startling advice recently by Bernard Shaw, British dramatist, following a recital in London: "Nothing may be perfect in this world or the gods become jealous and destroy it. So would you mind playing one wrong note every night before you go to bed?" Radio listeners throughout the nation Sunday night will have an opportunity to hear Heifetz, whom the violinist whom Shaw said was "too perfect," makes his radio debut over WJZ and stations at 9.30 o'clock. Until he was signed to go on the air, Heifetz constituted one of two famous violinists unwilling to actuate the microphone. Fritz Kreisler was the other.

Prominent soloists, a mixed quartet, a large vocal chorus and an augmented orchestra will participate in an impressive Christmas carol service over the Columbia network Wednesday evening under the direction of F. Channon Collinge. This feature will be broadcast from 11 to 12 midnight, immediately following the radio dramatization of Dickens' "Christmas Carol." Program details follow:

Richard Bonelli to Sing.

Richard Bonelli, leading baritone of the Chicago Civic Opera company and one of America's best known native-born opera stars, will sing a program of songs appropriate to the Christmas season with an orchestra under Don Voorhees' direction on WJZ's network from 8:30 to 9 p. m. Bonelli, who appeared in the Chicago Opera's presentation of "Faust" here two years ago, always is a favorite with Lincoln radio audiences. The program:

Elaborate Philharmonic Program.

Ludwig von Beethoven's "Eroica" symphony and Franz Schubert's Symphony in B Minor, Unfinished, two of the greatest works of all time, are features of the concert of the New York Philharmonic Symphony society orchestra, Arturo Toscanini, conducting, over the Columbia system Sunday afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock. The program:

Symphony in B Minor—Unfinished (Schubert); Venusberg Scene from "Tannhauser" (Wagner); [illegible] Symphony No. 3—Eroica (Beethoven).

Stuart Orchestra Program.

The Stuart Symphony orchestra, Arthur Babich, conducting, and Harold Turner, organist, will present the following program from the Lincoln theater Sunday from 7.15 to 7 45 p. m. over KFAB:

[illegible] Herbert, orchestra and organ; [illegible] Rapee, orchestra and organ; [illegible] chorus by Jack Wheelock, tenor; Medley from "Babes in Toyland" (Herbert), orchestra and organ; [illegible]; March of the Toys from "Babes in Toyland" (Herbert), orchestra and organ; Theme song.

Mixed Quartet in A. K. Hour.

A mixed quartet including Martha Attwood, soprano; Lewis James, tenor; Merle Alcock, contralto, and Wilfred Glenn, bass, will present the Atwater Kent hour on WEAF's chain Sunday evening from 8 15 to 9 15 o'clock. Program details have not been announced.

CONCERT BUREAUS IN LARGE MERGER

Another step which brings more artists and entertainers under radio's wing has been brought about by the merger of seven concert bureaus into the Columbia Concerts corporation with W. S. Paley, president of the Columbia Broadcasting system, as chairman of the board. Those in the merger are Arthur Judson, Inc.; Metropolitan Musical bureau; Wolfsohn Musical Bureau of New York, Inc.; Evans & Salter; Haensel & Jones; Community Concerts corporation, and the Judson Radio Program corporation.

More than 125 prominent singers and instrumentalists are under the directorship of the new organization which officially will begin to function January 1. Columbia system officials have explained that these artists are not restricted to the one network, but will be available to all stations that may desire to contract for them.

"Three Doctors" Join New Columbia Feature

A program something like the radio entertainment of years past when there were no set rules to follow is to open over sixty-seven stations of the Columbia system Sunday, January 5. It will headline Russell Pratt, Ransom Sherman and Joe Rudolph, stars of the staff of WMAQ, Chicago, whose listeners know them as the "Three Doctors." The feature will come weekly and be entirely extemporaneous.

New KGBZ License

KGBZ, York, was among eighteen radio stations granted temporary thirty-one-day licenses dating from December 31, by the federal radio commission last week. The licenses were granted pending the commission's final action on charges of failing to operate within public interest.

East-West Grid Game On Columbia Network

The East-West charity football game at Kezar stadium, San Francisco, Cal., next Friday afternoon will be broadcast by the Columbia Broadcasting system from 4 to 6.15 o'clock, central standard time. Elmer Greenberg and Marion Broadstone, Husker linemen, are members of the West team of which Nebraska's Coach Dana X. Bible is one of the two coaches in charge.

Margaret Anglin to Read "Happy Prince"

Margaret Anglin, noted actress of the legitimate stage, who recently portrayed the leading role in the NBC Radio Guild's Greek drama "Iphigenia in Aulis" by Euripides, will read "The Happy Prince" by Liza Lehmann on the air Christmas afternoon. The time of broadcast and whether the WEAF or WJZ chain will carry the feature will be announced later.

Ruth Chatterton Carries Vivid Portrayal of Two Roles In Film at Stuart

RUTH CHATTERTON

The legions who have wanted more and more of the subtly scintillating art of Ruth Chatterton will in a measure have their longings gratified this week. In "The Right to Love," coming to the Stuart theater this week, Miss Chatterton has a triple characterization within a dual role, as she is both the girl and the woman, Naomi, and moves from the trustfulness of girlhood to the philosophy of maturity, and, in the end, portrays the role of her own daughter.

It is a story of two generations, which have their beginnings in the farm lands of the middlewest. If there is a too repressive attitude in the first years, in which love engenders a tragic sacrifice of happiness in later years it is cast off in after years, and Brook Evans finds the courage to live, according to life's lessons as she has learned them, if not according to the dictates of her mother's childhood.

Two Vivid Roles.

If you read "Brook Evans," you'll want to see the best seller depicted by the screen's Ethel Barrymore. If you missed it, you'll enjoy quite as much seeing Ruth Chatterton in her first dual role, two vivid and vibrant portrayals. "The Right to Love" is neither an ordinary picture nor an ordinary theme, as Ruth Chatterton proves the picture's title, going through the dramatic cycle of young love, emotion, death, mother love, hatred, longing, disillusionment and strength to live, even though it may mean more dimming of the rainbows of romance even as it might mean the happiness coming from her defiance.

"The Right to Love" is the first picture ever filmed with the marvelous new system of noiseless recording. This new plan eliminates all "surface" noises from the picture and only those of the picture, the voices and any unnecessary background, are heard. The preview of the picture showed that this new device is most effective in adding to the enjoyment of the picture.

A breath of musical comedy, bubbling with effervescent gayety and delightful melody, is the offering of Ulis and Cark in "All for Fun," on the Stuart stage this week. Miss Clark brings an array of attractive frocks, as well as a cleverly worked-out dialect. Mr Ulis is an excellent type of comedy leading man. No small part of their number is their contralto and tenor voices, which add to their vivid personalities.

Jules and Jose Walton started their careers at Northwestern, but they found the stage more alluring than chemistry ever could be. Taking part in Chicago dance contests —and adjudged winners in one of the biggest contests—they soon had professional engagements, and have become one of vaudeville's favorite dance teams. Brother Eddie and Al Zimmey, a popular young singer, assist.

MARLENE DIETRICH

Gary Cooper, happy-go-lucky soldier of fortune, private in the French Foreign Legion, where every man's past is his secret. Marlene Dietrich, playing her first American screen role — the lovely toast of the continent. Adolphe Menjou, too long absent from the cinema, debonair man of the world.

Three of the high-powered electric names of the celluloid world. One of the heralded pictures of the season. For the Lincoln screen, beginning Monday.

New Love Tangle.

New among modern love tangles is the strange choice forced upon the delectable Marlene Dietrich, whom critics have found so charming and so different since she arrived from Germany to success in American films, in "Morocco." The two men, the soldier, who has a way with the women, and the continental, who also has his own way with the ladies, are two distinct types of men in their ideals, ideas, and modes of life. Both meet and are vanquished by the devastating personality of the Dietrich. And their loving and living is against the vivid, orange, forgetful beauty of Morocco.

The one man offered to this unknown girl—everything. The other could only give her wandering and lonesomeness and love. There's a mad splendor about all this picture, through which runs the uneven thread of her indecisions. She must be strong for either choice, but the one love has a magnificence of sacrifice, and the picture is of her struggle to fuse her character and her choice.

The Santa Fe Trail.

Stan Hollister	Richard Arlen
Maria Castinado	Rosita Moreno
"Doc" Brady	Eugene Pallette
Emily	Mitzi Green
"Old-Timer"	Junior Durkin
Marc Collard	Hooper Atchley
Juan Castinado	Luis Alberni
Slaven	Lee Shumway
Chief Sutanek	Standing Bear
Eagle Feather	Blue Cloud
Brown Beaver	Yowlache
Webber	Jack Byron

There are no telephone poles along "The Santa Fe Trail," no twisted traffic lanes, no railroads, but there's plenty of action in a story that tells of Spanish Acres, a western land grant, in the days when each man carried the law in his own holster. Richard Arlen, who has been bounding up the steps to populrity, heads an unusually fine cast in this picture, scheduled for the last half of the week at the Colonial.

As the plot unfolds, it tells of a war between sheep raisers and cattlemen during the early days of the west, just after the Civil war. But there isn't only war riding the Santa Fe trail, for there's companionship, between Arlen and Pallette, and there's romance, with the pretty young Spanish star, causing it all. The juvenile interest is stimulated through Mitzi and Junior, who have their own infantile troubles, but who get a chance to be heroes, after all.

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—This is my first visit to your department and I hope to see my letter in print.

Please give me the cast of "Feet First." I surely do like Harold Lloyd. How old is he and what is his address?

If I should send money to my favorite actors, could I get their pictures? How much money should I send?

My favorites are Janet Gaynor, Buddy Rogers, Clara Bow, Rudy Vallee, Harold Lloyd, Nancy Carroll and Helen Kane. QQuQiQiQe a list, isn't it?

I forgot to ask, do people usually get their pictures if they enclose money? Yours truly, DIMPLES, Reynolds, Neb.

Invites Return Visit.

This is your big day, Dimples. You see your letter did reach the press. We hope you will make a return visit.

Mr. Lloyd is 37 years old, and one of Nebraska's celebrities. Address him in care of his own company, Hollywood, Calif., or if you prefer at the Paramount studio, as his pictures are released through that company.

Twenty-five cents is the customary fee to enclose with your request for photographs. I can't guarantee delivery, but from all accounts I hear from the fans, most of the players will mail you a photograph for that amount. The money is not a charge for the picture, but simply to defray mailing expenses.

Address Clara Bow, Buddy Rogers, Nancy Carrol and Helen Kane at the Paramount Studio, 5451 Marathon, Hollywood, Calif. for their pictures. Janet Gaynor is with Fox, 1401 N Western avenue, Hollywood, and you could reach Rudy at the R. K. O. studio, 780 Gower street Hollywood. I don't mean that he is there, but they would no doubt have his photograph and would mail one back to you.

Thinks Buddy Is "Keen."

Dear Movie Editor—May I be admitted to your column? I read the column every Sunday and wish to say I certainly do enjoy it. I suppose I'm just another bother to you with a lot of questions, so will have my say right now.

How tall are Clara Bow, Nancy Carroll, and Alice White and what are their addresses?

About two years ago I saw the picture, "Mother Knows Best." Will you give me the cast of characters? I would also like to have the cast for "Playing Around."

How do yuo think Buddy Rogers ranks as a favorite in your column? What is his latest picture? I surely think he is keen. How may I secure a picture of Buddy Rogers and Alice White?

Has Zane Grey's book entitled, "Man of the Forest" ever been put in picture form? JUST HELEN, Sumner, Neb.

Clara Five Foot Two.

We appreciate your interest in this department and hope you will continue to enjoy it.

Clara Bow is five feet three inches tall, Nancy Carroll is five feet four, and Alice White is just five feet. Address Alice at the First National studios, Burbank, Calif. Nancy and Clara both have dressing rooms at the Paramount studio, 5451 Marathon, Hollywood, Calif.

The cast for "Mother Knows Best" is "Sally Quaile," Madge Bellamy; "Ma Quaille," Louise Dresser; "The Boy," Barry Norton; "Sam Kingston," Albert Gran; "Bessie Annette De Kirby," "Ben Ivor De Kirby," "Pa Quaile," Lucien Littlefield.

"Playing Around" featured: "Sheba Miller," Alice White; "Nickey Solcmon," Chester Morris; "Jack," William Bakewell; "Pa Miller," Richard Carlyle; "Maude," Marion Byron; "Joe," Maurice Black; "Morgan," Lionel Belmore; "Master of Ceremonies," Shep Camp; "Mrs. Fenerbeck," Ann Brody; "Mrs. Lippincott," Nellie V. Nichols.

Judging from the letters that I receive from fans when any one Fan happens to say anything a little disagreeable concerning Buddy Rogers, I should say the young man stands just ace high with the Nebraska Fans who read "Answers to Fans." Buddy has just returned from a visit to Europe, and is preparing to start work soon on a new picture, but "Along Came Youth" is his latest current release.

Write in to your favorites at their studio address, and enclose a quarter and you should be rewarded with their likeness.

Six-Year-Old Fan.

Dear Movie Editor—I am 6 years old and am interested in the movies. My favorites are Jean Arthur, Nancy Carroll, Charles Rogers, Mary Brian, Clara Bow, Philippe De Lacy, Anita

Only Women Will Appear In New Film

Beaudine Directs First All-Feminine Cast Production.

A picture with an all feminine cast is to go into production under the direction of William Beaudine. Liberty is producing the picture which is called "Women Like Men." Nine women will be featured in the cast, and not a single man. This is the first time a picture without a man in the cast has been filmed, although a number have appeared without women.

Sign Blond Mexican — Another new and rare "discovery" has been signed by Universal, Blanca Costijon. Miss Costijon is a blond Mexican girl, who has been appearing on the stage in Mexico City. She speaks English as well as her native tongue, and will work in both the Spanish and English versions of Universal pictures.

Buys Screen Rights — Joseph Schenck of United Artists Productions, has bought the screen rights of Zoe Akins "The Greeks Has a Word For It" as a future screen vehicle for Norma Talmadge.

Studio Activity Renewed—It looks like a "happy and prosperous New Year" is in store for the "extras" and other film workers in Hollywood with the renewed activity at the studios. R. K. O., which regularly employs 2,000 persons, have just started work on six new productions which will give work to twice that many people. First National and Warner Brothers are showing signs of life again, and Paramount has announced an enlarged production program for the coming season. The thousands of studio workers who depend upon "extra" work for their livelihood have been having a rather dreary time of it during the dull season which has been in progress during the past few months.

Lawrence Gray Signed—Lawrence Gray, one of the most popular leading men of the screen in the days of silent production, has been signed by Liberty productions to play the romantic male role in "Mother's Millions." May Robson will star in the feature.

Novarro's Mother in Role—Ramon Novarro's mother, Mrs. Samaniego, takes the role of the Mother Superior in the Spanish version of Novarro's American hit "Call of the Flesh." The star directed the Spanish version, as well as the French version, of the picture, which is adapted from the story, "The Singer of Seville."

Cast as Reporter — John Mack Brown, who has been featured in so many romantic historical characterizations lately, is to try his luck in a different type of role in "The Secret Six." Mr. Brown will appear as "Hank," a police reporter. Wallace Beery plays the featured male role in the picture which is adapted from an original story by Frances Marion. Lewis Stone, Marjorie Rambeau and Jean Harlow are prominent in the supporting cast. George Hill is directing this feature for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Many Stage Players—Nancy Carroll is surrounded by a cast of New York stage players with the exception of Phillips Holmes in her new picture, "Stolen Heaven." Miss Carroll is making the picture for Paramount at their New York studio and Mr. Holmes went east for the leading role opposite her. Other members of the cast are Joan Carr, Dagmar Oakland, Joseph Crehan, Buford Armitage, Joan Kenyon and Edward Keane. The names mean little to picture fans.

Arliss Will Return—George Arliss whose "Disraeli" won the Photoplay magazine's gold medal for 1929 is due back in Hollywood shortly to start work on his fourth Warner Brother feature. It is rumored that the picture will be an adaptation by Booth Tarkington, but as yet no announcement has been made by the studio as to just what Mr. Arliss' next characterization will be. He has appeared in "The Green Goddess" and "Old English" since "Disraeli." Although Mr. Arliss is an English actor, he has been appearing on the stage in the United States continually since 1901.

Gets Breakfast in Bed—Playing the star role in comedies is not so bad after all, Buster Keaton has decided—at least not when you can take your breakfast in bed and have two such charming girls as Dorothy Christie and Sally Eilers to serve it to you. Mr. Keaton, attired in gaudy blue pajamas, is breakfasting in bed a dozen times a day just now at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio in scenes for his new comedy, as yet untitled. Charlotte Greenwood, the famous comedienne of stage and screen fame, plays opposite Mr. Keaton and adds hilarity to the production.

LINCOLN SYMPHONY NOTES

BY ERNST HERMINGHAUS.

Do you remember this orchestra when it began its existence as the Lincoln Little Symphony? At that time the personnel consisted of twenty-six musicians. In the succeeding years it rapidly grew from this humble beginning until now in its fifth year there are seventy members. This remarkable growth has not only been numerical but also in quality of musicianship and variety of instrumentation which gives opportunity for adequate orchestral interpretation.

Particularly should the citizens of Lincoln have pride in the fact that all of the talent in the orchestra is local and much of it has been developed in the high school orchestra. That this material is outstanding is no vain boast. For two consecutive years the Lincoln high school has won the national contest of high school orchestras—a distinction that has never been attained by any other school. Now about twenty-five of these young people are playing with the Lincoln symphony, and as youth is want to do are instilling new life and interest into the organization. Mr. Seidl, the conductor, expressed the greatest surprise and pleasure at the skill they showed during the first rehearsal of the year.

Of course one does not like to make comparisons. But having heard both the Omaha and Lincoln Symphonies within a few days of each other, I find that Lincoln certainly has the advantage over the other organization in so far as skilled rendition and interpretation is concerned. Mr. Harmati, previous conductor of the Omaha Symphony admitted to Mr. Seidl that our players are superior. Not only actually but potentially do we have the superior orchestra. Moreover, the probability and possibility of progress is greater because of the youthful talent which is bound to show development in the next few years.

The financing and support of our orchestra is the problem with which Omaha has dealt far more successfully than Lincoln. Omaha has a budget of $30,000 of which $20,000 is cash subscriptions. We are operating on $5,000 a year of which only $2,300 is given by patrons who in turn receive 460 season tickets. And still the Lincoln Symphony in its five years of life has never closed a season with a deficit. This situation has been remarked and envied by countless other musical organizations all over the United States, which of course brings fame to Lincoln. But it is not to Lincoln as a city that this praise is due. It should go to the Lincoln Theater Corporation which offers free use of the Stuart theater for one rehearsal and the concert and countless additional courtesies to the players who offer their services gratuitously or for an entirely inadequate fee to the junior division of the chamber of commerce which, through its secretary, Dwight Bedell, gives untold support in management and promotion and to Mr. Seidl who continues to direct for the love of music rather than for the meager salary we offer him.

Five thousand dollars will do it — but there are innumerable limitations which the lack of funds places upon the Symphony. There is the great need for more rehearsals and for more and better editions of music, for newer compositions, which are proportionately expensive. Then too, if there was money a new back drop of celotex or like material could be provided which would improve the acoustics of the theater enormously. Or famous artists could be brought to Lincoln as soloist at the concerts, without the risk which is sure to be felt when there is inadequate financial backing for the venture.

Again—an assured income through donations, subscriptions, etc. for the financing of the orchestra would lead to a popularizing of prices which would increase ticket sales and attendance.

The orchestra will in all probability finish this season without a deficit. It is for next year that we make a plea. Something must be done which will give the orchestra the financial backing commensurate with its value as a civic and cultural enterprise. Heretofore the university has done things and Lincoln has lent its support. Now the time has come for Lincoln as a CITY to take the initiative and for the university to lend assistance.

Last Wednesday Donald Miller, president of the Orchestra association, called a meeting of the representatives of musical clubs, schools, sororities, fraternities, symphony board members and business men and women interested in the progress of the orchestra. They all unhesitatingly approved of a plan to raise $5,000 by cash subscriptions for the purpose of giving sufficient working capital for the orchestra and its activities.

The campaign for this sum will be held in the spring, and all agreed to function in the drive.

Such a sum will permit us to offer at least a thousand seats at 25 and 50 cents and also allow us to have at least four great artist soloists with the orchestra. Thus, and this was the sense of the meeting, we will practically combine the orchestra with the Great Artists Course.

Dickens' Christmas Carol."

Five years have made great differences in the type of holiday radio programs that can be offered the public. In 1925 it was considered a feat to have an actor even read a part of Dickens' "Christmas Carol" over the air. This year the Columbia system will present a complete production of the feature so detailed that even the episode having to do with Tiny Tim will be presented with musical effects suggesting a complete Cathedral service.

Local programs throughout the nation will merit attention. In Lincoln WCAJ will broadcast a Christmas morning service conducted by Rev. J. J. Sheaff of the Epworth Methodist church from 10 to 10:45 o'clock. KFAB will present two forty-five minute Christmas programs from 10:30 to 11:15 Wednesday and Thursday evenings. Details have not been announced. The Lincoln station will transmit every chain Christmas program that can be worked into its schedule, it has been announced.

Changed Standards.

THE standard of feminine morality is changing along with everything else. The word "morality" has taken on a much broader meaning, including fairness, honor, kindness and an unwillingness to consume and not produce.

In yesterdays, recognizing a girl as "moral" meant but one thing, that she be technically chaste. That she might be cruel, deceitful, hypocritical, a parasite, a gold-digger, or an unscrupulous gossip, did not matter. The new idea of morality has other than a sexual significance. It must include the fundamentals of honor and fairness.

The modern girl controls herself intelligently, and judges others upon a rational basis. She knows full well what she has to reckon with if she deals in light conduct and promiscuity, for she has read her Freud, her Jung, her Adler, and she has studied biology in high school and college.

There was a lot of shamming in the old days.

The modern girl is much more real, more direct, more honest. They are self-sufficient, independent and refuse to be parasites. They are courageous and fair. They do not depend upon chaperones but upon their own knowledge of the world and of humanity. They marry because they want to, not because they have to in order to be supported and to satisfy the world that they are desirable to men.

Holiday Social Pace.

When the children are home from school for the holidays, parents are puzzled to know how fast a social pace the youngsters should be permitted to follow.

Christmas week is likely to be as full of shows and parties and outings as parents will allow, and frequently the weeks following indicate through their attendant illness, fatigue and poor school work that there were entirely too many of them.

Between twelve and fifteen years of age is the period of rapid physical growth, and of changing interests in social life.

Properly developing children at this time concentrate on group activities and the boy and girl interest emerges. The chief expression of these new lines of development is usually a crowded social calendar, with the excitement and gaiety which it implies.

Parents face the question of how much leeway it is wise to allow the children during the holiday season. Some children are physically able to undertake much more than others Scientific investigations show a higher incidence of chronic fatigue among children from twelve to fifteen years of age than in any other group. Whether this is due chiefly to the social pace or to rapid physical growth or to a combination of these factors it is not possible to say. It is, however, clear that children at this time need guidance in effecting a sane program for both their health needs and their developing social interests.

If the pleasures of the holiday season are to exact no penalties of illness and nervous exhaustion, the parents of the gay adolescent must see to it that he gets plenty of rest, and that a fair proportion of his time is spent in wholesome out-of-door activities.

Greetings For All.

"Perplexed" asks if it is proper to say "Merry Christmas" to people who are not professing Christians? She says she has numerous Jewish friends and is puzzled to know if she should extend to them the customary holiday greetings. "Merry Christmas" is everybody's greeting on Christmas Day. Jewish people are often first to extend this wish to their friends. In the same letter the query is made why some schools remain closed a week after New Years' day. In medieval times, Christmastide extended from Christmas eve to Candlemas day (the second of February). In a less leisurely age, the term was shortened to twelve days, from December 25 to January 6—Epiphany, 'Little Christmas," or Three Kings' Day (the evening of which is the twelfth night marks the closing of the Christmas holiday season. A number of American schools follow the academic customs of Europe in deferring their reopening until after the sixth of January, the last of the holidays.

Bad Form.

Dear Minerva: For years I have exchanged gifts with friends at Christmas. Now because of expenses during a long illness, I shall not be able to make presents. Would it be proper to write notes to my friends asking them not to send gifts, as I am sending only cards?

LOUISE.

A—It is very bad form to write of presents one is or is not giving. If you meet your friends, you can casually remark that you are this year limiting yourself to Christmas cards. Or you can send your greetings without any explanation and acknowledge presents courteously, and without apology, if, or when, they arrive.

Helping at Home.

Dear Minerva: Some time ago, I read a letter to you signed "Grace" telling how as a college girl she married and helped to make the living. I suppose in some kind of office work. I have often wanted to answer it, but just put it off night after night, from being so tired. I think a wife can help earn the living with her husband if he is in some kind of business for himself. They could be together and make their plans together in the work. But if they are working for wages, I think she can do far more in the home life.

I was married once, but I am free now. I too know what it is to work away from home all day and then come home at night tired out, and do the home work. Is there any way that I could exchange a personal letter with "Grace" through you as I would like her personal views on things.

J.

A. If "Grace" wishes to send for your address, I will forward it to her.

Masquerade Party.

F. M.: You are giving a masquerade party in your home on New Years' eve and ask if you should receive your guests with your mask on. You also ask what would be nice for refreshments and concerning prizes Your guests will be high school girls and boys. Why not have your mother or some relative receive your guests. Otherwise, wear a simple gown, go unmasked, and later slip away and change into your masquerade dress. A nice supper would be turkey salad with hot rolls, coffee, ice cream and Christmas cake. Why not give two prizes, one for the most artistic and one for the funniest costume?

Duty Discharged.

Dear Minerva: I am a widow with two children, a son who lives at home, has a good job and a nice girl, and a daughter who is a senior in college and who expects to teach. A man of suitable age and position wants to marry me, and I would like to accept him. Both of my children are bitterly opposed to my taking a second husband although I am in my early forties. They say that if I marry, that will ruin their home life and their relations with me. They say that they never will feel free to come home. Do you think that they are selfish?

WIDOW.

A. This widow has discharged her duty to her children. They are mature enough to make their own lives. Her greater duty now is to herself and her future. If she can make a congenial marriage, that is precisely what she can do Her son, likely will marry the "nice girl" and the daughter may go away to teach or found a home of her own.

Just as some parents try to keep a strangle hold on their fully matured children, so some children attempt to monopolize a father or mother years after the leading strings should have been cut Either effort is monopolistic and a departure from the normal emotion and attitude.

This mother's quiet determination to marry is just the sort of discipline her children need. If they refuse to meet their step-father half way, an amiable acceptance of their stand together with time will work a change of heart with them.

Answered Briefly.

A—You are undergoing hardships that are quite severe for girls of your age, but the more unselfishly and cheerfully you perform your duties, the happier you will be both in the present and in the future. Do not quit school. That would make your mother unhappy and you would do her more harm than good. Do not listen to the many advisors who naturally hover about in an attempt to regulate your lives. Your mother's counsel and that of your own knowledge of what is right, are all that you need to heed. The physical and mental strain of your double duties will be greatly lessened if you undertake them with a spirit of happiness in your service

Mrs. H.: You are certainly involved in an unhappy situation. Through your blind trust in a man, you signed over your property to him, have nothing in writing to show for it, and now he not only claims everything is his but has transferred his interest to another woman Unjust though it is, and unfortunate too, I believe you would be better off to immediately and completely sever connections with this man. Find some work to do, no matter how humble, through which you may support yourself and daughter, and do not remain any longer under the tyranny of this man. Have your brother do what he can to regain your property, but probably you may as well give it up as lost.

"June" is super-sensitive and is constantly unhappy over petty incidents. A friend seems cold, a letter is not answered, she is not included in a party list, someone speaks sharply to her, All such things send her in the depths of despondency. Too many of us are super-sensitive The only remedy is through self control, through keeping our minds above the trifling happenings that might bring unhappiness if we dwell upon them. We should be wary of pronouncing judgment and should always give the benefit of the doubt It is happier to forgive seventy times seven, and to think the best rather than the worst of everyone.

Wesleyan Notes

Rev. and Mrs. Bert Bessire of Glenwood Springs, Col., were guests during the past week in the home of Dean and Mrs. B. E. McProud. They are returning home from Chicago where Rev. Bessire attended a meeting of religious education committees. Rev. Bessire received his A. B. from Wesleyan in 1911. He did graduate work at Yale university, receiving his A. M. and B. D. degrees there. Mrs. Bessire, formerly Ruth Watt, graduated in 1911 and was a member of the Alpha Kappa Delta sorority which is now the Alpha Gamma Delta sorority. She is a sister of Mrs. McProud.

Rev. Olney L. Kendall formerly professor of education at Wesleyan, visited this week with his sister-in-law Mrs. Furman, who is house mother at the Kappa Sigma Pi fraternity house. Rev. Kendall graduated with the class of 1910. He is at present minister of the M. E. church in Jerome, Ida.

Professors Roy W. Deal, F. M. Gregg, and Robert A. Hardin, instructor in manual training at Nebraska Wesleyan, will attend the annual meeting of the American Pyschological association in Iowa City, December 29 to 31. The convention will be held at the University of Iowa. Professor Gregg also will attend a meeting in Des Moines of the National Psychology fraternity, Sigma Phi Sigma.

The conference at Detroit of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., December 26 to 31, will be attended by the following from Nebraska Wesleyan: Dean H. C. Gossard, Prof. John Casteel, Miss Ivy Walker, Miss Jean Tyler, and Eugene Stromberg.

Rev. H. O. Perry, a former student, was a campus visitor recently. He is district superintendent of the Tacoma, Wash., district of the Methodist church.

careful of credit in those days, but I didn't let it worry me. I believed that most men were honest. And today I believe it just as much as then."

Speaking of business, causes remembrance of an important incident in Mr. Jack's career. He hadn't much more than taken root on Nebraska soil when the Civil war broke out. He enlisted in the first volunteer cavalry regiment accepted into the Union army. It was organized by Col. FitzHenry Warren, a correspondent of the New York Tribune.

When David Jack enlisted, he was looking forward to brighter days ahead. Besides," everyone said the war would be over by fall." So he decided to save his $13 per month wages.

The war dragged on. His pay was raised to $16 per month, and when his term expired and he reenlisted he got a bonus of three or four hundred dollars.

One day as the paymaster came around to the regiment, a budey told the officer that Dave Jack was "crazy."

"Why? What's the matter with him?"

"He's saving his money, and hasn't sense enough to know that he might be shot tomorrow."

But Dave Jack took the jibes, and the money too. After four years of service, he emerged with what in those days was a magnificent sum, $1,500. And it was that $1,500 which enabled him to buy his first mercantile store in Peru. Several times immediately before and after the war, he tried farming and then clerking. The latter suited him best, and when he had his own store, he kept it for thirty-five years before he was ready to retire.

"But that's where I made my mistake," he exclaims. "If I had it to do all over again, I'd still be in that store. After you retire, you wear yourself out fretting because you've got nothing to do."

Mr. Jack is content to let modern people have their modern civilization. "But for myself, I got just as much out of life in the good old days as I do now. The peole were all very sociable. We all knew each other. And we had a good time."

Fortunately, David Jack treks the path of time with his loyal partner at his side. They were married in 1869 in Peru. They have two sons, William D. and John B., both successful physicians and surgeons in Chicago.

Of course, he has a few G A R buddies for company too. Their post started with thirty-two members. Five still answer roll call. Dave Jack has been post commander and adjutant, as well as junior vice commander of the state organization. He has also been a Mason for over fifty years

When David Jack smiles, and he does so frequently, he exhibits an amazing set of white teeth—his own. Only a few of the rear molars are gone, and one of his greatest laments is:

"Why did I ever crack those dern hickory and hazel nuts with my teeth. I'd have had them all yet."

Cotner Notes

The Cotner Players presented "Brewster's Millions," a four-act comedy, in the college gymnasium Tuesday evening.

The Y. W. C. A. held its annual Christmas vesper service Monday evening, the program consisting of a Christmas pageant, and the reading, "The Other Wise Man," by Harold Woods.

Recognition of the winning of the second consecutive Nebraska college athletic conference football championship was held at chapel Tuesday, including short talks by Coach C. L Hartman; Prof. J. A. Moss; ex-Captain Howard Kitchen, '31, Lincoln; Captain-elect Roscoe Haynie, '32, Omaha, and President L C. Anderson. Prof. B. E. Ogden, chairman of the athletic board, was in charge of the program.

The last chapel before Christmas vacation included a Christmas carol program by students in voice and an address, "The Meaning of Christmas from the Viewpoint of its Origin," by Dean J. K. Shellenberger.

The annual Cotner-Doane day, first observed three years ago at the suggestion of Dean G. E. Breece, by each college entertaining the entire student body and faculty of the other on the day of the annual football game between them was varied this year by a plan which provided for the exchange of presidents as chapel speakers, and of student talent. President E. B Dean of Doane spoke at the Cotner chapel on "Our Obligations," and the Doane double quartet and string quartet gave several selections.

Alpha Upsilon cast of Alpha Psi Omega, national honorary dramatics fraternity, initiated the following Wednesday evening: Louise Weldon, '33, Sylvan Dale, Loveland, Colo.; Wayne Nicholls, '32, Edgar; Grace Electa Lowe, '32, Lincoln; Pauline Rogers, '33, Clearwater; Bernard Porter, '33, Thurman, Ia.

Wesleyan Notes

Miss Anna Pickard, principal of Vinton school, Omaha; Miss Pollock, principal of the South Lincoln school, Omaha, and Mrs. Hawley teacher of the sixth grade Vinton school, were visitors in the training school of the Van Fleet teacher's college on last Wednesday. They were making professional observations of the work done in the Van Fleet teacher's college.

The annual Christmas observance at Wesleyan was held Thursday December 19. A tall spruce tree on the campus west of the main building was lighted through the endeavors of the Blue Key organization. As has been the custom for several years, a bugle call was sounded at 6·45 and the sorority and fraternity groups came from their various houses to the gymnasium singing Christmas carols. A decorated tree gave the gymnasium a holiday appearance and the entertainment was in the form of an operetta depicting the story of the coming of Chirst Members of the music department, under the direction of Dean Parvin Witte, sang carols and several students of the expression school formed tableaux in representation of the story in music. Miss Frances Goodhue directed the tableau work. Following the program the university gift to Chancellor Schreckengast was presented and Santa Claus arrived with candy and nuts for the student guests. The party closed at 7:45. The entire evening was in charge of Mrs. Clara Brandt.

Dr. Knutte Oscar Broady, associate professor of school administration in the University of Nebraska teacher's college, accompanied a class of students of education in his institution to hear a discussion on the types of teaching now being investigated in the Van Fleet teacher's college. The class remained for a demonstration of geography teaching by Miss Eleanor Swanson of the fifth grade.

Miss Mary Edgar, of New York City, will be a guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. Glenn Callen. Miss Edgar is a cousin of Mrs. Callen.

Harold Reid, Lawrence Rohrbough, and Robert McConnaha, members of the Gamma chapter of Beta Kappa, will attend the fifth biennial conclave of Beta Kappa, to be held at Alpha Gamma chapter at Atlanta, Ga., December 29 to January 1. They will go by way of Chicago, New York, and Washington, D. C., and will return by a southern route.

Wesleyan people who will spend the holidays on the campus are to be entertained at several social gatherings that will provide the Christmas atmosphere.

Students of the Nebraska Wesleyan university school of music furnished entertainment at the Hiram club luncheon on Wednesday, December 18.

Principal Fred Aden of the Colegio Americano E Instituto Commercial Ward at Buenos Aires, Argentina, gave a short speech of greeting to the students during their convocation period, Monday, December 15, 1930, from the students of Argentina He was a student in the department of expression and commerce at Nebraska Wesleyan in 1914 He completed his work at the University of California, receiving his A B. and A. M. degrees from that institution.

Harold Hixson, student of 1929-1930, employed at St Francis S. D., in a carpentering and logging mill, reports an interesting situation in the recent snow storm of the northwest. For six days, according to his letter the town was cut off from all communication of the outside world Mr Hixson plans on reentering school next year.
